EUROPE VIEWS
ROOSEVELT TALK
AS 3D TERM BIDAttack on Dictators
Called Vote Getter.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—European reaction to President Roosevelt's annual message to congress took a new turn today. With the full text of the President's pronouncement on American foreign policy before them, commentators, both in England and on the continent, expressed amazement. Doubts of the sincerity of Mr. Roosevelt's motives in launching a fiery attack on dictator states were heard. It was suggested both in England and Germany that the President was inspired by his desire for a third term and was trying to line up votes.

Contrasted with Scandinavian View.

The London press tonight warned against thinking that the President will make a stand for democracy all over the world. His speech, in which he alluded to a danger of attack from foreign dictatorships, was for home consumption, it was said. Some sources expressed the opinion that the American people still are determined to stay out of European quarrels, and that the most any European nation can expect from the United States is moral support.

It was pointed out in London that Mr. Roosevelt's attitude contrasts with the attitude of the Scandinavian states or even France and England toward dictators. Yet these countries are not separated from European dictator nations by the Atlantic, as is the United States.

Considered Bid for Votes.

The idea that he is using an attack on dictator states to gather votes in Jewish, Catholic and communistic circles generally was put forward in the London Evening Standard.

One thing which seemed particularly puzzling to Europeans was Mr. Roosevelt's contention that the United States would fight for religious freedom. There was speculation over how dictator states could menace religion in America. "We thought wars of religion were over," was the comment heard in London.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain

paused today in preparation for a trip to Rome to laud President Roosevelt's opinions toward world affairs as voiced in his message.

Praises "Solemn Words."

He said: "Nobody who is charged with the heavy responsibilities of government could fail to be impressed by the solemn words with which the President of the United States yesterday greeted the elected representatives of the American people.

"In these islands, where there is so clear a realization that only through freedom and peace can we hope to maintain and develop for ourselves and those that come after us the benefits for which we have labored for generations, the sentiments expressed by the President will be welcomed as yet another indication of the vital role of the American democracy in world affairs and its devotion to the ideal of ordered human progress."

Chamberlain's statement was interpreted by diplomatic observers as a new British attempt to drag America into European affairs and to form a British-American front to deal with international problems.

Berlin Continues Criticism.

Berlin's press reaction continued to be one of sharp criticism. Politics at home and a desire to justify extensive armament expenditures were considered by the Politische Korrespondenz, Nazi foreign office organ, to be the cause for Mr. Roosevelt's references to dictatorships.

"Necessary ill will must be incited against an alleged enemy," it said. "The Berliner Nachtausgabe charged that 'Roosevelt's aims are revealed. He wants to prepare for war or sanctions [penalties].' This was an allusion to the President's statement that there are more ways than war of commanding a decent respect for the opinions of mankind."

The Voelkischer Beobachter pounced upon a statement by Senator Key Pittman (Dem., Nev.) that Mr. Roosevelt had decided "moral, financial, and commercial sanctions" were necessary to end violation of treaties.

"This shows that the Roosevelt elite is driving openly and shamelessly to a complete rupture and finally to war—a war desired only by Jews and bolsheviks, the Nazi paper said."

Other German papers charged that

Mr. Roosevelt is under the "influence of Jews and New York money dictators eager to gain new war profits."

Capture Three
Schoolboys in

There were four in the gang. They toured Rogers Park and Summerdale districts on bicycles and later in an automobile, looking for apartments where the lights were out and the tenants away. They looted such dwellings of radios, jewelry, cameras, guns and currency. They got automobile equipment by raiding alley garages.

They were burglars from 6 to 9 p. m. But at that hour they called a halt. Three had to go home to study their lessons for the next day.

Two Go to High School.

Last night the four burglars were in custody of the Rogers Park police. They are Joseph Mangos, 17 years old, 5941 Broadway, a senior at Senn High school; Oscar Piesens, 16, of 1401 Elmwood avenue, a junior at Lane Technical High school; Albert Miklautsch, 15, of 5820 Broadway, a vocational school pupil, and Harry Klopotic, 17, of 5937 Broadway.

The police also questioned Francis Gavin, 14 years old, 5630 Ridge boulevard, and Robert Greenberg, 15, of 1266 Victoria street, who said they accompanied the gang on one of their burglary tours. They also are high school pupils.

The gang's criminal enterprises started last May 13. On that date Klopotic, Piesens and Mangos broke into the United States coast artillery armory, 5917 Broadway, and stole twenty automatic pistols. When they found they couldn't sell the guns they threw fourteen of them into the lake.

Use Loot to Buy Auto.

With proceeds from other burglaries they bought a $25 automobile. It was the car that brought about their capture. While looting the home of C. H. Wilson, at 2835 Jarvis avenue, Wilson surprised them. They ran away, leaving their car at the curb. Detectives under Sgt. Thomas Kelly of the Rogers Park station traced the license, issued to Klopotic, and he named the other members of the gang. Police said they admitted about twenty-five burglaries.

They threw away and destroyed much of their loot, including jewelry, the young burglar said. Police recovered from them seven stolen guns. The gang also surrendered a diamond lavalier and war medals taken from the home of H. E. Seefurth, 6128 North Campbell avenue, on Jan. 1.

"We'd share dice to see who would get first pick of the stuff after we got away," Mangos said. "Sometimes we drew cards."

DUBLIN, Ireland, Jan. 5.—(P)—Jack Kelly, inmate of a poorhouse, was fined $1,000 (about $4,650) today for acting as a bookmaker in the institution. The prosecution said the 3,000 men in the poorhouse spent $2,000 a year in penny bets on races. Kelly was given 14 days to pay his fine or start serving an indefinite sentence. Of prison or poorhouse, Kelly observed, "it is much of a muchness."

Machine Talks
Voice Sounds

(Picture on Back Page.)

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 5.—(P)—A machine which speaks, forming its own words in imitation of human tones, was shown to scientists today at the Franklin Institute.

Its name is Voder, and it is the first machine in the world to create speech.

The Voder resembles an oversize

typewriter, with a pipe organ keys. Instead of musical notes the keys sound speech tones. It was built by the Bell Telephone laboratories for exhibition at forthcoming world fairs.

23 Sounds, Including Hiss.

The machine shows that the art and science of communications has advanced to the point where, if all persons lost their voices, they still could punch a battery of keys and say audibly whatever they liked.

The Voder has 23 different sounds, including a hiss. It imitates up or down the scale, shouts or whispers, and mimics man or woman. It can sing and can imitate the bleating of sheep, the jingling of cattle, the grunting of pigs, or a woodpecker's pecking.

The mechanical voice is like nothing heard before. Some tones are exactly human, others new. As its operators develop skill with the machine the voice becomes more human.

"Mississippi" Easy to Say.
A near-perfect "Mississippi" is easy to say. Ohio and Iowa are difficult. You are likely to say "slip" when you want to say "ship." The Voder emits a realistic Bronx cheer. The machine has 10 white keys which when pressed turn on vowel sounds. One other white key controls volume. Alongside the operator's right hand are three black keys which make the consonants, "k," "p," and "t." Under the left wrist is a key that changes the sound from consonants to vowels. The right foot presses a treadle for vocal inflections. A knob turns to the left for a masculine voice and to the right for a feminine voice.

The operator modifies the sounds by pressing more than one key at a time, like the player of an organ. The name Voder is derived from the telephone business phrase "voice operation demonstrator."

HOUSE TO BACK
DIES IN BATTLE
TO BLAST REDSReady to Vote Funds
Despite Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has asked his congressional leaders to block the request of Representative Martin Dies (D., Tex.) for $150,000 to continue for two more years his investigation of un-American activities, it was reliably reported today. He was told that it could not be done.

According to the same report, the President then suggested that the senate's civil liberties committee be provided more funds so that it could "blanket" the Dies investigation. The reply to this suggestion was that the senate was not inclined to set aside another cent to this committee, headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette.

Critical of Dies Committee.

Roosevelt and two members of his cabinet, Secretaries Harold L. Ickes and Frances Perkins, have been sharply critical of the Dies committee and Representative Dies in return has repeatedly assailed the two cabinet officers and complained that the President's criticisms came from "misinformation."

The congressional leaders told the President, it is asserted, that returning members have reported the Dies investigation has attracted widespread interest and approval throughout the country and that they feel it would be politically dangerous for them to vote against the Texas Democrat's proposal to continue it.

Hes today voiced the same opinion. He said that a careful survey of members at the recent Democratic caucus had brought almost unanimous expressions of approval of his proposal to continue the investigation for two more years. Some members, he said, reported that the only pledges they made in their campaigns were that they would vote for such continuance. Many, he added, wanted approval of his resolution as soon as possible so they would be relieved of the job of answering letters urging such action.

Welcome New Dealer.

Representative Dies already has offered a resolution for reconstituting the committee as it now stands, with the exception of replacing one member, former Representative Harold G. Mosier (D., O.), who was defeated. To meet administration criticism, he added, he has voiced willingness to have a New Dealer named to this vacant post "so that no charges of political bias can be raised against us."

The original committee, now legally dissolved, had two pro-Roosevelt members, who were publicly critical of the way the inquiry was conducted. Both were unable to attend more than a few sessions, being busy seeking reelection. Dies won primary nomination and had no further opposition and so conducted the inquiry practically singlehanded.

Might Out Appropriation.

Mr. Dies said today that he had heard rumors that his resolution might be referred to the committee on accounts, which might cut down the total. But if the resolution comes out with insufficient funds, he will oppose its passage.

Admitting that some of the criticism of the recent inquiry was sound, he maintained that its failures were due to lack of funds—the appropriation for it was $25,000—with which to hire expert investigators and counsel.

Numerous witnesses before the Dies committee, and committee members themselves, assailed the La Follette committee as playing the game of radicals and revolutionaries in its exposures of labor spies, police attacks on strikers, and the like.

A Motorist Meets a Bull,

Pana, Ill., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Deputy Sheriff Phillip Endris, driving on a highway near here today, met a bull which disputed the right of way. After the crash the bull trotted away, leaving Endris surveying the smashed radiators, headlights, and fenders of his car. Said Endris: "I guess that wasn't Ferdinand, the bull they sing about, who never learned to fight."

Roosevelt Puts Frankfurter on Supreme CourtBY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today nominated Felix Frankfurter, a Harvard law school professor, to be an associate justice of the United States Supreme court.

The nomination found little enthusiasm among conservative Democrats and Republicans when it reached the senate. The prevailing opinion, however, is that Frankfurter will be confirmed.

The nomination of Prof. Frankfurter, sponsor of more than 100 New Deal lawyers and brain trusters whom Gen. Hugh S. Johnson calls "the happy hot dogs," was transmitted to the senate with a long list of recess appointments previously announced and other new appointments, including that of former Senator James P. Pope (D., Idaho) to the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley authority. [Details on page 3.]

Nomination Is Surprise.

Frankfurter's nomination for the Supreme court vacancy, to succeed the late Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, surprised many senators, who believed that a western man would receive the next appointment.

Some of these senators had been assured within the last few days by both Postmaster General James A. Farley and officials of the justice department that Justice Harold M. Stephens of the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, a Utah man, would receive the appointment.

It was reported that the President agreed to the demands of his radical advisers and gave the appointment to Frankfurter to please Justice Louis D. Brandeis. Justice Brandeis, it is understood, has desired to retire for some time, but wanted Frankfurter on the bench before stepping aside.

Expected as Close Term.

Justice Brandeis' retirement, which is expected at the close of the present court term, would make a place for Stephens or for some other western man. If Justice Brandeis retires, Frankfurter will be the only Jewish member of the court.

Frankfurter has personified the popular conception of New Deal radicalism since the early days of the brain trust, yet he opposed the President's scheme to pack the court.

This paradox will be one of the greatest factors in his favor when the nomination comes before the senate for confirmation. Senator Edward R. Burke (D., Neb.), one of the leaders in the successful senate fight against packing the Supreme court, said he regarded Prof. Frankfurter as a worthy successor to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes and Cardozo.

Declines to Testify for Bill.

Frankfurter never made a public statement on the court bill, but when administration supporters sought to persuade him to appear before the senate judiciary committee as a favorable witness he refused.

When Senator Frederick Van Nuys (D., Ind.), a leader of the opposition, asked Raymond Moley, former No. 1 brain trustster, to testify against the bill, Moley agreed to do so only on condition that Prof. Frankfurter would not be called. He explained that Frankfurter's opposition to the bill would offend President Roosevelt.

Frankfurter's silence, however, made him an effective witness against the bill. The conservative Democrats and Republicans are grateful for this, but there will be some opposition to the nominee because of his political radicalism.

Long in Radical Activities.

For many years Frankfurter has been associated with radical activities. He is a member of the national committee of the American Civil Liberties Union, which has been called a communist front organization in testimony before the Dies committee on un-American activities. He was actively associated with the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee in Massachusetts in 1926 and 1927.

Frankfurter, who is 56 years old, was born in Vienna. He came to America in 1894. He was graduated from the Harvard law school, where he has been professor of administrative law since 1914.

BUDGET TO KEEP
COUNTRY IN RED
FOR TENTH YEARContinued Spending
Course Charted.

President Roosevelt's message on the budget with accompanying statistical tables is on page 8.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's 10 billion dollar budget for the 1940 fiscal year, Uncle Sam's tenth year in the red, was received by congress today and greeted with derision by the Republicans and silence by the Democrats.

With debt retirement and reimbursable postal expenditures excluded, the President calculated total expenditures at $9,496,329,000 and the deficit at $3,792,259,000 for the 1940 fiscal year. For 1940 he estimated expenditures at $8,995,663,200 and the deficit at $3,326,243,200. With debt, postal and probable supplemental items included total outgo will be $10,190,311,483. According to these figures the public debt will stand at 41 billions June 30 next and 44½ billions June 30, 1940.

Deficits to Term's End.

The budget message discloses that the President expects to end his second term with the budget still unbalanced. The 1940 budget is for a period extending to within six months of the close of his tenure unless he should be reelected. Moreover, he submits estimates of future revenue showing that 10 billions outgo would not be balanced by 10 billions revenue until the national income reaches 90 billions. It is now 60 billions.

"As far as prosperity is concerned," said Senator Robert A. Taft (R., O.), "the budget is shot through with completely false pump priming proposals. If there is any more certain method of retarding prosperity I'd like to know about it."

In the house while the Democrats sat mute Representative Charles L. Gifford (R., Mass.), following the reading of the budget message, warned that the government has been established permanently on a 10 billion dollar basis. He recalled that the Democrats laughed when a few years ago he had predicted 7 billion dollar budgets.

Law Limits It to 45 Billion.

"You laughed when Gov. Eccles of the federal reserve said the country could stand a 40 billion debt," Mr. Gifford went on. "The President now tells us it will be 41 billion next June and if he says 41 billion now it will be 43 billion then. Every man listening to me knows we can't go on this way."

"Don't you know that the federal debt is limited by law to 45 billion and that the administration is going to ask congress to raise the limit to 80 billion?" interrupted Representative Robert F. Rich (R., Penn.).

"They'll have to at the rate they are going," Gifford replied.

Urges Excise Taxes Reinstated.

In his budget message the President declared the view of most far-sighted economists that it would be unwise to "curtail expenditures sharply or to impose drastic new taxes at this stage of recovery."

He recommended reinstatement of the excise taxes, which expire next June, and then suggested that congress should vote new taxes to meet national defense outlays and farm subsidies. It might be possible to repeal some of the nuisance taxes.

Over Billion for Defense.

Among the appropriations asked by President Roosevelt are $49,648,000 for western reclamation projects, including $23,000,000 for Grand Coulee dam in the state of Washington, and $10,000,000 for California's Central valley, $110,000,000 for flood control, $968,158,851 for agriculture department activities, including $333,000,000 in subsidies to farmers.

The new taxes suggested would provide 425 millions of additional revenue—210 millions for the 1940 installment of the new 500 million dollar national defense program the President is to submit to congress next week, and 212 millions for farm parity price payments.

The regular appropriation for national defense appears in the 1940 budget as 1 billion 126 millions, but if congress authorizes the new program the item will rise to 1 billion 336 millions.

Mr. Roosevelt recommended a change in budget keeping so that federal outlays for public works and other durable improvements and recoverable loans and investments should not be counted in the deficit for a current year. Expenditures for durable improvements would be written off and the loans and investments considered as assets. Following this system, Mr. Roosevelt could show an estimated deficit of 10 billion 848 millions for the ten years, 1931-40, inclusive, instead of a deficit of 27 billion 279 millions for the same period under the present system.

Procedure Reduces Deficit.

This procedure also would reduce the deficit in 1940 from 3 billion, 326 million to 1 billion, 386 million, and in the current fiscal year from 3 billion, 972 million to only 1 billion, 485 million. It would have turned the 1938 deficit of 1 billion, 742 million into an actual surplus of 358 million dollars. It also would have turned a 684 million dollar deficit in 1931 into a surplus of 203 million.

But this same system would also logically call for adding contingent liabilities of the government to the public debt, as high government officials admit. Addition of such contingent liabilities, or obligations of government agencies guaranteed by the United States, including federal reserve notes, would have added 5 billion, 424 million dollars to the gross public debt of 27 billion 485 million reported on June 30, 1938, or a total of 42 billion, 589 million dollars.

A WAR ROMANCE THAT STARTED IN FRANCE IS OVER

Frank Keppeling was an American army captain in France when he met Mrs. Gabrielle Keppeling, daughter of a French packer, she told Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday. Keppeling returned to France after the war. They were married in 1922, and moved to Paris, where their two children were born. Two years ago they moved to Chicago. Then, she testified, he deserted her. She sued for separate maintenance. She had her husband arrested Monday at the home of his mother, 7528 Colfax avenue, she said. The judge ordered him to pay her $13.50 a week until her suit can be heard. Mrs. Keppeling lives at 6500 Kimbark avenue.

The city council committee on recreation and aviation, headed by Ald. Bryan Hartnett (12th), will meet today to discuss the proposed lake front island airport. Preliminary plans were approved last week by the Civil Aeronautics authority in Washington. Ald. Hartnett said the committee wants to learn the cost of the project, the source of materials for construction, and its relation to Chicago airport.

RISE IN NATIONAL DEBT

SEIZE CHINESE WHO FLED PRISON FARM IN 1919

Twenty years ago Joliet penitentiary officials were preparing to release Charles Moy, a Chinese. He had served more than half of a fourteen year term for killing a man in a Chicago chop suey house. Because of his good behavior, he was transferred to the prison farm when the time that he would be eligible to release drew near. But instead of waiting, he ran away.

Joan Maxson, 4 years old, was attracted by the gas flame in the kitchen stove yesterday while her mother was washing in the basement of their home at 6835 La Fayette avenue. The little girl's clothes caught fire. Her screams brought her father, Glenn, from the living room. He beat out the flames and took her to St. Bernard's hospital. But she died there last night.

RECORD 2 BILLION TO BE REQUESTED FOR U. S. DEFENSE

Follows Roosevelt Plea to Arm Against Dictators.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The new congress will be called on to appropriate almost two billion dollars for national defense in response to the plea President Roosevelt made in his annual message yesterday that the "free air of a free country" be armed against the menace of dictators.

In his annual budget message, which was sent to Capitol Hill today, Mr. Roosevelt called for a total of 1 billion 126 million dollars for national defense. This is the largest appropriation sought in the peace time history of the country. It tops the peace time record set last year by the appropriation of 1 billion 17 million dollars for national defense.

Additional Sum to Be Asked. At the same time Mr. Roosevelt revealed that he will ask for 500 million dollars more in a special national defense message he will send to congress next Thursday. The special message will give details of his plans to enlarge the army and navy to meet his theory of continental defense. Under this theory the United States will undertake to defend the entire western hemisphere, as against the outmoded theory of national defense, under which the army and navy were concerned only with defense of this country and its possessions.

In the budget message today Mr. Roosevelt listed 210 million dollars as a supplemental national defense item which he said represents the part of the 500 million dollar program he will outline next week. The 210 millions, he said, represents the amount needed to meet the additional armaments of the 500 million program that can be completed within the 1940 fiscal year, which will end June 30, 1940.

PWA and WPA Funds Added. The 1 billion 126 millions asked in the regular budget, together with the 500 million to be asked in the supplemental budget, will bring the immediate defense appropriation request to 1 billion 626 million dollars. In addition, appropriations of an estimated 350 million dollars through the PWA and WPA administrations and for such long range military developments as power and waterway improvements will bring the total

FOUR NEW MEMBERS SELECTED FOR WAYS COMMITTEE IN HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Fifteen Democrats who will compose the majority group of the powerful house ways and means committee, were chosen today at a Democratic caucus. Eleven members who retained their seats in the election were re-elected to the committee, but a hot contest was waged for the remaining four vacancies.

Representative Raymond S. McKeough (D., Ill.) of the 2d congressional district in Chicago, was elected to one of the vacancies. The others were filled by the selection of Milton H. West of Texas, Paul H. Maloney of Louisiana, and Patrick J. Boland of Pennsylvania, the Democratic whip.

Fifteen Democrats and 10 Republicans will make up the committee this year, instead of the 17 to 8 ratio at the last congress. Republicans have four vacancies to fill at a caucus soon to be held. The influential ways and means committee decides the membership of all house committees, including the rules committee, which selects the bills to be given preferential status on the house calendar. Returning congressmen and 108 new members will be seeking places on committees.

national defense appropriation requests to almost 2 billion dollars.

After he sent his budget message to congress, Mr. Roosevelt went into a two hour conference with national defense heads on the supplemental program he will send to congress next week.

Among those present at the conference were Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, Chief of Naval Operations W. D. Leahy, Chief of Staff Malin Craig, Deputy Chief of Staff George C. Marshall, State Department Counselor R. Walton Moore, Chief of GHQ Air Force H. H. Arnold, Chief of Navy Aeronautics Arthur B. Cook, White House Naval Aide Daniel Callaghan, and White House Military Aide Edwin M. Watson.

Refuse to Discuss Parley. None of the conferees would reveal the nature of the discussion. The White House made no comment on the meeting.

In the allotment of the 1 billion 126 million dollars in the budget sent to congress today, the navy got the greater share of the increase over the appropriation of 1 billion 17 million dollars voted by the last congress for the current fiscal year.

The navy's appropriation went up from approximately 575 millions to almost 670 millions. The army went up from 435 millions to slightly more than 445 millions.

The navy's increase of close to 100 million dollars is due entirely to the new building program under way. There is an increase of 34 millions for increased personnel, aviation, and general maintenance and operation. The estimate of funds required for the 1940 construction program is 270 millions, or 115 millions more than the 155 millions voted by the last congress.

Personnel to Be Increased. The army increase is made necessary for various additional expenditures. The officer personnel will be raised by 117 second lieutenants for the air corps, 329 second lieutenants in other branches, and 10 chaplains to 13,031 commissioned officers. The army is still short of the authorization of 14,659 officers voted by the last congress. The authorization of 165,000 enlisted men is to stand.

Funds are provided for an increase of 5,000 men in the national guard. A similar increase, voted by the last congress, was held in abeyance by the next six months for the current fiscal year. Other reserve increases are sought.

The quota of 2,320 airplanes, fixed by the Baker board, will be reached with the 1940 appropriations. The army at present is obtaining 390 new planes and beginning next July 1 will seek 219 more to bring its air force up to the Baker board quota.

Forecast 9,000 Plane Quota. However, it is expected that the President's special message will call for a lifting of the ceiling over the Baker quota to an authorized strength of possibly 9,000 planes. At the same time he is expected to ask for increasing the navy's air authorization to 3,000 planes.

The President recommended appropriation of an additional $500,000 to ward construction of a new dirigible for the navy. Congress already has authorized an experimental lighter-than-air ship at a cost not to exceed $3,000,000.

FIGHT PROMISED ON APPOINTMENT OF TVA DIRECTOR

Critics Question Existence of Board Vacancy.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—An appointment by President Roosevelt which named James P. Pope, the former lame duck senator from Idaho, as a member of the TVA board, immediately raised the question today of whether there is a vacancy on the board.

Senate critics of the Tennessee Valley authority announced that they would endeavor to block Pope's appointment to succeed Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, whose ouster by the President last year is being contested.

Senator H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] said he was assembling data that would show that the President acted illegally in removing Dr. Morgan. He asserted he would oppose Pope or any other man named to Dr. Morgan's place until federal courts have ruled on the ouster proceedings.

Bakes Lame Duck Selections.
Senator Bridges criticized President Roosevelt's elevation of New Deal lame ducks in discussing the nomination of Frank Murphy, defeated governor of Michigan, as attorney general, and that of Harry L. Hopkins, former Works Progress administrator, as secretary of commerce. Both nominations were sent to the senate today.

The senator said Mr. Roosevelt had made a specialty of naming lame ducks, "those who have been repudiated by the people of their own states and districts."

"But in the case of Mr. Hopkins," said Bridges, "the President has gone one better. He has appointed a man as secretary of commerce who has been repudiated by the people of the entire nation on one of the outstanding issues in the last campaign."

The senator referred to the use of relief appropriations for political purposes.

Holds Off on Labor Board.
The failure of Mr. Roosevelt to include Donald Wakefield Smith, a member of the national labor relations board, among the recess appointments sent to the senate was regarded as significant.

The President reappointed Smith over the objections of the American Federation of Labor, and the A. F. of L. now commands sixty-one votes to block his confirmation in the senate.

It is believed, therefore, that Mr. Roosevelt will back away from that defeat by withholding the Smith recess appointment and nominating another man, probably Representative David J. Lewis of Maryland, a yes man.

Other Recess Selections.
Other recess appointments sent to the senate for confirmation included: Otto Kerner, former attorney general of Illinois, appointed judge of the Seventh United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago.

Michael L. Igoe, former United States attorney at Chicago, appointed judge of the federal district court at Chicago.

William J. Campbell, former director of the National Youth administration in Illinois, appointed United States attorney at Chicago.

Edward C. Elcher, lame duck Iowa Democratic congressman, appointed to the Securities and Exchange commission.

John C. Wiley of Indiana, appointed minister to Latvia and Estonia.

William H. McDowell, reappointed United States marshal at Chicago.

Edward C. Elcher, lame duck Iowa Democratic congressman, appointed to the Securities and Exchange commission.

Mrs. Netcher told Judge Robert C. O'Connell she married Netcher in 1929, and that he deserted her May 20, 1936. Asked how he treated her and how she treated him, she replied, "Very well." FIGHT TO SLASH FUNDS FOR WPA OPENS IN HOUSE

Democrat Leader Blasts at Roosevelt Request.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's request for $75 million to finance the WPA from Feb. 1 to June 30 was termed unjustifiable today by Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (D., Va.), chairman of the house subcommittee which will decide on the amount to be appropriated.

Woodrum said he believes $300 million would be a reasonable amount for the work-relief organization in the five month period. He ordered hearings to be opened tomorrow with Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator who succeeded Harry L. Hopkins, as the first witness. The hearings can be completed next Monday, Woodrum said, and the appropriation reported to the house by the middle of next week.

First Big Struggle Imminent.
Thus, almost before new house members will have become accustomed to their seats, there will be precipitated next week the first major struggle of the session. Light will be shed on the strength of a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats which is expected to develop as a result of Woodrum's opposition to the President's big estimate of relief needs.

In his supplementary message to congress today on relief, the President asked that the elimination of "improvement practices" in the WPA not be discussed in regard to the $75 million appropriation but be deferred until congress takes up the question of appropriating work-relief funds for the fiscal year beginning July 1. He suggested that a billion and one-half dollars would be needed for the 1939-40 program.

Mr. Roosevelt's excuse for requesting this delay in considering the use of relief money as campaign funds was that WPA will be forced to suspend Feb. 1 if more money is not provided by congress by that date. Congress must dispense with debate and act quickly, he argued.

Expect Issue to Be Brought Up.
It was regarded likely, however, that the whole issue of work relief and politics would be brought up. In fact, Representative Charles A. Gifford (R., Mass.) touched off the verbal fireworks today with a demand that the house use its own judgment in deciding how much to appropriate.

"You have just heard the President term members of this house who favor local administration of the WPA as 'either insincere or ignorant,'" Gifford declared. "Let's answer this insult by using sanity in determining the amount of the appropriation and not blindly accepting the enormous sum mentioned by the President."

Gifford referred to the President's assertion that no one wished more sincerely than he that "the program for assisting unemployed workers shall be completely free from political manipulation."

"However, any one who proposes," the President added, "that this re-

DISCOVER COMPOUND TO FIGHT EFFECTS OF DREAD MUSTARD GAS

Geneva, N. Y., Jan. 5.—(AP)—A new chemical compound for virtually complete protection of soldiers and civilians against one of war's worst horrors, the burns of mustard gas, was announced today by officials of Hobart college.

Mustard gas, twenty years after the world war, still rates as the most effective poison gas. The new chemical, sprayed on clothing, is said to protect for months against its burns. The formula was not revealed. The discoverer is Dr. Ralph H. Bullard, professor of chemistry.

Because of its ability to cause burns, mustard gas has been used to saturate the ground to make areas of military importance temporarily untenable. Since the war it has been developed to remain active for weeks.

Neither water nor ordinary temperature have any effect on the new anti-mustard compound, and clothing may be cleaned without destroying its effectiveness. Mustard gas coming in contact with treated clothing immediately is neutralized and becomes harmless.

sult can be achieved by turning the administration of a work program over to local boards is either insincere or ignorant of the realities of local American politics."

Look to Democrat Support.
With Gifford's speech accepted as the keynote for Republican advocacy of an appropriation smaller than the $75 million, interest was attached to the support which Woodrum, a conservative Democrat, might be able to enlist in his fight for a lower amount.

If as many as fifty Democrats joined the 169 Republicans in favor of a reduced appropriation, they would have a majority of the house, it was pointed out, and Mr. Roosevelt would lose his first congressional battle of the session.

Chairman Woodrum was emphatic in criticizing the amount suggested by the President.

"That's a heap of money," he said. Opponents of the President's estimate pointed out that the appropriation is intended to carry the WPA through two months of winter and three months of spring and summer. In the latter period there is always a large seasonal decline in WPA enrollment as private industry picks up.

PLEDGE MILLION TO AID EUROPE'S RACIAL REFUGEES

Jews, Christians Launch Nation-Wide Drive.

Pledges totaling $1,000,000 for aiding racial refugees from Germany and other central and eastern European countries were announced last night at a dinner meeting in the Standard club sponsored by the Jewish Welfare fund. Chicago's quota in the campaign has been set at $200,000; that for the entire country $2,000,000.

More than 650 persons, Jews and Christians, attended the meeting, which launched the nation-wide drive. Allocation of the funds for relief and resettlement of the refugees will be made by the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, United Palestine Appeal, National Coordinating Committee for German Refugees, American Committee for Christian Refugees, and the Committee for Catholic Refugees from Germany.

Largest Pledge $75,000. Many of the pledges of funds had been received in the last few weeks. Formal announcement was withheld until last night and acted as a spur to others attending the dinner to make contributions. The largest individual pledge was $75,000. This donor promised another $25,000 conditional on the city's $200,000 quota being reached. There were several $50,000 pledges, others of $40,000 and $35,000, and hundreds of promises of lesser amounts.

The guest speaker at the meeting was James G. McDonald of Brooklyn, N. Y., former league of nations high commissioner for refugees. "The refugee problem is not primarily a Jewish one," McDonald said. "Catholics and Protestants are also involved in the atrocity campaign of the Nazis. But the Jews, as throughout history, are in the front line trenches facing the attack of racial persecution."

Set Different Example. "The Nazis have destroyed the Jews' means of livelihood in Germany, have terrorized them, driven them to death and expelled them. It is up to us to set a different example for the world."

"Another violence toward a Nazi official [such as the recent slaying of a German diplomat in Paris by a Jew, which touched off the latest Nazi anti-Semitic move] would be an excuse to the Nazis for mass murder of Jews. I was pessimistic of the fate of the Jews in Germany when Hitler came into power. I have remained pessimistic."

But remedies are appearing. One remedy is infiltration of Jews and other persecuted groups into countries, such as the United States, with quotas to absorb some of them. Another remedy is mass settlement of the Jews, possibly in countries like Tanganyika and British Guiana.

Money Needed for Fight. "All this requires money. Therefore this campaign has been started and response to it will be a holy thing. Sooner or later the persecuted peoples of today will stand at the graves of their persecutors."

Max Epstein, chairman of the special gifts committee of the Jewish Welfare fund, said Chicago's help to the campaign will be an example for the rest of the country.

"I sincerely hope," he said, "that the devotion and the generosity that the Chicago community—Christian and Jewish—has shown in the past to those who needed assistance will again bring to our efforts a successful culmination."

Mr. Epstein read a letter from Gov. Horner, who was unable to attend the meeting because of his illness in Florida.

Statement By Horner. "Thousands upon thousands of our co-religionists are living in what is a new Babylonian captivity," the governor wrote. "They are prisoners—aye, worse than prisoners. They are subjects of barter and exchange. They are the martyrs of a breakdown in civilizing forces among mankind. No matter what is done by way of money, the need is so great that, in a sense, it transcends whatever any of us can give."

Other speakers at the meeting included President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, Albert D. Lasker, former chairman of the United States Shipping board, and Attorney Herbert M. Lautmann, who is president of the Jewish Welfare fund.

IL DUCE SPURNS ROOSEVELT PLAN TO ASSIST JEWS

Refuses to Open Ethiopia for Refugees.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.] ROME, Jan. 5.—Premier Mussolini has turned down a proposal from President Roosevelt that he throw Ethiopia open to Jewish immigrants from Italy and other European countries, it was learned today. The proposal was submitted to Il Duce Tuesday by William Phillips, United States ambassador, in an hour's conference.

Mussolini not only refused to discuss the question, but refused to take up the matter with Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

The President's proposal was contained in a letter which Phillips brought back to Italy upon his return from a visit to the United States, and which he presented to Il Duce in their conference. As explained verbally by Phillips, the proposal did not contain a specific solution, but submitted certain suggestions, leaving to Mussolini the means of carrying them out.

Urged Approach to Hitler. Substantially, it suggested that Mussolini allow both Italian and foreign Jews—particularly those hit by recent drastic measures in Germany—to settle in Ethiopia. It urged that Mussolini use his personal influence to get Hitler's consideration for the plan.

Mr. Roosevelt's opinion, as believed to have been conveyed to Mussolini, was that emigrating Jews should be allowed to take with them sufficient capital to commence life anew. Ethiopia was suggested as a place where Jews might settle because it is still largely unexplored and foreign capital would hasten colonization.

Suggests U. S. Is Better. Phillips, it is understood, made clear, however, that the President would support any counterproposal which would give Jews means to live unmolested. Mr. Roosevelt, it was said, felt encouraged to make the appeal by the fact that on Oct. 6 the Fascist grand council of Italy held that it did not exclude the possibility of permitting the controlled emigration of European Jews into Ethiopia.

Mussolini, after hearing Phillips, smilingly suggested there were other countries where Jews could settle more easily than in Ethiopia. It was said that he cited Russia and Brazil. The best place of all, Il Duce added, was the United States. If that country, he said, were to increase the density of its population from the present forty-one per square mile to the Italian level of 355 per square mile it could accommodate about 1 billion more people than at present.

FRENCH SOCIAL PEACE PERILED BY NEW STRIKES

PARIS, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Strikes and lockouts today threatened to shatter France's hard won social peace both in the north where coal mine operators announced they would tear up agreements with 100,000 miners and in Paris where all movies were closed for the second successive day. The Coal Producers' association of department du Nord [north department] said low production figures forced them to cut wages and lengthen hours. Leaders of the miners termed the announcement a "slap in labor's face" and called a mass meeting at Douai for Monday to decide if and when they would strike.

Paris' movie lockout caused by new taxes on picture houses hurt city charities, which get a part of the receipts, but boosted box office receipts at legitimate theaters, music halls, and concert halls.

SURPRISE THRUST ROUTS REBELS IN SOUTHERN SPAIN

Loyalists Strike to Offset Foe's Catalanian Gain.

HENDAYE, France, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Success in a surprise offensive in southwestern Spain was reported by government troops tonight after the rebel campaign in the northeast had rolled through Borja Blancas, the second important rebel goal to fall in two days.

Dispatches from Valencia and Madrid said rebel forces were in full retreat in the Valsequillo sector of Estremadura and had lost thousands of dead and prisoners in a battle that began shortly after dawn. At the same time the rebels were conquering Borja Blancas, the southern key to the government defense lines in Catalonia.

Control Mountain Chain.

The Madrid and Valencia reports said the entire Noria chain of mountains had been captured and that the railroad line from Cabeza del Buey, 140 miles southwest of Madrid, to Belmez had been cut. Rebel resistance in the Noria mountains had collapsed, the government reported, when militiamen captured the strategic town of Papudo after six hours of hand-to-hand fighting.

The government attack in the southwest, designed to offset Gen. Francisco Franco's gains in Catalonia, hits the rebels on one of their weakest fronts, from which it had been reported Franco had withdrawn large numbers of troops for the offensive against Barcelona.

The tactics were a repetition of those by which the government halted Franco's drive on Valencia late last summer. Then, an equally surprising government attack on Gandia forced Franco to abandon a campaign against Valencia to clean out a pocket on the Ebro river.

Drives Three Salients.

The rebel command reported that it had followed up the occupation yesterday of Arisa, 65 miles northwest of Barcelona and heart of a highway network, with the conquest of Borja Blancas, 75 miles west of Barcelona.

From the lower Segre river, the jumping off point of the offensive that started on Dec. 23, Franco has thus driven three salients eastward—10 miles to Arisa, 15 miles to Borja Blancas, and 12 miles to Vinebre.

Rebel Fleet on Move.

VALENCIA, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Seven rebel warships, believed to be the backbone of Gen. Franco's fleet, were reported heading up the Spanish east coast today toward this port. It was believed the ships would be used to support the rebels' big drive in the northeast with bombardments from the sea.

Call Boys to Army.

BARCELONA, Jan. 5.—The Spanish government today called up boys not yet 18 years old to strengthen the forces defending Barcelona. The degree ordered mobilization of the military class of 1922 (men who will be 38 in 1939) and partial mobilization of the class of 1942 (young men who will be 18 this year). The latter mobilization, however, will not affect those whose eighteenth birthday falls after April, 1939.

Attack Weak Spot

(Story in adjoining column.)

Seeking to offset Gen. Franco's successes in Catalonia (1), Spanish loyalists yesterday launched a drive in the southwest (2), a sector weakened by the rebels' transfer of troops to the northeast.

The rebels yesterday captured Borja Blancas (indicated by arrow), a key point in the government defense line. Dotted line indicates the location of Gen. Franco's line when the offensive began on Dec. 23.

Arrow indicates the direction of the loyalists' surprise drive in the Valsequillo sector of southwestern Spain. The loyalists said they cut the railroad and seized control of a chain of mountains.

Vienna Permits Only 106 Jews in Practice of Law

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

VIENNA, Jan. 5.—An official announcement today said that 106 Jewish lawyers in Vienna will be allowed to continue their practice as representatives of Jews in German courts. Formerly 1,700 Jewish lawyers were practicing in Vienna.

Evanston Broker Reports Son, 16, Missing 2 Days

Thompson Hall, 16 years old, was reported missing to the police yesterday by his father, Miles J. Hall, 2823 Elgin road, Evanston, a stock broker. Hall said his son had not been seen since he left Wednesday morning for the Evanston Township High school where he is a freshman.

NEW TERRITORIES HAVE LIABILITIES, GERMANY LEARNS

Reich Adds Up Shortages in Several Lines.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—A striking light was thrown on Germany's economic position today by the annual survey issued by the state-owned Reich-Kredit-Gesellschaft.

The survey indirectly reveals how the absorption of Austria and the Sudetenland and the speeding up of armaments and fortifications have further exhausted available reserves of material, man power, and foreign exchange.

The extension of Germany's territories has increased this country's food deficit in regard to wheat alone by some 450,000 tons annually.

Timber Supply Low, Too.

Nor has Austria contributed anything to meeting Germany's timber deficit. Her cuttings are just sufficient to cover her own requirements and to fulfill her long term contracts with Italy and Hungary. Moreover, Austria was responsible for more than half of greater Germany's passive trade balance of $180,000,000 in the last year.

Germany complains that she is a "nation without territory," but the Reich-Kredit review shows that owing to the labor shortage the number of female workers has been increased from 4,700,000 in 1933 to 6,300,000 in 1938—despite early Nazi assertions that the woman's place is in the home.

Germany in the last year had to import 120,000 farm laborers—mostly Italians—and 6,000 Italian building workers are employed on such national projects as the Hermann Wilhelm Goering steel works and the gigantic "people's car" factory.

Need More and More Money.

Another consequence of the strain to which the government's policy has submitted the German financial structure was the failure of the attempt made last March at a transition to more conservative methods of financing public undertakings.

This failure took place despite the fact that tax receipts in 1938 approx-

Poland's Future to Be Affected.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 5.—Government circles in Warsaw tonight admitted that Poland's immediate future will be affected vitally by today's meeting between Foreign Minister Josef Beck of Poland and Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany.

The possibility of Poland's withdrawal from the league of nations was said to have been considered. It was believed also that Col. Beck offered Hitler a military alliance in return for Hitler's abandonment of a plan to create an independent Ukraine, which would cost Poland a large section of territory.

Ciano Arranges Parley.

Beck had sought the meeting with Hitler since November. Reports were that it finally was arranged through intervention of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister. Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, was expected to visit Warsaw in mid-January, with Count Ciano arriving less than a month later.

Ciano's visit was considered a move to emphasize to France the growing Polish-Italian cordiality at a time when France's relations with Italy are strained. The cause of this friction is Italy's agitation for possession of French territory—namely Tunisia in North Africa.

A foreign office spokesman was asked how Poland could reconcile Ciano's visit to Warsaw with the Polish-French military alliance. He explained that there is nothing in the alliance committing Poland to help France defend its colonies.

Shoots Himself as Seven Look On; Condition Serious

Leo Smolinski, 38 years old, shot himself in the head last night in the presence of his mother-in-law and six patrons in her tavern at 1345 North Paulina street. Smolinski walked behind the bar, announced, "I don't want to live any more," picked up a revolver, and fired. He was taken to the County hospital. His condition is serious. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Jasinski, told police he had been depressed over unemployment.

ADVERTISING MEN OF TRIBUNE HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Reward Head of Printers for Long Service.

Members of THE TRIBUNE's advertising department held their annual banquet last night at the Drake hotel.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, congratulated them on their efforts during the year, then reminded them that the success of the newspaper has been the result of coordinated effort by all departments, employing the best men available and using the most modern machinery that profits of the business can buy.

A special guest at the banquet was Leo Loewenberg, superintendent of THE TRIBUNE's composing room, who is retiring next month after forty-six years' service. Members of the advertising department presented a watch to him in recognition of his cooperation for many years on advertising problems.

"A Typical Tribune Man." Of Mr. Loewenberg, Col. McCormick said:

"He is a typical TRIBUNE man, skillful and loyal, graduating on his own motion, to sit in judgment on the next generation of Tribune men and hold them to the same high standards that he kept."

Col. McCormick recalled that the year Mr. Loewenberg went to work on THE TRIBUNE, 1893, also saw his own earliest services on the newspaper.

After congratulating the advertising men for their display of enterprise, energy, and courage during a discouraging year, Col. McCormick gave his theory as to the success of this newspaper.

Best in All Departments. "In every branch of the newspaper we have the best men," he said, "in the news and advertising departments, composers, stereotypers, pressmen, electricians. This extends even beyond the Tribune plant, to the paper mills, to a fleet of ships that is at the top of merchant fleets on the Great Lakes, even deep in the forests, where choppers and Indians are proud to say they belong to our organization."

"There is a pride of service not to be found elsewhere, all the way to the top. We would look on an executive who used THE TRIBUNE to advance himself financially, or an editor who used THE TRIBUNE to advance himself politically, exactly as we would on a cashier who took money or a reporter who took a bribe."

REVEAL COSTER'S OWN ACTION LED TO HIS EXPOSURE

New York, Jan. 5. (Special.)—Philip Musica, exposed swindler, brought crashing down about his own ears the huge structure of McKesson & Robbins he had built up under the name of F. Donald Coster. This was revealed today by Thomas J. Spellacy, mayor of Hartford.

The equity receivership for which Mayor Spellacy moved in Hartford on Dec. 5, ultimately revealing the fraud and dual life that caused Musica to kill himself, was obtained at Coster's behest and in accordance with threats he had made to directors who were opposing him. This was explained by Mayor Spellacy when he testified at the public hearing being conducted by Assistant Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall.

MRS. GAW WANTS US ALL TO KNOW SHE IS KIND TO HER 7 CATS

The three kittens dragged into Mrs. Robert Gaw's home at 3105 Mango avenue, after burglars left the door open Tuesday night, are doing splendidly. Mrs. Gaw reported yesterday. She thought the people who are writing her letters would want to know. Jill, the mother cat who has been in the Gaw home for four years, had kept her kittens under a neighbor's porch. When she spied the open door after the burglars left, she concluded apparently that it was time to bring the babies home. Publication of this news brought letters from the Chicago Humane Educational Society, Inc., and other cat lovers, informing Mrs. Gaw was cruel to leave the kittens out in the cold.

"I'm so busy caring for our cats I haven't time to answer the letters," said Mrs. Gaw yesterday. "However, I'd like the writers to know we had Jill's mother for eleven years and two months. We have Jill's two children by a former romance, and in addition we've got a stray cat that was sleeping on the davenport when the burglars came in and took $15. And we love all of them."

RETAILERS SIGN WAGE PACT WITH GROCERY CLERKS

A one year contract covering 10,000 grocery clerks and providing wage increases and reduction in working hours has been signed by the Community Retail Stores association and the Grocery Clerks' union, local 1248. Michael Pollack, secretary of the union, announced the contract yesterday.

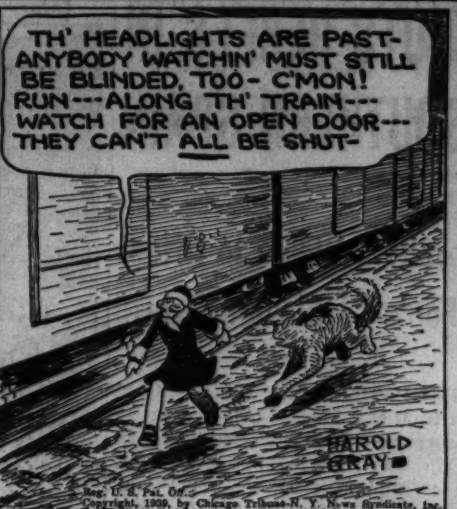

The stores association has 3,400 members in Chicago and Cook county. The contract continues the $20 a week minimum wage for male clerks regularly employed, but reduces their working hours from fifty-seven to forty-eight a week. The minimum pay for women clerks regularly employed is raised from $16 to $18 a week.

The minimum for extra men is raised from 40 to 45 cents an hour, and for extra women from 40 to 45 cents an hour. Sidney Libit, attorney for the association, said the contract provides for arbitration of disputes and forbids strikes. The clerks' union is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

40,000 in Cook County Getting Old Age Pensions

Approximately 40,000 persons in Cook county are receiving old age pensions, Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare, announced yesterday. The January checks, now being mailed from Springfield, average $23.41 per person. The maximum is $30 per month.

FRANCE TO BUILD MORE FORTS TO GUARD TUNISIA

Premier Departs for Algeria on Tour.

TUNIS, Tunisia, Jan. 5. (AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier of France said tonight Tunisia's heavy military defenses facing Italian Libya would be strengthened further to make this French North African protectorate "invulnerable."

The premier, completing a three day inspection of the frontier fortifications, expressed "complete confidence" that Tunisia was secure against any attack. In a conference with army and air chiefs he gave assurances that the work of bolstering the territory's defenses would be increased. Details of the additional armament were not disclosed, however.

Departs Amid Cheers. The premier remained in Tunis less than an hour and then proceeded to the Bizerte naval base, where he boarded the cruiser Foch for Algiers, next stop on his colonial tour.

He departed from Bizerte to the cheers of thousands of natives. The ship's sirens shrieked, church bells rang, and military bands blared the Marseillaise, French national anthem.

From the Foch, Daladier sent a telegram to Erik Labonne, French resident general in Tunisia, declaring that "before an attentive world audience the Tunisian people have affirmed themselves inflexibly attached to their destiny as members of the great French community."

Natives Pledge Loyalty. When Daladier returned by train this morning from the "desert Maginot line" of defenses in southern Tunisia, he received pledges of loyalty from many native chieftains. With their followers they gathered at the stations where the train stopped.

Thousands of natives yelled "Vive la France!" and their emissaries bore many gifts to the visiting premier.

In Sfax, a seaport on the edge of the Tunisian desert, the local caid, representing the bey of Tunis, who is the sovereign under the French protectorate, presented a silver olive branch, symbolic of Tunisia's "desire for union and peace."

Daladier replied that "union with Tunisia" was vital to France. His visit to Tunisia, coming on the heels of unofficial Italian clamor for concessions from the French empire, was designed to solidify that union.

PENALIZED FOR SETTING FIRE. Two boys who confessed setting fire to a barn in Oak Park, were ordered yesterday to report to the juvenile officer weekly for six months. They are Donald Mellin, 1151 Lake street, Oak Park, and Edward Jackson, 335 Gale avenue, River Forest, each 12 years old.

ITALY REJECTS FRENCH WRITER WHO JEERED AT ITALIANS IN SPAIN

(Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.)

MARSEILLES, France, Jan. 5.—Because it was charged he had written newspaper articles uncompromisingly to her soldiers in rebel Spain, Italy today refused to allow the newly elected French academician, Jerome Tharaud, to pass through the country on his way by plane to Djibouti as special correspondent for the Paris Soir.

Arriving at Genoa with a through ticket to the French Somaliland capital and an Italian visa from the Paris consulate in order, Tharaud was taken out of the plane and conducted to Vintimille on the Franco-Italian frontier in company with two detectives after having been held in custody at Genoa prison for three hours. Tharaud has arrived here and will now go to Djibouti by steamer.

RUSSIA FORGIVES; FLYING ENGINEER TAKES WIFE HOME

MOSCOW, Jan. 5. (AP)—Romantic-minded Muscovites beamed benevolently tonight on the departure of a British Lochinvar-engineer and the Russian-born wife he claimed by a daring airplane flight from Stockholm.

The Briton, Bryan Grover, and his wife, the former Eleanora Petrovna, reunited after a four year separation, took a train for Warsaw and Berlin, en route to London. Representatives of the British embassy and several other foreigners saw them off.

Soviet officialdom had revoked that part of its punishment for Grover which provided for six weeks in jail, pronounced Dec. 31 because he made the unauthorized flight to reach his wife. He was ordered to pay a $300 fine and made subject to a five-year expulsion order, however.

HOLD ORTHODOX CHRISTMAS EVE RITUALS TONIGHT

Christmas eve services will be held tonight in most of the orthodox churches, with the festival continuing for three days. In most Greek orthodox churches Christmas was observed Dec. 25, in keeping with the Gregorian calendar. But for the sake of the old people many Greek homes tonight will observe Christmas eve.

LEGION LEADERS MAP PLANS FOR 1939 CONVENTION

Newly appointed executives of the American Legion 1939 Convention corporation of Chicago met yesterday for the first time in their headquarters in the Morrison hotel. They began discussing plans for the convention next fall that will bring 250,000 Legionnaires to town.

Col. A. A. Sprague is president. Other officers are Philip W. Collins, executive vice president; Joseph F. Novotny and Mrs. Mabel Pantelis, vice presidents; Joseph L. De La Cour, secretary; James B. Forgan, treasurer; Clarence E. Cross, assistant treasurer, and William Vaughn, counsel.

Other officials, members of the finance and executive committee, are Joseph F. Bernhard, James P. Ringley, Paul G. Armstrong, Lawrence Fenlon, Lawrence McGann, Edward F. McGinnis, and Perce F. Brautigam.

Shetland Folk Celebrate Christmas by Old Calendar

LONDON, Jan. 5. (AP)—The remote Shetland Islanders north of Scotland celebrated Christmas today, while most other Britons removed their holiday garlands.

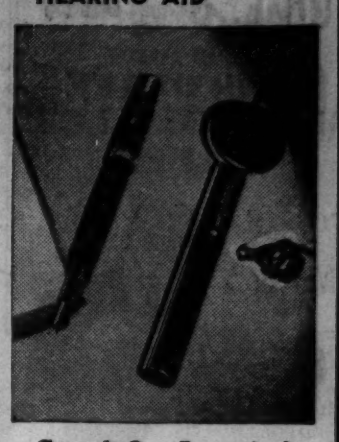

The islanders have chugging sturdily to the old Julian calendar, refusing to accept that of Pope Gregory, which most of the world has used for nearly two centuries.

Christmas, old style, of the world has used for nearly two centuries.

PONDER CHOICES FOR LEGISLATIVE CHAIRMANSHIPS

Cross Has 40 to Award;
Maypole 35 in Senate.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Springfield, Ill., Jan. 5.—(Special.)

—Presiding officers of the Illinois legislature today began the delicate job of distributing political plums in the form of committee chairmanships.

Speaker Hugh Cross, a Republican, has about 40 chairmanships to award among the 79 Republicans who elected him to the house roster when the sixty-first biennial session convened yesterday.

George M. Maypole, president pro tempore of the senate, has 35 chairmanships to bestow upon the 31 Democrats in the upper chamber.

Republicans May Be Honored.
One or two Republicans will be honored with a minor chairmanship unless Senator Maypole decides to double the distinction for a few of the majority members.

Most important of the senate chairmanships is that of the executive committee, which passes upon resolutions and often decides floor strategy. Although Maypole could have this post if he wanted it, it appeared probable that it will be given to a democrat. Senator R. Wallace Karraker of Jonesboro appeared to be the leading candidate.

Harold G. Ward of Chicago, Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, is slated for his old post as head of the judiciary committee where much of the important legislation is considered.

Third Major Chairmanship.
The third big chairmanship is that of appropriations, and Maypole faces a hard decision in filling it. Senator W. E. C. Clifford of Champaign held this job last session.

Senator Nicholas L. Hubbard of Mt. Pulaski, however, is a Horner adherent, and both he and Clifford are under consideration for appointments. Regulation of the booming oil fields in southern Illinois will be considered by a new committee which Maypole said would be composed of senators from districts in the field. Oil legislation promises to be one of the major questions before the session, since Illinois now produces more than 20 million barrels annually.

Maypole will announce the senate chairmanships on Monday. Speaker Cross may have a few of the house committees late next week.

ASK MONGOVEN INDICTMENT ON U. S. GUN CHARGE

Assistant United States Attorney Harry N. Connaughton yesterday asked the federal grand jury to indict Leo Mongoven, prohibition era gangster, on charges of illegal possession of firearms under the national firearms act of 1934. A raid by Lake county officials on Mongoven's summer home at Bluff Lake in Lake county last week uncovered 24 guns and 5,000 rounds of ammunition. The government charges that the guns have barrels under the 18 inch limit provided by law, that they were not registered and that serial numbers had been filed off. Mongoven is being sought.

HANGS SELF IN HOME.
John Clauson, 55 years old, 1148 Sedwick street, hanged himself in his home yesterday. His wife, Pauline, told police he had been out of work and in ill health.

Bond Stores Stress Service, Style, Quality

Back of the unusually efficient and friendly service which characterizes all Bond stores is the very close harmony existing between store personnel and management. Undoubtedly, this feature, which has been a marked part of the Bond policy ever since the doors of the first store opened many years ago, is responsible for a large part of the success of this popular clothing chain.

All Angles Considered.
Naturally, the quality of the merchandise itself—the extremely low prices—the constant effort to achieve the utmost in style at a minimum cost—the constant improvement shown each year in Bond quality and Bond's famous deferred payment plans of buying are the primary and fundamental causes of Bond's tremendous growth. Nevertheless the happy and congenial feeling which exists between all Bond workers and executives is reflected in many additional benefits and advantages to the customer. It alone is instrumental for the "at-home" feeling of satisfaction which comes from trading at a Bond store.

Bonds Pay Bonus.
Within the last few years, the local management in each of the five Chicago Bond stores has made it their specific business to hire presentable young men with unusual possibilities and develop them, not only as intelligent salesmen with warm, friendly personalities, but as citizens working for the general good and interests of the community. At the close of 1938, everybody in the Bond organization whether they were employed in the sales force, the office, service departments or tailor shops, received a substantial bonus even in cases where the length of service was as little as two months. Working conditions including wages have been made as fair and equitable as possible in maintaining high standards within the institution.

Customers Benefit.
It is only rational to assume that such conditions go a long way toward a better selling of clothing and to that feeling of satisfaction with every purchase which Bond's insist upon. True it is only human to err and over a period of months a mistake may happen. It is the desire, however, of the management to rectify all errors to the best interest of all concerned whenever it is humanly possible. Undoubtedly this accounts in a big way for the millions of men who buy and wear Bond clothes year after year.

Quality Never Overlooked.
With two great factories, fully owned and controlled by the Bond organization, it is the constant aim and achievement to make Bond clothes the best values in the land for the money . . . and values as defined at Bond's mean quality as well as style. A force of expert wool buyers, expert designers and expert tailors is maintained continually to bring Bond customers attractive long wearing fabrics made up into the latest designs as featured at all the leading style centers for men—and all at a price within the reach of every income.

Charge Accounts Made Easy.
To make it still easier for everybody to enjoy the advantages of Bond suits and overcoats, the Chicago Bond stores recently developed a new deferred payment plan whereby the cost of any purchase may be split into three monthly payments. Now any merchandise purchases before Jan. 25 can be paid for in three small instalments extending over three months or to be specific, on Feb. 10, March 10, and April 10. Sales figures show that already this new plan has brought many new customers to the Bond stores. Also the regular ten weeks payment plan for which Bond's is famous, is still in force and is used by thousands of men. No carrying charges are added in either case.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S 1940 FISCAL YEAR BUDGET MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The text of President Roosevelt's budget message to congress follows:

"Pursuant to provisions of law, I transmit herewith the budget of the United States government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940, together with this message, which is an integral part thereof. The estimates in this budget are based upon a continuation of all taxes now in force and upon a careful analysis of the existing obligations and future needs of the government. I, therefore, recommend appropriations for the purposes specifically detailed in the tables which follow.

THE BUDGET AND THE NATIONAL INCOME

"Taxation yields almost all of the income of the government, leaving less than 5 per cent to come from miscellaneous sources. Revenue from taxes depends mainly on two factors: the rate of taxation and the total of the national income. This holds true not only of direct taxes on personal and corporate income but also of what are known as ad valorem taxes or other forms of indirect taxes, for the very good reason that the volume and value of goods produced or articles imported vary with the rise or fall of the national income.

"We can and do fix the rate of taxation definitely by law. We cannot by a simple legislative act raise the level of national income, but our experience in the last few years has amply demonstrated that through wise fiscal policies and other acts of government we can do much to stimulate it.

"Today the nation's income is in the neighborhood of 60 billion dollars a year. A few years ago it was much lower. It is our belief that it ought to be much higher.

"In order that you may know the amount of revenue which the government may expect under the existing tax structure as the national income rises, the following table is submitted. It shows the estimated revenues which may be derived when national income reaches certain levels between 70 billion and 90 billion dollars.

"Estimated Federal Receipts by Principal Sources at Certain Assumed Levels of National Income Based on December, 1938, Tax Rates:

Income taxes	2.5	3.0	3.5
Miscellaneous internal revenue	2.2	2.5	3.1
Customs	4	5	7
Miscellaneous receipts	2	2	2
Pay roll taxes	7	8	9

Total 6.8 8.0 10.6

"The table is not intended to indicate the national income for any particular year and, of necessity, the estimates are rough and may vary somewhat either way. Since taxes are paid from one month to fifteen months after income is realized, the achievement of a 90 billion dollar national income in one year will not, for instance, mean tax collections of 10 billion dollars in that same year. This table is an indicator and not a gauge.

"Expenditures Exceed Income. "During the last nine fiscal years—a period which has seen the national income drop from a high of 81 billion dollars in the calendar year 1929 to around 40 billion dollars in 1932 and rise again to about 70 billion dollars in 1937—federal revenues, even though on a higher tax base, have never completely covered expenditures.

"We require continual study of the revenues necessary to carry on the normal functions of the federal government and of the role which various policy should play in the stabilization of the national economy.

"This study includes a consideration of: (a) the practicability of reclassifying expenditures on a functional basis and the most appropriate methods of financing the different classifications; (b) the problem of human security, including relief and its costs; and (c) the correlation between national income on the one hand and government receipts and expenditures on the other.

"ORDINARY EXPENDITURES. "The expenditure side of a budget may be divided into two major classes, namely—ordinary, which includes the operating expenditures for the normal and continuing functions of government, and extraordinary, which includes those expenditures required to meet the nonoperating or unusual costs of government.

"General public works of an annual recurring nature may fall in either class, but in view of their flexibility they have been classified as extraordinary for the purpose of this statement.

"An accompanying table shows that the excess of expenditures over revenues in the ordinary classification is attributable to various causes: new functions undertaken; more carrying charges on the national debt; and at lower interest rates; and the inauguration of the social security and agricultural programs. Under all of these classifications new expenditures have been added without corresponding increases in taxes.

"Fixed Costs Increased. "Fixed costs have also increased because of numerous new appropriations for grants and subsidies.

"Another type of expenditure has been forced upon us in increasing volume by the real necessity for expanding our national defense. We are all aware of the grave and unsettling developments in the field of international relations during the past few years. Because of the conditions of modern warfare, we must now perform in advance tasks that formerly could be postponed until war had become imminent. A large part of additional national defense expenditures should, I think, be put in a special category on a temporary basis.

"The operating expenses of the government have also increased because of reductions in the hours of work of certain classes of federal employees, and because of expansion of the normal functions of the government with the growth of the country.

"Points to Farm Aid Costs. "Among the new governmental functions which have added to the costs of the ordinary budget the farm program is outstanding. Soil conservation expenditures and other outlays for the crop adjustment program which are of a continuing nature and produce no direct return to the fed-

"The expenditure side of a budget may be divided into two major classes, namely—ordinary, which includes the operating expenditures for the normal and continuing functions of government, and extraordinary, which includes those expenditures required to meet the nonoperating or unusual costs of government.

"General public works of an annual recurring nature may fall in either class, but in view of their flexibility they have been classified as extraordinary for the purpose of this statement.

"An accompanying table shows that the excess of expenditures over revenues in the ordinary classification is attributable to various causes: new functions undertaken; more carrying charges on the national debt; and at lower interest rates; and the inauguration of the social security and agricultural programs. Under all of these classifications new expenditures have been added without corresponding increases in taxes.

"Fixed Costs Increased. "Fixed costs have also increased because of numerous new appropriations for grants and subsidies.

"Another type of expenditure has been forced upon us in increasing volume by the real necessity for expanding our national defense. We are all aware of the grave and unsettling developments in the field of international relations during the past few years. Because of the conditions of modern warfare, we must now perform in advance tasks that formerly could be postponed until war had become imminent. A large part of additional national defense expenditures should, I think, be put in a special category on a temporary basis.

"The operating expenses of the government have also increased because of reductions in the hours of work of certain classes of federal employees, and because of expansion of the normal functions of the government with the growth of the country.

"Points to Farm Aid Costs. "Among the new governmental functions which have added to the costs of the ordinary budget the farm program is outstanding. Soil conservation expenditures and other outlays for the crop adjustment program which are of a continuing nature and produce no direct return to the fed-

CHICAGO MAKES PROGRESS IN WAR AGAINST SYPHILIS

a New Record.

Chicago made progress last year in preventing the spread of syphilis. More than 300,000 persons were tested for the disease—an all time record—and 18,497 cases were reported under treatment.

These figures were made public yesterday in the annual venereal disease report of the board of health. The report, covering the second year of Chicago's syphilis control campaign, showed a 330 per cent increase in the volume of blood tests made by the city laboratory and a 44 per cent increase in the number of syphilis cases reported by city and private clinics and by private physicians.

Shows Result of Campaign.
The following table shows the result of the campaign in the last three years:

Year	Cases reported	City tests
1936	9,544	61,787
1937	12,786	116,968
1938	18,497	302,479

Public health officials emphasized that the increase in cases reported did not represent a greater prevalence of syphilis but an uncovering of a portion of the persons who were unaware of their infection.

The number of individuals tested was placed at somewhat less than 352,479 inasmuch as tests are repeated on persons brought under treatment. Diagnostic tests were classified separately in the last six months, however, and it was found that of 187,579 tested during that time 15,446, or 8.2 per cent, had syphilis.

140,047 Volunteer for Tests.

In answer to the board of health's offer for free and secret tests for every one, 140,047 persons volunteered for tests by city physicians during the year. Industrial groups, which comprised the major portion of this group, had a syphilis rate of about 3 per cent. In addition 37,233 visited neighborhood stations, 2,888, or 7.7 per cent, of them having syphilis symptoms.

The municipal clinic reported more syphilis cases under treatment than all other clinics and physicians combined. The physicians, however, showed huge increases over previous years.

The number of infectious cases reported by all sources dropped from 1,899 in 1937 to 1,847 in 1938, despite the 44 per cent increase in the total case volume. This was taken as an indication that headway is being made against the disease.

$2,445,666 IS LOW BID FOR SECOND SUBWAY SECTION

Philip Harrington, city subway commissioner, yesterday received eight bids for the construction of the second section of the State street subway.

The lowest bid was entered by M. J. Boyle & Co., 1744 North Mozart street. It bid $2,445,666 for the 3,810 foot section in Clybourn avenue between Goethe street and Concord place. One station is included in this section, at the junction of North and Clybourn avenues and Halsted street.

For this sum the company will bind itself to excavate the twin subway tunnels and build the concrete walls. Construction of the mezzanine station will be done later under a separate contract.

The first section of the subway in State street between Illinois street and Bellevue place is now under construction. Harrington said he will study the bids over the next two or three days before making the award.

FOUND HANGED IN CELL.

At Tax Trial

MRS. SYLVIA ZIMMERMAN.

Mrs. Sylvia Zimmerman testified yesterday as a defense witness for her husband, Abraham F. Zimmerman, reputed head of a nationwide lottery ring. Zimmerman is on trial before a jury and Federal Judge Philip Sullivan on charge of evading $68,670 in taxes on a gross income from lotteries of $411,916 during 1932, 1933, and 1934.

Mrs. Zimmerman said that they were married in 1933 and that throughout that year her husband made his home in Chicago. The defense contends that the present prosecution is barred by the statute of limitations. The government asserts that Zimmerman was a resident of New York city in 1933 and that as he was outside the jurisdiction of the federal court in Chicago at that time, the statute of limitations does not apply.

The case is now in its fourth week. The government completed its evidence Wednesday.

STADIUM OFFICIAL IN COURT TODAY IN BEATING CASE

Arthur M. Wirtz, vice president of the Chicago Stadium, surrendered to Capt. Charles McGurn of the Warren avenue police yesterday on a warrant charging disorderly conduct and being an accessory to assault and battery. He posted $50 bond for his appearance in Des Plaines street court today.

The warrant was obtained by Alvin R. Katz, an attorney at 30 North La Salle street. Wirtz is president of the company sponsoring the skating tour of Sonja Henie, who ended her engagement at the Stadium Dec. 31. On Dec. 29 Katz went to the Lake Shore Drive hotel as attorney for the plaintiff in a $5,000,000 plagiarism suit in which Miss Henie is a defendant, to see that a summons was served on her.

Katz charged that after he and Wirtz conferred four sluggers appeared and threw him out of the hotel.

8 JURORS PICKED IN BUGS MORAN FORGERY TRIAL

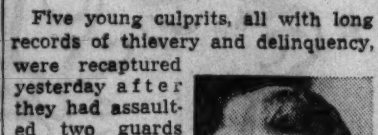

Only eight jurors had been chosen yesterday at the end of the third day's session of the trial in Criminal court of George [Bugs] Moran and two co-defendants. They are charged with conspiracy to forge fake bonds and money orders. It was expected that the jury would be completed today.

Despite Moran's notoriety in prohibition days, only one of forty-five prospective jurors examined yesterday had ever heard of him. Moran's co-defendants are Frank Hicketts, alias Ross, an ex-convict, and Frank Parker, one-time airplane bootlegger.

RECAPTURE FIVE FUGITIVES FROM REFORM SCHOOL

24 Escapes in Last Year
at St. Charles.

W. T. Harmon.

Five young culprits, all with long records of thievery and delinquency, were recaptured yesterday after they had assaulted two guards and escaped Wednesday night from the state school for boys at St. Charles.

There were twenty-four escapes from the school last year. Discussing them, W. T. Harmon, managing officer of the institution, said that the only bar to them is the vigilance of the personnel. The school is fenceless and buildings have only ordinary hardware store locks.

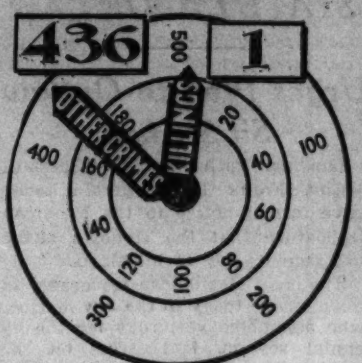

Built for Dependent Boys.
Built originally as a home for dependent boys, on land given the state by John W. Gates, the school was transformed almost as soon as it was opened to a corrective institution. Between 25 and 30 per cent of the 598 boys now confined there have real criminal tendencies, and the facilities are unsuitable for their detention, Harmon said.

"Our hands are tied here," he said. "We have nothing to do with the commitments and have to take whoever is sent to us." The five who escaped and were recaptured, with their records at the institution and before commitment, were:

BENNY CEFUSKI, 18 years old. Committed for auto theft; previously appeared in juvenile court three times and was held in the county jail and juvenile detention home at different times; escaped from St. Charles five days after his arrival, and has been placed in the disciplinary cottage five times for infractions of rules.

ALTON HEYMAN, 18 years old, colored. Committed for theft of a bicycle.

THE CRIME CLOCK Chicago's Record Since Jan. 1

"Half of all the crimes in Cook county are committed by repeaters."—The Chicago Crime Commission.

escaped the day following his arrival at the home; eight terms in the disciplinary cottage.

LEO MOORE, alias Gilbert, 20 years old, colored. Sentenced for theft of a bicycle; paroled in 1937 and returned for parole violation; two appearances in juvenile court, four times in detention home, one in county jail; in disciplinary cottage five times.

CHESTER TORRENCE, 20 years old, of La Harpe, Hancock county. Sentenced for theft; four county jail terms previously; escaped and recaptured five times previously.

REUBEN WILLIAMS, 19 years old, colored. Sentenced for breaking windows; twenty-two times in disciplinary cottage, once for assaulting one of the officers in the boys' self-government organization with an iron spike.

Slug Guard, Smash Door.
All of the prisoners except Torrence were committed from Cook county. They were washing their socks in the basement of the disciplinary cottage Wednesday night after a day spent shoveling coal. One of them pulled a light switch, supposed to be locked.

In the darkness one of the five suggested Charles Murphy, an attendant, with a washboard. They ran upstairs, smashed their way through a door, bowled over another attendant, Earl Lewis, and ran out into the fog in their stocking feet. Arnold J. Rauen, assistant managing officer, and a pair of guards recaptured them yesterday.

Shortly after the escape John Clark, colored, sent another prisoner, 15 years old, to the hospital at the home because the younger boy had disclosed another escape plan in which Clark was involved. Clark, who is 18 years old, is 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 162 pounds. He caught the smaller boy in the assembly hall and beat him unmercifully. Clark was sent to the home last February after six arrests by police and five juvenile court appearances in Chicago.

Judge Criticizes Home.
Failure of the St. Charles home to provide better precaution against escapes was criticized yesterday by Judge Frank H. Block of the Cook county juvenile court, before whom more than half of the inmates have appeared.

"Many of the boys sent there have serious records," said Judge Block. "The home is a correctional, not a penal institution, and a boy who escapes feels that he has to make good with the tough gang into whose company he usually falls. As an escaped prisoner, he embarks on more serious crime to keep up his reputation as a big shot."

There also should be a system of segregation between minor offenders and boys of serious criminal tendencies. The law permits the commitment of dependent boys, and some downstate judges have been sending boys to the home whose only offense is poverty."

Bank Robbery True Bill Is Voted Against Woman

Mrs. Mary McCollum Schuch, 36 years old, was reported named by the grand jury yesterday in a true bill charging robbery of the Drexel State bank, 3944 Cottage Grove avenue, Mrs. Schuch, an unemployed nurse, was arrested in the bank on Dec. 21 after she had forced officials to give her $5,000 by threatening to blow up the bank.

A LESSON IN BUYOLOGY

By CALEB

"LET me tell you an everyday story," said the trim, gray-haired lady from the millinery section, "that illustrates what I mean by 'missing a bet' in salesmanship."

"Into my place, one October day, came a man and his wife and two daughters, from Iowa. I didn't know them personally, of course, but had the pleasure professionally of fitting all three women in modish headwear. Just as they were about to leave, I engaged them in a few minutes' general conversation, and asked if there were other articles they would like to see while in Field's—also, could I help direct them to the proper place and people for service?"

"There were other articles they wanted—coats, first of all—and they would welcome such assistance. So I explained locations, told them to ask for Miss So-and-So, in each instance, and sent them on their way."

"To make a long story short, that quartette of out-of-town visitors purchased over seven hundred dollars' worth of merchandise; personally sought out a store executive, and commended the thoughtfulness shown in learning their further wants and sending them on to specific salespeople for expert attention...."

"That sort of thing is not so much salesmanship, really, as it is 'buyology.' It doesn't stop with the satisfactory completion of a single purchase. It makes one sale the foundation for other sales, by ascertaining what further needs may be met in other lines, and then helping the customer find those other lines, in place of aimlessly wandering and asking. With myself, this is a settled habit.... and you never know, either, when you are, so to speak, 'entertaining angels unawares.' In the instance I have mentioned, that family from Iowa proved to be old friends of one of our officials: so you see his reputation was involved in that contact, as well as the store's and my own."

Viewing all such person-to-person relations in any business as human rather than merely commercial in their essence, makes the real difference pointed out in the episode above. It is a difference, mainly, if not wholly, of interest. One brand of interest focuses on "a sale"; the other and more satisfying type focuses on rendering a sincere service to the buyer.

CHINA WAR MUST GO ON, JAPS' NEW CABINET ORDERS

Mikado Installs Ministry with Four Changes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
TOKIO, Jan. 5.—The Japanese army "will make every effort to achieve its objectives in China," War Minister Lieutenant General Seishiro Itagaki, declared tonight immediately after the new cabinet of Premier Baron Kichiro Hiranuma was installed by Emperor Hirohito.

Premier Hiranuma issued a statement saying "the nation is facing a situation of unprecedented difficulties and all the national energies will be devoted to attainment of the objectives of our crusade."

The "objectives" are the bases of the Japanese plan for a "new order in east Asia." The objectives include the continued occupation of principal cities in China, the establishment of a Chinese government cooperating with Japan, and an alliance of China, Japan, and Manchukuo.

Adds Four New Ministers.
Baron Hiranuma completed his cabinet with only four new ministers, retaining all key ministers of the old cabinet except Seishiro Itagaki, who was finance minister, and Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu, who was home minister. Prince Fumimaro Kono, who headed the outgoing cabinet, was retained as minister without portfolio and was made president of the privy council, the post which Hiranuma held before becoming premier.

The new ministers are: Sotaro Ishiwatari, finance; Yukio Sakuruchi, agriculture; Yonezo Maeda, railways, and Hisatada Hirose, welfare.

Ishiwatari and Hirose formerly were vice ministers. At first it was announced that Chuji Machida, the president of the Minseito party, would take the agriculture post. But the party requested that Sakuruchi, the party's advisor, assume the post in his stead.

Reliable sources believed the new cabinet would be more outspoken than its predecessor in resisting United States contentions against Japan's policy in China. This was based on the fact that military elements were especially impatient over American and British protests concerning their rights in China, were more firmly entrenched under Baron Hiranuma.

Battle in Progress.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Japanese and Chinese forces were disclosed by delayed dispatches reaching here today to have been locked in bitter fighting for days in a vast semi-circle along the Hupeh-Honan border roughly 100 miles northeast of Hankow. It was reported that large Chinese army units were scattered through the Taipei mountains opposing Japanese efforts to widen the strip they held along the north bank of the Yangtze river.

Daily and nightly skirmishes and battles are going on along an irregular line, extending all the way from Hwangmei, about 135 miles east of Hankow, to Loshan, 120 miles north of Hankow. At some points the line is only a few miles from the Yangtze.

ORDER ENGINEER TO PAY ALIMONY OF $450 MONTHLY

Judge Robert C. O'Connell yesterday awarded Mrs. Elsie W. Bosch, 5555 Sheridan road, temporary alimony of $450 a month from Joseph Bosch, a retired mining engineer. Mrs. Bosch is suing for divorce charging cruelty.

The judge upheld the recommendation of Master in Chancery W. R. Swisher, who found that Bosch has good assets of $510,000. Mrs. Bosch said this was an inheritance. Lawyers for Bosch and Mrs. Bosch had objected to the master's finding.

The Bosches were married in May, 1930. On Oct. 6, 1933, Mrs. Bosch won a divorce and a $15,000 settlement. They were remarried on June 1, 1934, and separated last Aug. 1.

MRS. SOPHIE BALIGA.

Box of soap flakes for which Mrs. Baliga paid $2,000, believing it contained drugs which she could sell at profit to a doctor.

At 10 a. m. yesterday Mrs. Sophie Baliga, 50 years old, a widow and the mother of four children, had $2,000. It was the insurance she collected after the death of her husband. At noon two strangers had her funds.

The men, calling themselves Mr. Adams and Mr. Anewski, persuaded Mrs. Baliga she could double her money. Their scheme was to buy a supply of a valuable drug from some friends with Mrs. Baliga's $2,000 and sell it to a physician for $4,000.

Mrs. Baliga withdrew her money from the bank and accompanied the men to Agatite and Clarendon avenues. There they gave the money to some other men in exchange for a package. Mrs. Baliga was to give the package to a physician in front of 4300 Lake Shore drive. When Mrs. Baliga got tired of waiting for him, she turned the package over to the police. It contained soap flakes.

BLAZE DESTROYS NURSERY BARN, RELIC OF '93 FAIR

A large barn in Western Springs, a relic of the Columbian exposition of 1893, was destroyed by fire last night. It stood at Wolf road and 49th street in the suburb, and was used as a nursery and quarters for employees by A. L. Vaughan & Co., florists.

Three firemen were slightly injured fighting the blaze. They are Chief Walter Erickson, Lieut. George Schredler and Fireman Walfrid Kobelstein of the Western Springs volunteer fire department. The blaze started presumably from spontaneous combustion. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

The barn was used as a boarding house during the 1893 fair. It was dismantled, taken to Western Springs several years later and reassembled.

Former College Head Gets Embezzlement Trial Delay

A charge of embezzlement against Henry Kinzie Brown, former president of Valparaiso university, was continued to Jan. 24 yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the felony court. Brown was returned from Detroit on the complaint of Mrs. Leona J. Cram, 5512 Everett avenue, that he had taken $30,000 she entrusted to him for investment. Brown has pleaded not guilty to the charge.

COURT HITS STATE DELAY IN SALES TAX PROSECUTION

Far Reaching Effects May Result from Action.

Judge Harry M. Fisher reprimanded the state department of finance yesterday for delaying the prosecution of sales tax delinquents more than two years. Because of the department's tardiness, he reduced to $300 each two $1,000 claims against merchants.

Legal authorities said the judge's action might have far reaching effects in the collection of state sales or retailers' occupational taxes, since he urged the state to appeal from his ruling. Some policy should be established, he said, regarding the time in which the state can prosecute.

Two Cases Involved.

The cases involved were those of Frank Cerny, a butcher at 1851 West Garfield boulevard, and Anthony Pappas, grocer and butcher at 7359 South Western avenue. Investigators had reported that each withheld payments approximating $1,000 from July, 1933, to October, 1937.

The department had ordered payment made, but both merchants appealed. They argued that the sales tax law requires merchants to keep records for tax purposes only two years and that objections to returns must therefore be made within two years. The state, the merchants contended, had no right to go back to 1933.

Assails State's Action.

"It is unfair to wait four years and then pounce on these taxpayers," Judge Fisher told Mortimer Forges, assistant attorney general in charge of sales tax prosecutions. "It shows a lack of diligence on the part of the department of finance."

Porges said there are 150,000 merchants paying the tax in the state, and that it would be impossible to examine all their books rapidly enough to take action within the two year period.

He said an appeal will be filed with the State Supreme court within 20 days.

TENEMENT FIRE KILLS 4; SEIZE ARSON SUSPECT

New York, Jan. 5.—(Special.)—A young man who admitted he had been drinking, was arrested late today on charges of homicidal arson in connection with a spectacular tenement fire in which four persons burned to death early today.

The accused "fire bug" is Joseph Malone, 27 years old, an unemployed elevator operator. Elizabeth Gajula, 23, a roomer, one of two persons held as material witnesses, said the accused incendiary used a discarded Christmas tree to kindle the fire.

Police said Malone told a hazy story of being partly drunk and of smoking in the hallway of the five story tenement building.

The flames drove nearly 200 persons, many of them barefoot and in night clothes, out into the streets before dawn and brought numerous spectacular rescues.

GOV. FITZGERALD CALLS FOR SOUND STATE LABOR LAW

Urges Plan to Outlaw Sit Strikes.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald today gave formal notice to the Michigan legislature that the sit-down strike has seen its day in Michigan.

The new Republican governor, in his message today to the law makers, who assembled yesterday for the biennial session, laid stress on the need for enactment of a sound labor relations law, specifically outlawing the sit-down and other illegal forms of labor union action, but guaranteeing to workers the right to unionize and to conduct legal strikes.

Brands Sit-downs Illegal.

Machinery should be provided, Fitzgerald said, to guarantee equitable rights of responsible labor and employers alike.

"Sit-down strikes are illegal," he said. "They have been voted out of existence. Such strikes and disorders of a similar character would [by his proposed law] be declared specifically illegal and proper penalties should be prescribed for those inciting such disorders."

The governor recommended the creation of a bipartisan labor relations board, with one member each from the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L., one member representing industry, one retail trade, and the fifth representing the public and the government.

Broad Powers Proposed.

The board would have broad powers to adjudicate employer-employee disputes. Company unions would be prohibited, but action to force employees to join unions would be penalized. Mass picketing by outsiders in case of strikes would be prohibited. The state would be empowered to operate utilities in event of strikes legally called.

Further labor law revision would reorganize the department of labor and industry along more efficient lines, broaden the occupational disease act, and increase the scope of unemployment compensation.

NEW BAY STATE GOVERNOR VOWS TO CUT EXPENSES

Boston, Mass., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Restoration of efficiency and elimination of graft and waste in state government to attain "New England economy," were demanded by Gov. Leverett Saltonstall, who became chief executive of the commonwealth today.

Asserting that the pardon and parole racket must stop; that civil service examinations must be on the level, and that red tape must be eliminated from administration of unemployment compensation, the new Republican governor promised in his inaugural address that if he found obstacles standing in the way he would make specific recommendations for a reorganization.

"If we are to maintain our democratic ideals," said the governor, "then it is the duty of government to provide first for the man at the foot of the hill—to build soundly and constructively so that our economic building shall not crumble."

WHY NOT DRAMATIZE DEMOCRACY

● "Dictatorship is press-agented by high-powered public relations counsels; presented as having a Body by Fisher. Democracy is press-agented by consumers' research bureaus as 'an overpriced product containing mild poisons!'"

● "When Dictators build automobile roads, the nation is enraptured, the world advised. When America builds the world's finest highways, only the taxpayers are vocal."

● "The Horst Wessel Song, a wretched air in the opinion of most experts, can be sung vigorously by all German students. The Star Spangled Banner can be only approximated by Americans who have forgotten half the words."

● The heroes of Dictatorship are presented to the awestricken young as second messiahs. We have debunked our heroes. But when Robert Sherwood made a play of the life of Abraham Lincoln, men wept at his words. America is hungry for living, vivid symbols of liberty!

WE LAUGH when actors satirize our public figures, deride our national institutions—secretly thanking our stars that we live in a land where gay, free gestures still may be. But—

Millions of foreigners are hearing our laughter, not our heartfelt thanks!

Dictator-ridden peoples—and our own children—are taking democracy on our spoken terms. Undersold, while dreary forms of regimented existence are being dangerously oversold at our very doorsteps.

Isn't it time for a change? Why should we make a secret, even among ourselves, of our strength and unity, while we parade our minor weaknesses? Isn't it time to dramatize our own vastly superior ideals and institutions, our unequaled systems of production and distribution, our scale of living—the things that in this troubled world have kept millions of our citizens well-fed, well-clothed, well-housed—and free!

No man or woman of good-will and common sense can afford to let pass another day of this new, challenging year until he or she has read "Dramatizing Democracy," Dorothy Thompson's great essay in the February Ladies' Home Journal.

Monthly, Dorothy Thompson chooses the Journal for important messages to her fellow citizens because, like so many public leaders, educators and business men, she believes it reaches not only America's largest audience of women—but America's largest audience of influential women! Are you aware that a great publishing force has become a great social force in American life? Fresh confirmation of its leadership appears throughout the February Journal. You'll want to see it—it's out today!

MR. ROOSEVELT GOES TO WAR.

Mr. Roosevelt needs Hitler, Mussolini, and the Japanese generals in his domestic politics, and he will make the best use of them. It is a reciprocal arrangement. He is as useful to them as they are to him. Let no one imagine it's really objectionable to the anti-democratic dictators to have a—may he be so called?—democratic dictator criticizing them in an important message to congress. They need external diversions as much as Mr. Roosevelt does. The people they damage the most are their own.

Even the Chinese are making a better fight for their liberties, with possibly more chance of success, than the Japanese, and to date the Czechoslovakians haven't suffered one-tenth as much as the Germans. All the dictators need battle cries, alarms, and illusions of injustice done them by others and dangers threatening from beyond the frontiers. Uneasy rest these uncrowned heads whose peoples are being marched in chain gangs, shouting the praises of their oppressors.

The dictator seeks the rôle of deliverer and protector. He surrounds his country with oppressors and he creates inevitable conflicts between irreconcilable systems of government and orders of society. In the present discussion we don't hear much of Oppressor Josef Stalin, the dictator of what used to be world menace No. 1. But all the autocrats are very serviceable to one another. They give one another the excuse for burdening the people with taxes, depriving them of necessities, forcing them to waste their substance on armament, and teaching them to hate somebody beyond their own boundaries in order that they may not learn how much reason they have to look closer home for the danger to their security and the cause of their misfortune.

Mr. Roosevelt was expected to take this line and the forecast was accurate. It is true that there are irreconcilable systems of government in the world today and the probabilities are that the worst of them will blow up in an explosion of internal forces. It might be regarded as most unusual for the head of an American government to designate certain powerful nations as enemies, although none of them has yet offered the United States an offense, and so designating them to ask that the country arm itself against them. Americans do not like the character of these governments and they do not like their acts. They agree that given a reason and an opportunity these rulers might attack the United States. But that does not alter the fact that at present all of them have their hands full with more immediate matters and none of them has indicated a desire to be other than on the most friendly terms with us.

There is some unfinished business with Japan which is not likely to be finished to the advantage of America, but Japan's chief foreign preoccupation as a matter of common sense is to keep friendship with the American people. That the condition of the world would justify a peaceable nation taking reasonable precautions is undeniable. We know that the aggressors will call their plays carefully and that they will not pick a quarrel with the United States if they have reason to believe they will get the worst of it.

A peaceable government such as we have supposed our own to be makes certain assumptions which are not necessarily imposed upon the citizens. One such assumption is that if another nation is maintaining friendly relations it is a friendly nation whatever its form of government. Mr. Roosevelt needs another assumption. He needs foreign enemies. His program for the United States is the same now that it has been. It contemplates a continuance of reckless national spending, with the consequent absorption of the national resources by the national government. It contemplates the continued substitution of government bureaucracy for private enterprise.

Although Mr. Roosevelt spoke of the "great unemployment of capital," he continues to demand the confiscatory taxation which keeps the capital unemployed. He seeks to prevent gainful use of money in private hands and can do so by continuing to make it unprofitable for an enterpriser to venture when he must take all the losses and give all the profits to the tax collector.

Although Mr. Roosevelt spoke of the need of national solidarity and of harmony in the ranks of all the producers, he has preached the doctrine of hatred and has promoted the development of class consciousness where there had been none. His idea of a successful autocratic government using the wealth of the country in public waste is not made different from the autocratic governments abroad merely by being called democratic. It is not democratic and it never will restore prosperous conditions to the country by converting the national income into a national debt.

The fallacies and the humbug of the New Deal now have time running against them. The era of illusion and of deception is coming to an end unless Mr. Roosevelt can create new conditions in his own interest. Obviously the best way to force an acceptance of increased national spending, increased absorption of national income by governmental activities, is to create a peril to the country. Then the New Deal can affirm that this is not the time to question the acts of government, this is not the time to indulge in corrective opposition, because enemies are at the gates and the country must make a united front.

The ruse is an old one and oftentimes it works. Mr. Wilson tried to establish a dominating political personality upon the thesis of making the world safe for democracy. He got a war out of it, but his ambitions were defeated. The world that he made safe for democracy is the world that Mr. Roosevelt again seeks to bring to the American shores as the enemy of all well disposed and well ordered people. In spite of this talk it remains true that the greatest danger to the American people is not over the water. It is in the fiscal, economic, and political theories of its own government. If congress can meet and turn back the enemy within the gates before it is too late the country will be able to take care of Mr. Hitler, Mr. Mussolini, Mr. Stalin, and even the Japanese generals when the time comes to prevent them from destroying democracy in this country, if they ever try.

TIME FOR RECONSIDERATION.

The order of the Supreme court limiting the diversion of water from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi watershed to an annual average of fifteen hundred cubic feet per second was written by Chief Justice Taft Jan. 14, 1929. On New Year's eve an engineer of the sanitary district by the simple act of pulling a switch made a physical compliance with that order and ended a twenty-five year battle between the Great Lakes states and states of the Mississippi valley. Today it is almost impossible to distinguish any current in the Chicago river. The district has made its final semi-annual report to the Supreme court, in which it pointed out that the reduction of water diversion to fifteen hundred cubic feet per second will cause an insanitary condition in the Illinois waterway.

The Hon. Charles Evans Hughes was appointed special master by the Supreme court in this celebrated case. His first report in effect found no fault with a diversion of 8,500 cubic feet per second if due consideration were given to the navigation needs of the Illinois waterway, then being constructed by the state of Illinois at an expense of eighty million dollars. Justice Taft would not accept this report and the final decision of the court, written by Justice Holmes in April, 1930, took no consideration whatever of the requirements of navigation over the route between the Great Lakes and the Mississippi river, even though less than three months later congress took over the completion of the Illinois waterway as a federal project.

Never in the history of mankind has a sewage project been attempted on such a colossal scale as that nearing completion by the sanitary district of Chicago. Approximately one hundred and sixty million dollars have already been spent on it and fourteen and a half million more will be required to complete it. At the present time sewage in the district is estimated to be 37.7 per cent "treated." In July the percentage is expected to be 70.4 per cent and after completion of the west side works 84.7 per cent. Only experience can determine if these figures are correct, but no experience is necessary to determine that partially treated sewage, no matter what the percentage, from a population equivalent to 4,600,000 persons, will be obnoxious, if not a breeder of pestilence, when poured into a stream of slack water made so by dams constructed by order of the Supreme court.

Since the Taft decision much scientific data has been collected concerning fluctuation of levels of the Great Lakes. Many of the theories on which the decision was founded have been exploded. It is now time that congress give serious, dispassionate, and unprejudiced consideration to this matter in order that both the needs of navigation on the lakes to the gulf waterway and the health of the citizens along its route be properly safeguarded without damage to property or injury to navigation on the Great Lakes.

FERDINAND SMELLS THE FLOWERS.

When a revolution flowers in the speech of one of our Latin-American friends it really blossoms out. The Anglo-Saxon politico has few great moments. The notable literature of American politics is not of our day. When an American statesman begins to find his soul his auditors usually wish they could find his hats.

An example of how much better things of the sort are done by the good neighbors who recently permitted their northern friends to get out of Lima with most of their wearing apparel, may be found in the "Few Words by Col. Batista" explaining the Cuban three year plan. The colonel is a man of the sword and not of the pen, but the revolution can find its orator or rhetorician merely by calling in the first well dressed man on the street.

The colonel, like Ferdinand the Bull, is in the middle of the flower garden at the very beginning. Of himself he says: "Weeks, months, and whole years of attentive observation and calm study weigh these lines explaining the contents of the plan. Famine, despair, misery, and death, injustice and violence, blood and fury have represented during many a lustrium the complicated problem which must be solved."

Solved it can be with the resources of Cuba: "Fertile soil. Flowers and fruit. Perpetual spring verdure. Bodily health. Ambient for the spirit. Means for developing a vigorous generation. A nucleus of light, color of rhythm and of life. A strong nationality with honest, sound human exuberance in communion with love and peace, progress and civilization. Those are the things which we cherish for a real and effective program for Cuban happiness."

The colonel and the colonel's ghost go from flower to flower successfully denying as they go that they are "seeking to create a militaristic ambient superior to the social conditions of the Cuban people." The colonel is first, last, and all the time Cuba libre.

Editorial of the Day

THE POLICE TAKE A HAND.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The police announced last week that they would start Saturday giving "tickets" to property owners who do not keep their sidewalks free of snow and ice. A ticket means a trip to court or to the violations bureau.

Any property owner who doesn't want to make this trip, with possibly unpleasant financial consequences involved, can avoid it by obeying the ordinance that requires him to keep his walks safe for pedestrians. This he can do by removing the snow and ice from them, or by scattering sand, ashes or salt on ice too hard to remove.

The Free Press is glad to have this cooperation of the police in the battle it has been waging for years in the interest of safer sidewalks for persons who have to use them in Detroit winters.

THE TEN DAY WEEK.

Speaking of calendars again, how would you enjoy one that had a ten day week, with the tenth only as a day of rest? [Do we hear groans from the populace?] Well, that was the French revolution's calendar, invented to celebrate the birth of freedom and to liberate time measurement from all of its traditions.

This calendar, which was used in France from Oct. 5, 1793, to Jan. 1, 1806, started with the autumnal equinox on Sept. 22 and called its twelve months:

Vendémiaire [vintage], Brumaire [fog], Frimaire [frost], Nivôse [snow], Pluviose [rain], Ventôse [wind], Germinal [germination], Floréal [flowers], Prairial [meadows], Messidor [reaping], Thermidor [heat], and Fructidor [fruit].

Try to improve upon those names in any language. A poet, dramatist, and actor who called himself Fabre d'Églantine, did the naming, and he made each word a nature poem.

The names of the days were Primidi, Duodi, Tridi, Quartidi, Quintidi, Sextidi, Septidi, Octidi, Nonidi, and Decadi. The five days that were uncounted in this system were called Sansculottides, and formed the Festivals of Virtues, Genius, Labor, Opinion, and Rewards. They occurred between Sept. 17 and 21. Leap year added a day to the Sansculottides, which became the Festival of the Revolution. Each period of four years was called a Franciade.

In this calendar the Fourth of July would fall on Messidor 16.

A BALLAD OF GREAT CONTEMPT.

I've tipped the room and bath stewards and about a dozen more;

My luggage, well covered with labels, is ready to go ashore;

As a first class, smooty passenger, I've toured in the manner grand,

But I think, as I wait for the customs, of when I was foremost hand.

There's a dimming coast behind us, the trade wind clouds float high;

And the rhythmic swinging topmasts pencil arcs across the sky;

Then the wind has backed and hardened, the taut shrouds hum and whine,

As she runs all out and a-tiptoe, a-footing for the Line.

Lazy days in the tropics, deck seems a-bubble with tar;

Wild nights in the Roaring Forties, her nose pole held on a star.

Atolls raised in the dawn mist, green fringe to the blue inside.

Harbors cleared in the nighttime, slipping out with the tide.

Then with her hatches battened (copra and hemp below),

Tramp of feet round the capstan to "Time for us to go."

What if she's overloaded, her Plimsoll covered by foam?

To hell with the underwriters, we're taking the old girl home!

Now I've no quarrel with steamers—they're Progress, of course, I know.

And for elderly ladies and sissies, they're the only way to go.

But I'm sixty-seven in April, healthy and hearty and hale,

So you can ship on the stinkpots. I'll get me a berth in sail!

Last Sunset of 1938.

I hope it was an omen, that gay, insouciant sunset on the last evening of the old year. It began early, when the rosy sun slipped into a bank of dark clouds, on the horizon, and by the magic of reflection, seemed to be two, and sometimes even three suns. Then it threw bright golden rays from behind its cloud bed, rays that spanned half the arch of heaven. When they had dulled a little, there were flung banners of rose gold along the west. The banners grew and grew, until all the world seemed encompassed in the rosy light, a joyous psalm of color. Even in dying, the sunset left beauty, for all the west remained a lovely mauve and dusky pink, long after the sun had gone. Never did an old year have a gay, less reluctant farewell—never a new year a merrier welcome! Helene.

SAWED OFF SHOTGUNS.

It seems that every gangster's got one. These troubleous times—a sawed off shotgun. Never a full length gun or a rifle.

With pistols and derringers they don't trifle. But always the sawed off gun is the prime accompaniment of successful crime.

Now I don't mean to carp or to scoff—But who ever saw them saw one off?

Who are the sawyers and what sort of saws are used by these standard equipped outlaws?

And when there's a holdup I wonder why Observant bystanders all, standing by,

Note no other details except this one: Each gangster was armed with a sawed off gun.

Panhandling with Puns.

I am walking down Boul. Mich. when I discover a bum about to put the touch on me. I prepare to stride haughtily past when a plaintive "Can you spare me alms, sir?" stops me cold.

Amused and amazed, I ask, "And what, my good man is alms?"

"Alms, dope," he sneers, "is what me and the Venus de Milo ain't got."

Ovid.

The epithet, "sun dogger," used to serve as a sneer at fellows who stayed up late at night on pleasure bent. We now propose to sneer enviously at all of our friends who are going to Florida by calling them "sun chasers."

LOOKING INTO THE STOMACH.

THE proverb, "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick," reflects the situation in which physicians found themselves in the early '90s of the last century. Called upon to make a diagnosis of some obscure stomach disorder they were obliged to work in the dark, even to guess. True enough, symptoms carefully weighed and pondered sometimes pointed to an accurate estimate of the difficulty. But more often than not the exact nature of the complaint remained hidden.

Then came Roentgen's discovery of the X-rays, which enables us to discern and to understand shadows cast by bones and many of the internal organs. Since that memorable day in 1895, when he published his report on this new and invisible force, medical science has been gradually extending its applications. Stones within the urinary pouch, the kidneys, the gall bladder, or the salivary ducts may be observed—and due to our knowledge of the outlines of the stomach and the intestines—the presence of a tumor or an ulcer is readily demonstrated.

Lighted instruments also enable the ophthalmologist to see the back of the eye (retina) and nasal, throat, and rectal apparatus is now available which will permit the trained specialist to visualize the parts and to identify disease if it exists.

The latest addition to this long list of achievements is called the gastroscope, which may be passed down the esophagus into the stomach and by means of which the wall of this pouch may be studied. With the aid of a prism and a series of lenses all that falls within the beam of light at the lower tip can be inspected readily by the operator. This piece of equipment adds materially to diagnostic accuracy as to what is going on within the stomach that can be checked.

A significant value of this instrument lies in the ability of the physician to recognize positively what term chronic gastritis—a condition which has been laughed out of court so often because the laboratory could not substantiate its presence—characterizes the patient's ailment.

Many suffer from "sour stomach," bloating, belching, and constipation. Soda tablets occasionally bring relief, but after a time the effects wear out and the result that the pain becomes more severe. Yet there are thousands of victims two or three times during the night. On gastroscopic examination the mucosa will appear to be beefy, instead of the typical pinkish red, swollen, and with layers of greenish-gray mucus between the folds. If such an organ has been treated once a day with a slightly alkaline solution, if the diet can be regulated so that no unsuitable food is allowed, the membrane will return to normal in most instances within from four to six weeks.

In a well known hospital 66 per cent of those who complained of indigestion were found to have chronic gastritis. What the stomach needed was a rest from irritating edibles. One case in particular proved puzzling. A woman, 62 years old, entered the hospital because of pain and heartburn. Distress was experienced two or three hours after meals and the patient noted that if she could take food or a generous quantity of baking soda, relief would come promptly. In addition, intestinal rumblings and constipation were most annoying. Although her appetite was good and there was no jaundice or vomiting, nausea was noted occasionally. X-ray plates following a barium meal disclosed no sign of ulcer, cancer, or any other disease.

On the other hand, with the gastroscope, patchy areas of the mucous lining were seen—deeply injected and swollen. A daily washing for a few weeks with artificial vichy water effected a cure.

In the light of the discoveries made by this new "eye" we must revise our attitude toward chronic inflammatory processes involving the mucous surfaces within the "bread basket" and, in so doing, we will back two generations to the time when hot, peppery foods were widely used. In all probability the dyspepsia of our grandparents was this identical malady of which we now have visible proof. Prevention lies in regulating the menu that pepper, mustard, and strong condiments if used—shall be so diluted that congestion will not ensue.

HEALTH THE MAIN FACTOR.

W. C. B. writes: Can you suggest a good face bath for the purpose of preserving a youthful complexion?

REPLY: The skin reflects accurately the state of one's health. If your blood is normal, with plenty of red cells and hemoglobin, and if the vital organs are performing up to par, you should have no trouble in maintaining a youthful complexion. Frequent bathing and good elimination are essential for the maintenance of nature's roses. The above suggestions are not a substitute for many expensive "treatments." Hot packs, followed by massage, however, are useful.

DECOMPENSATION.

Miss R. writes: What is the meaning of the word "decompensation" in heart disease?

REPLY: When the pumping force is too weak to deliver a sufficient amount of blood there follows a lag in circulation with back pressure. This may result in swelling of the liver and the accumulation of fluid in the tissues.

DOUBLE TAXATION.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—I am a resident of Illinois, but work in Indiana [having been sent there by the company that employs me], and am forced to pay the Illinois gross income tax and also the Illinois sales tax.

I am not given the option of paying this tax myself, but the company is compelled to deduct it from my pay check and remit to the state of Indiana at the end of the year. Yet there are thousands of residents of Indiana employed in Illinois who do not pay any income tax to Illinois and who do not even have to pay the Illinois sales tax if they have their purchases sent to their homes in Indiana.

Why must Illinois residents pay Indiana taxes while Indiana residents pay no Illinois taxes?

OFFICE WIFE.

Hubbard Woods, Ill., Jan. 1.—As a Tribune reader, husband and son, I write to protest the use of the expression, "office wife," to describe an all-too-common relationship with a creature who is nothing more or less than a mistress, a paramour.

The name "wife" is, and should be, an honored one; one sacred to our mothers and to all good women who wed. It does not belong to a mistress or a man's paramour, no matter how innocent or unfortunate such a poor creature may be. It does not ennoble her; it does dishonor, derogate from, our mothers and wives who gloried in the name of "wife."

Speaking for our mothers and wives, therefore, may I suggest and request that in future your great paper refrain from the use of this expression.

VICTOR M. HARDING.

[The phrase "office wife" came out of the court records in the trial of Mrs. Dull for the murder of William Holbrook, a lawyer whose secretary she was and with whom she had lived for many years in St. Joseph, Mich. She had been more or less publicly acknowledged as his wife.]

SPELLING AND OTHER REFORMS.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Your editorial on spelling, and your determination to stick to what you call spelling, shows THE TRIBUNE to be a very inconsistent newspaper.

You condemn the New Deal for breaking all precedent, willingness to stuff the Supreme court and congress in its impatience to find short cuts to reforms, usurping authority and presuming to be a law unto itself in the accomplishment of what it defines as the good of the people, but you do not stop to consider that you are doing the very same thing in spelling.

If you are bound to stick to silly methods in pressing the spelling reform, why don't you come clean and root for the silly ass methods of the New Deal?

AT OAK FOREST.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—During the Christmas holidays a party of a dozen or more had occasion to go to the Oak Forest infirmary, wanting to spread a little cheer to the many out there, some of whom have no one to plan or offer them a happy Christmas and might well be termed forgotten men and women.

We were delighted and surprised at the change which had taken place there since our last visit. One of the patients we visited happened to be a tuberculosis case. He was in a private room, light and sunny. His bedding and clothing were spotless and we were told it was changed twice weekly. The food, too, was much better than before.

We felt the public should know and appreciate the work of Mr. Anton Negri, who, we were told, was responsible for this great change. ALMA M. ATZEL, Parish worker, 61 Paul's church.

WHY HE MUTTERS.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—If you ever happen to be strolling along the elevated platform at Quincy street, listen closely and you will hear a man muttering to himself, using all kinds of vile language. Well, that's me.

Why do I do this, you ask. Well, I'll tell you. I ride the Ravenswood elevated train and when the guard calls Quincy street I expect to get off at Quincy street and not the Aurora and Elgin station, for that is what I am compelled to do every morning about 7:30 o'clock, and then I must walk all the way back to Quincy. C. J. BONKSON.

SCHOOL DANCES.

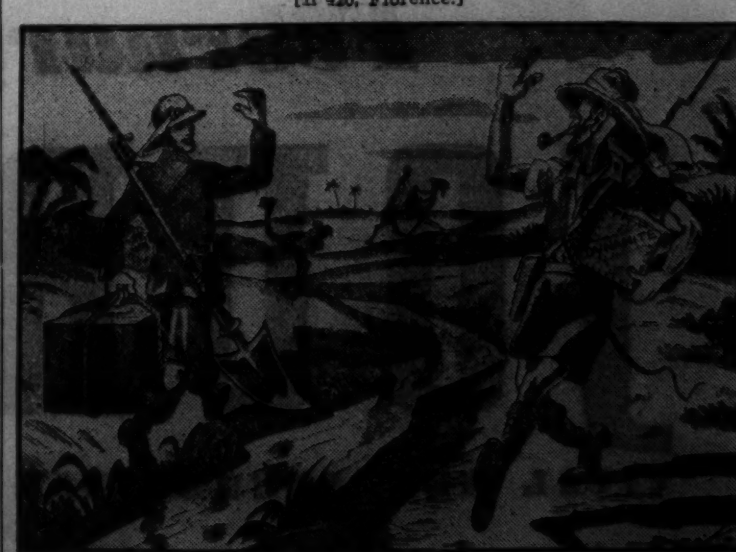

Chicago, Jan. 3.—I have a swell time at the Friday school dances held at Lane Tech High school.

I believe they should continue with the dances, as it is a good clean sport, and also a place for the young folks to meet which is better than hanging around on street corners.

More schools should open up their doors, especially the schools on the north-west side. GRACE KNUDSON.

BUILDING CODE'S FINAL CHAPTERS AWAIT PASSAGE

Subcommittee Urges O.K. of Last 7 Sections.

After eleven years of wrangling and delay, Chicago is on the threshold of having a new building code. A city council subcommittee headed by Ald. James J. McDermott (14th) yesterday recommended to the building and zoning committee the passage of seven remaining chapters of the revised code. Forty-nine sections already have been approved by the city council.

Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe (42d), chairman of the building and zoning group, said his committee probably will meet Wednesday to consider the subcommittee's recommendations. If no serious objections develop, the chapters will be presented to the council at its meeting Jan. 14.

Fire and Safety Divisions. Six of the chapters discussed yesterday constitute the fire prevention code and govern safety requirements. The seventh is known as the hazardous use units chapter and deals with buildings used for match factories, munitions plants, and gasoline storage plants.

They were presented to the subcommittee by F. J. Thielbar, chairman of the citizens' committee of building experts appointed by Mayor Kelly to hasten revision of the code. The citizens' committee has been holding hearings in which objectors were heard and make suggestions.

If the council passes the chapters, the code then will be officially completed, Ald. McDermott said. Any objectors may seek amendments by appealing to a special commission to be appointed by Mayor Kelly.

Revision Started in 1927.

First efforts to revise the code were made in 1927. In 1934, Mayor Kelly appointed the committee headed by Thielbar, which held hearings at which property owners, and representatives of building materials, industries, and building trades had their day in court.

Lengthy discussions by outsiders and debates over technicalities delayed revision of the code. Last April, after nine chapters had been passed, Mayor Kelly urged that work be speeded up and the council subcommittee's public hearings were abandoned. During the spring and summer, forty other chapters were passed by the aldermen.

Beverly Hills, Cal., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Vera Ellena, blonde dancer and estranged wife of comedian Stan Laurel, went to jail today to serve nine hours for reckless driving. Judge Charles Griffin originally imposed a jail term of five days, but finally relented when Mrs. Laurel wept and pleaded for mitigation. She paid a fine of $100 and was placed on probation for one year in addition to the reduced period she was ordered to spend behind the bars.

REGRETS THREAT, FLEES; LEAVES A STENCH BOMB

A bareheaded young man walked into the Windsor theater at 1225 North Clark street last night, laid a package on the desk of Stanley Leseritz, the manager, and handed him a long note.

The note demanded $200 for the writer who threatened to "do something terrible to the theater." Then, apparently losing his nerve, the youth snatched the note, left the package and fled.

Sergeant Marshall Pidgeon of the bomb squad doused the package in water and opened it. It contained an improvised stench bomb.

GEN. FORD FETED BY COMMANDERS OF RESERVE UNITS

Major Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commanding officer of the Sixth corps area, was guest last night in the La Salle hotel at a dinner given by fifty regimental commanders of reserve units in the Illinois military area. More than 100 officers attended.

The first general meeting of the year was held by the Cook county chapter of the Reserve Officers' association following the dinner. Gen. Ford spoke on "The Progress of the Organized Reserve." About 700 reserve and regular army officers were present.

MONOPOLY IN CITY GOVERNMENT HIT BY DWIGHT GREEN

Calls 2 Party Rule Vital

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Machine politics has created a monopoly of government in Chicago, Dwight H. Green charged yesterday. He made this assertion as plans were being completed for the formal opening Monday night of his speaking campaign for the Republican nomination for mayor.

"One party monopoly of the city government is un-American and dangerous," Green said. "Lack of minority party strength in the city hall and municipal courts contributes to Chicago's expensive and often inefficient government."

Two Party System Vital. He asserted that the two party system is the basis of democracy. Progress depends upon the existence of both a strong majority and a strong minority party, he said.

"In looking over the present lineup of Democrats holding all responsible positions in the city hall, it becomes apparent that the two party system of civic rule has been nullified," Green said.

"Except for a few voices in the city council, there is no such thing as a minority party in the government. The present one party set up and its machine politics helps to account for high taxes, evils in the school system, and conditions prevailing in the courts."

Green pointed out that not only the executive department, but the judicial and legislative departments of the city are controlled by Democrats. For the first time in Chicago's history all of the thirty-six judges of the Municipal court are Democrats.

Green is the regular Republican organization candidate. His speech Monday, which will be broadcast, will be the climax of a day of activity in observance of his 42d birthday.

Crowds Cheer Candidate. Last night Green was cheered by 350 persons who crowded Committee-man James B. Waller's 42d ward headquarters at 747 North avenue.

"I am going to be your friend. All I want is the opportunity to prove that," Green said. "I'm prepared to work day and night in this campaign. Through it all I want to keep in close touch with your problems."

Green, former United States district attorney, predicted that Chicago will join the G. O. P. victory march of the country at large in the mayoralty election.

KELLY FOR MAYOR GROUP HANDS OUT NEW PLEDGE CARD

A new type of pledge card was distributed yesterday as one of the first activities of the All-Chicago Committee For Re-election of Mayor Kelly. Headquarters for the committee have been established at 111 West Washington street under Chairman A. A. Sprague.

The pledge card is detachable from a triple folder printed in the national colors. It lists twenty accomplishments of Mayor Kelly's administration.

Among them are: restoration of Chicago's reputation as a law-abiding city; improvement of police, fire and health services; action to reduce traffic deaths and injuries; redemption of Chicago's credit standing; obtaining universal transfer for users of street cars, elevated and bus lines; clothing of more than 300,000 underprivileged children, and encouragement of industrial peace by co-operation with both labor and business.

Wind Blows Door Against Lamp; Fire Razes Home

A gust of wind last night helped to destroy a new bungalow in the Bartlett north shore subdivision, south of Winthrop Harbor. The bungalow was to have been occupied in a few days by G. B. Tiller of Chicago. He had already moved his furniture in. Last night John Travis of Chicago trucked a load of lumber to the home. According to his story he placed a kerosene lamp at a door for illumination. The wind blew the door shut. It slammed against the lamp, overturning it and starting a fire. The bungalow was razed at a loss of $6,000.

THE POLICE HOPE VIRGIL WILL STAY PUT FOR A WHILE

The police crossed their fingers last night and said every thing was O. K. They had Virgil Smith, 9 years old, in the juvenile detention home, and they knew he'd be too sleepy to think about running away before morning. Virgil's father, Donald Smith, of 1127 West 104th street, reported to the Morgan Park police yesterday that Virgil had vanished. A taxicab driver found the boy at 61st and State streets and took him to the Englewood police station. Police there turned Virgil over to his dad—and reported that he had run away again before his father could get out of the station with him.

Juvenile Officer William Loftis picked Virgil up later at the New York Central railroad yards and took him to the Woodlawn station, where Virgil was about to leave by a window when the police caught up with him again. Just to be safe, they took him to the juvenile home. Virgil's father denied later that Virgil had eluded him at the Englewood station.

Pana, Ill., Jan. 5.—(A)—Irwin B. Echer, 501 West Chicago avenue, Chicago, reported to police here tonight that he was robbed of $539 in currency and $448 in checks by a gunman who hid in his automobile. Echer said he was a representative of a Chicago liquor distributing company.

BOGUS U. S. BILLS FOUND IN RAID ON FRENCH PLANT

PARIS, Jan. 5.—(A)—French police today raided a villa in a Paris suburb where they said they found a subcellar printing plant of a ring manufacturing and distributing large quantities of counterfeit United States and British currency in Europe. Detectives said that bogus $10 and $20 and five pound notes with face value of more than $78,000 were seized in the villa at Brunoy. A printer was arrested. Police, who identified him as Jean Falvret, said he surprised him burning some of the output of the plant.

Former Professor at N.U. Succumbs at 78.

Dr. Hugh T. Patrick, noted neurologist, an emeritus professor of neurology and mental diseases at Northwestern university, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital. He had been ill for several weeks, suffering from a stomach ailment, in his home at 1428 North State parkway.

Dr. Patrick was 78 years old. He retired from active practice eight years ago. He was born in New Philadelphia, O., and studied at the University of Wooster, New York university, and in Europe.

Married Chicagoan in 1896.

He married Miss Fannie Gary, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Joseph E. Gary of Chicago, in 1896. In the same year he became a professor of nervous and mental diseases at the Chicago Polyclinic. He was later at Wesley, Peoples, Passavant, and Hennrich hospitals, and consulting neurologist at St. Anthony's hospital. He was a stat neurologist at the Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary. He served as contract surgeon in the army in the Chicago area during the world war.

Dr. Patrick was instrumental in founding the publication, Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry, and for many years was its chief editor. He was a member of the editorial board of the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases, and edited its year book. He was the author of many scientific articles on nervous diseases.

In recognition of his work, Dr. Patrick was granted an honorary membership in Alpha Omega Alpha, a medical society, and in 1938 an honorary degree as doctor of science from Northwestern university. He was made a Chevalier in the French Legion of Honor in appreciation of his assistance in reestablishing the French journal Revue Neurologique.

He was a past president of the American Neurological association, the Mississippi Valley neurological association, the founder and twice president of the Chicago Neurology society. He was a former president of the Chicago Institute of Medicine, and a trustee of the Chicago Medical society.

MARGARET HALEY DIES; VETERAN OF TEACHERS' FIGHTS

Miss Margaret A. Haley, veteran business representative of the Chicago Teachers' federation, died yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital. She was 77 years old, and lived at the Auditorium hotel.

Born in Joliet, Miss Haley began her career as a country school teacher in Will county at 16. She moved to Chicago in 1886, and taught in the town of Lake. At the turn of the century, she and Catherine Goggin, another teacher, led a court fight to correct tax inequalities and thus increase the salaries of teachers.

In 1921, Miss Haley blocked a scheme of a former city administrator to permit the board of education to sell its real estate without the city council's consent.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Jane A. O'Reilly of Madison, Wis., and a brother, James Haley, former city clerk, who died at 9:30 a. m. Monday in St. Bernard's hospital. Burial will be in Joliet.

HIGH WAVES LASH OREGON COAST; DAMAGE IS HEAVY

Astoria, Ore., Jan. 5.—(AP)—High waves, described as a "tidal wave," followed a four-day gale, forcing many boats ashore and causing widespread property damage.

The Gulf Pacific Line freighter Point Bonita escaped what looked like certain destruction on Clatsop Spit at the mouth of the Columbia river. The vessel proceeded toward Seattle after being repaired a broken rudder chain.

A tremendous tide moved houses, damaged small craft and destroyed cabins in the Coos bay area. Residents called the flood a "tidal wave." The heaviest snowfall of the season blanketed high southern Oregon points, while light rain fell on western Oregon.

Missing Amelia Earhart Declared Legally Dead

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart, noted woman flyer who disappeared on an around the world flight in the summer of 1937, was declared legally dead today. The action was taken at the request of the flyer's husband, George Palmer Putnam, who received her personal effects under terms of the will, dated April 15, 1932. Miss Earhart provided for a trust fund, the income from which goes to her mother, Mrs. Amy Otis Earhart of Medford, Mass.

Her Second Choice

By Elizabeth York Miller

(Copyright, 1938, By Elizabeth York Miller.)

Nora Stacy receives a letter from India from her fiancé, irresponsible Jim Murdoch, breaking their engagement. Heartbroken, Nora writes Jim she'll marry the next man who asks her. Jim's family live next door to the modest English cottage where Nora lives with her aunt, Mrs. Dorothy Callender. When Bob Matherson of Fairways, rich young bachelor and recent neighbor, proposes to Nora she accepts. Three days before the wedding Jim returns and demands that Nora run away with him. Nora feels morally pledged to Bob. Jim gives Nora her love letters to him—except the one in which she pledged to marry the next man who asked her. They serve their marriage will be in name only. Bob and his sister's husband, David Longton, are in the aircraft armament business for the government. Clay Longton tells Nora that Mrs. Almy, who used to work in their office, is suspected of giving away the firm's secrets to a rival. Bob is in danger of being arrested for double crossing his country. A government man, Capt. Grew, arrives at Fairways and Bob invites him to stay for an informal party. Mrs. Almy is plotting with Jim to steal plans that night from the Fairways Tower room safe. Pearl faints to distract attention while Jim robs the safe. Bob thinks Nora gave Jim a duplicate key to the Tower room, but she convinces him otherwise. Frightened, Pearl and Jim make a hasty getaway. Capt. Grew places Bob under arrest in his home, but allows him a day to produce the plans.

INSTALLMENT XXXV. HIS NAME CLEARED.

Capt. Grew, at least, had delivered the goods, and without the aid of handcuffs. He was thankful to be rid of the responsibility. Somebody offered Nora a seat, and in other circumstances she would have been interested in her surroundings, for this was the first time she had been in Bob's office, and it was a very well appointed office, indeed, luxurious as such things go.

Two other officials were already waiting when they arrived, silk-hatted and solemn—very like a couple of undertakers, in the opinion of David Longton, whose optimism was at low ebb. Bob greeted them cheerfully and said he hoped he hadn't kept them waiting.

And then, as the clock on the mantel over the ornamental fireplace slowly and melodiously chimed ten, a woman entered from the inner office, a little hurriedly as though she was slightly late for her cue.

She was a pale-faced, intense-looking creature with a high, knobby forehead, and wearing spectacles and flat-heeled shoes, bearing all the insignia, in fact, of any wife's dream of an ideal secretary.

In one hand she had a long, significant-looking parcel done up in brown paper, a parcel that had obviously come through the post, and in the other a registered delivery book.

"Will you sign for this, please, Mr. Matherson? It just came by the parcel delivery and I thought you would rather sign for it yourself."

Bob scribbled his name in the proper place and the young woman withdrew without giving so much as a casual glance at anybody.

"Here you are, gentlemen. Have you a penknife handy, captain? I did up this packet myself and can guarantee the string. Open it up and satisfy yourselves."

"Do you require an explanation? It is this: I suddenly remembered after I got home on Saturday—just as I was on the point of dressing for dinner, in fact—that our last post from the country went out at seven. And it occurred to me, on account of some uncertainty regarding the personnel of my household, and also as a small dance had been arranged for that evening, and a lot of strangers coming in, that it would be safer to entrust so important an object to his majesty's mails than to keep it under lock and key in my own house."

"Is that explanation satisfactory, gentlemen? Because it is the only one I have to offer."

The explanation was quite satisfactory from one point of view. Here was the case of blueprints and nobody had tampered with the government seal.

Nevertheless Bob had a few questions to answer.

Why hadn't he told Capt. Grew of his strange decision?

For one thing, I had a certain theory to try out," Bob said, throwing Nora the merest flicker of a glance. "For another, it would not have made any difference, since Capt. Grew already had my word that I would produce the plans this morning, and he did not believe me."

"I felt pretty worried when I heard of the leakage, but I now realize it will not do any damage. It was just a bad symptom. Gentlemen, I respectfully submit to you that the disease, itself, has been stamped out. May I remind you that I was on my honeymoon when it started?"

Suddenly everybody was shaking hands and congratulating Bob and doing a lot of apologizing, while Nora's heart was sinking lower and lower, and it was all she could do to stand up and take it on Bob's behalf, since now she realized what he had meant when he said he could only be too thankful that he had not trusted her.

He had referred, of course, to Friday night when she went up to the Tower room and found him putting something away in that safe.

He thought she was capable of plotting against him with Jim.

Not one word had he said now about the theft at Fairways.

Was he keeping silent on that score to protect Pearl, or herself? Certainly not on Jim Murdoch's account.

When she told him the other night she was going to leave him, he hadn't been surprised.

Perhaps he thought she had had something to do with it.

And this morning she had been so happy, so confident! . . . about what?

Bob had drawn aside to speak privately with one of the men, when Nora seized the opportunity to slip away.

"Tell Bob I had to go," she told David Longton, and murmured something about Aunt Dorothy's not being very well. It wasn't much of an excuse, but she couldn't think of a better one.

At 3 o'clock that afternoon Robert Matherson decided to call it a day as far as business was concerned.

He had been through about all even he could stand for one little while.

His name was cleared and he had made a clean breast in private, with one exception, to the only ears that were entitled to hear the story.

He had suspected Pearl Almy of the leakage from the very first moment, but had no actual proof. As soon as he heard that Jim Murdoch was working for Tankerton's he knew that Pearl had roped him into her scheme of revenge, and that he had been a willing accomplice for reasons which Bob did not think it necessary to specify.

He said that it was as much a certainty as anything can be in this world, that Mrs. Almy was unlikely to show herself in England for some time to come, and that she was not and never had been his mistress, but in all due modesty he had been forced to the opinion that she would have liked to become his wife, and that he had probably used her.

David wanted Bob to join him for lunch at the place where he had arranged to meet Cissy, but Bob excused himself.

He had been disappointed that Nora went off without letting him know, and now he wanted to get home as soon as possible.

At Fairways, Beals was at the door almost before the car drew up.

Bob affectionately clasped his faithful friend on the shoulder. He knew by the old man's anxious face how eagerly his good news was awaited.

"Everything okay, Beals. We're on top of the world once more—it was just a little slip, and we won't count it."

"You got the parcel all right, sir?"

"Of course I did. Did you think it would get lost in the post?"

"I didn't know, sir, even though I saw it go into the bag, myself. So many queer things happen. Did Mrs. Matherson not come back with you, sir?"

"Good lord, isn't she here?"

Bob's hearty expression faded.

"No, sir. Mrs. Longton left shortly before noon, and there's nobody here—except me and the servants."

"Perhaps Mrs. Matherson is with her aunt," Bob suggested.

"I don't think so, sir. It was only ten minutes ago I came back from the cottage. Mrs. Matherson asked me most particular to run down if I had the chance, and see if Mrs. Callender was requiring anything. I've been twice."

OYSTER DRESSING DOES THINGS TO A ROUND STEAK

There is something in a name—when it comes to foods at least. Round steak, for instance, doesn't sound very exciting, but "baked steak with oyster dressing" will set any mouth watering. Here it is:

BAKED STEAK WITH OYSTER FILLING.

(Serves six.)

1/2 pounds round steak, cut 1/2 inch thick.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
1/2 teaspoon paprika.
3 tablespoons flour.
Pound steaks and sprinkle with oil.

seasonings. Spread one steak in a shallow pan, cover with filling, and top with remaining steak. Sprinkle with flour. Add 1/2 cup water and cover. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven for one and one-quarter hours. Baste occasionally, adding more water when necessary. After the first half hour, potatoes, onions, and carrots may be added to cook with the meat.

OYSTER FILLING.

1 cup chopped oysters.
2 cups soft bread crumbs.
1 tablespoon minced parsley.
1/2 teaspoon celery seed.
1/2 teaspoon minced onion.

FRUITS HARD TO FIND IN CHICAGO: Monstera deliciosa, a tropical fruit with a pineapple-banana odor and a sweetish taste. The plant is native to Mexico and Central America, and is grown to some extent in the most tropical parts of Florida. Seldom does a shipment reach this city, but there are a few fanciers of this fruit with the unwieldy name who are ready to grab up all available editions at almost any price.

The papaya, more frequently seen, but still quite rare. The juice tastes like nectar or ambrosia. It's delicious. The flesh is rather melonlike. Papaya trees grow in southern Florida, and to some extent in southern California and Texas. They are no relative of the middle western pawpaw.

The southern wild persimmon, very different from the bright colored Japanese persimmon to be found in our markets. The fruit is small, tastes something like dates. It is more popular for jams and preserves than for use as fruit.

SOME NEW COOKBOOKS: A wonderful new fat one with lots of pictures, many of the bright colored Japanese persimmon to be found in our markets. The fruit is small, tastes something like dates. It is more popular for jams and preserves than for use as fruit.

"The American Woman's Cookbook." It is a big $2.50 worth, and it is published for Culinary Arts Institute by Consolidated Book Publishers, Inc., Chicago. You'll be able to find it in the stores. There are more than 900 pages and 5,000 recipes.

And Simon's "French Cookbook" (Little Brown & Co., Boston). It's $3. French menus, French recipes, a dictionary of French culinary terms, and a discussion of wines and wine service make up this book.

Another Cora, Rose, and Bob Brown book [these authors are exceedingly popular with folks who are interested in foods and eating]. This one is called "Salads and Herbs" and describes every kind of salad plant and herb you've ever heard of, and many more. There are recipes for salads to be made the year around, too. J. B. Lippincott company (Philadelphia and New York) is publisher. A dollar seventy-five will buy the book.

"Thoughts for Food, a Menu Aid," published by The Institute Publishing company, Chicago, contains a lot of good ideas. Menus for all sorts of meals are followed up with the recipes for the various dishes—a practical plan for a cookbook. Two dollars and fifty cents for this book.

"Short Cuts and Leftovers," by Hannah W. Schloss, is published by M. Barrows & Co., New York. For the price of $1.50 you get a nice collection of recipes and suggestions about what to do with those perplexing leftovers.

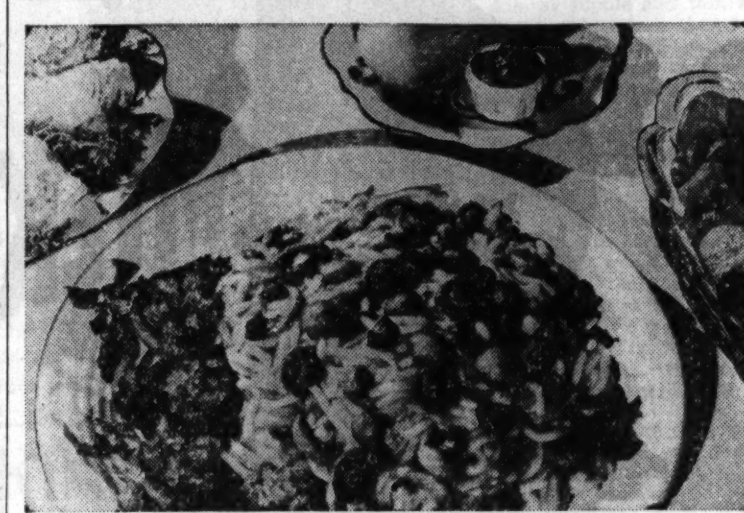

This isn't a recipe book, but it belongs in the library of every woman who is professionally interested in foods: "A Dictionary of Food and Nutrition," by Graves and Taber, published by F. A. Davis company, Philadelphia. It's a fat little blue book, a good $3 worth if you have need for such a volume.

Drop into the nearest book store or one of the book departments of the downtown stores and look over these new books. They're all worthy of investigation.

Looks Special; Cooks Quick

Who'd guess that this special looking dish was made in a few minutes from a can of spaghetti and a pound of fresh mushrooms? The mushrooms were cooked in 6 tablespoons of butter and 1 1/2 teaspoons of cider vinegar, seasoned and served over the heated contents of a large (24 ounce) can of spaghetti and tomato sauce. Garnish is large sautéed mushroom caps filled with pickle relish. Head lettuce salad, rolls and assorted relishes complete this simple supper or luncheon.

NEVER TURN UP YOUR NOSE AT A STURDY TURNIP

They Have Character and Vitamins.

There's nothing particularly pretty about the turnip, but it does have a lot of character. What would old-time stew be without turnips? They're a fair source of vitamins and minerals, and a cheap one, besides.

Served glazed, as a cup for other vegetables, with cheese sauce or parsley and butter, turnips are not to be scorned.

GLAZED TURNIPS

(Six servings)

Cook 8 small pared turnips or 2 1/2 cups diced turnips in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain and put in a skillet with 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons corn sirup, and a blade of mace. Cook slowly until turnips are lightly browned, turning frequently.

TURNIPS WITH CHEESE SAUCE

(Serves six)

6 medium turnips
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup grated cheese
Dry bread crumbs

Peel turnips and slice into boiling, salted water. Cook until barely tender, about 15 minutes. Melt butter in sauce pan; stir in flour; cook gently until thickened. Add seasonings and cheese and continue cooking until cheese is melted. Place turnips in buttered casserole. Pour cheese sauce

FOOD IS CHEAPER THAN LAST YEAR, SURVEY SHOWS

Staples Lead Parade of Lower Prices.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Comparisons of prices gathered in The Tribune's annual survey of retail shopping centers in Chicago and suburbs showed yesterday that food costs are lower than they were at this time last year. Retail prices have followed the downward tendency on the central markets.

Staples lead the parade of lower prices. Butter is 6 to 8 cents a pound less now than a year ago. Flour is 10 to 20 cents less for a 24 1/2 pound sack. Milk has been reduced 2 cents a quart under prices a year ago. American cheese is off 2 to 4 cents a pound. Lard is 2 cents a pound lower. Evaporated milk is cheaper.

Most Canned Goods Lower.

Canned goods such as tomato juice, corn, sauerkraut, peas and tomatoes are all lower. Higher grades of coffee are off 2 to 3 cents a pound. A few fresh fruits and vegetables are higher, but most of them are lower than they were this time last year. Green bean prices are half of what they were twelve months ago. Cabbage is off 2 cents a pound. Head lettuce, lemons, dry and green onions, rutabaga, spinach, sweet potatoes, and turnips are all lower. Apples, bananas, green peas, potatoes, and radishes are higher.

Pork and lamb prices are down. Beef is up compared with prices prevailing one first part of last year. Lamb chops are 2 to 7 cents a pound off. Leg of lamb and pork spare ribs are lower in a few places. Most butchers are asking less for pork loin. Chicken: are off 2 to 8 cents a pound. However, beef pot roasts were 4 cents a pound less and steaks 2 to 10 cents a pound lower a year ago than they are now. Pears and cranberries are higher than last year.

Hog Prices are Down.

At Union Stockyards John Campbell, federal live stock reporter, has compiled figures showing that hog prices are 60 cents a hundredweight under a year ago. Fresh pork loins also are 50 cents a hundred lower.

Although butchers are asking less for lamb, farmers are being paid 25 cents to $1 a hundred more than a year ago, while dressed lamb is about the same. Choice steers are bringing $2 to $2.50 a hundred pounds more than a year ago. Dressed beef from these steers is $3 to $3.50 a hundred higher than at this time last year.

On the wholesale fruit and vegetable market prices compared with a year ago are lower on green beans,

GEORGE RECTOR TURNS TO SEAFOOD AFTER HOLIDAY FOWL SEASON

Ghosts of holiday fowl haunt the mid-January dining table, and jaded appetites clamor for a radical change of diet. At this juncture seafood is the recommendation of George Rector, the famous chef.

A few days ago Mr. Rector was so tempted by the sight of a tub of plump, white oysters that he took two dozen home and cooked them, saute in a frying pan. The recipe, his favorite way of preparing oysters, will be passed on to readers of his column in the women's section of next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

For the inland regions where oysters on the half shell are not obtainable Mr. Rector suggests the purchase of scallop shells. His suggestion for service on the shells is oysters casino. This recipe also will appear in his column Sunday.

Cabbage, cucumbers, rutabagas, spinach, onions, tangerines, strawberries, lemons, and Florida oranges. Wholesale prices are higher on apples, celery, pears, tomatoes, and potatoes. In the retail stores most of the price changes are downward this week compared with last. Bargain sales are being held in many stores today and tomorrow.

Butter and Lard Cheaper.

Butter is a penny a pound lower than a week ago. Lard is off 2 cents a pound. Green grocers are asking less for green beans and fresh tomatoes. In some places prices have been reduced on small oranges, carrots, lemons, strawberries, and Brussels sprouts.

Eggs are up in some stores and down in others with prices varying 1 to 2 cents a dozen.

In several stores bargains are offered in canned goods, including peaches, pears, corn, beans, tomatoes, grapefruit, corned beef, olives, apple sauce. Some are featuring cookies, soups, cereals, and corned beef.

Most meats are lower this week than last. Pork loin roasts are 2 to 4 cents a pound off. Several retail shops are offering lamb chops at 2 to 6 cents a pound lower and leg of lamb 6 cents a pound under a week ago.

Beef steaks are on sale in many places with round steak off 4 cents a pound, sirloin 9 cents, and porterhouse 8 cents a pound less. Beef pot roasts are off 2 cents a pound in several shops, while most butchers raised their prices an equal amount.

Wondering what to serve at that reception or tea? See Mary Meade's "Tips on Tea Parties" and "The New Sandwich Maker" for recipes and suggestions. The booklets are on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents each; by postpaid mail, 5 cents each.

Just serve as they come from the package in hot or cold milk. Sweeten to taste. Appetizing, nourishing, easily digestible, and economical.

100 YEARS CAN'T CALM FURY OF ERIN'S BIG WIND

Tales Blow Lustily Over Emerald Isle Tonight.

BY JOHN KELLEY.
(United Tribunes Police Reporter.)

Did you ever hear tell of the night of the Big Wind in Ireland? You probably have, but like many others you thought it was just a bit of folklore—a legendary tale. But there was a Big Wind in Ireland, and it blew 100 years ago tonight. So many fantastic stories have been told about it that there is no wonder most people think it fabulous.

On Jan. 6, 1839, a terrific hurricane swept across the Atlantic and hit Ireland close to the Lakes of Killarney. From south to north the gale cut a swath a half mile to a mile wide. The death toll was small, but great havoc was caused by the storm.

Scores of cabins unroofed. The greatest damage recorded was in the counties of Kerry, Cork, Limerick, and Tipperary. Scores of thatched cabins were unroofed, and it was miraculous that all but a few of the occupants escaped with minor injuries.

Twelfth night, on Jan. 6, is the conclusion of the Christmas holidays. In Ireland it is called Little Christmas, and in old days it was a night of feasting and merrymaking.

All Catholic families light a blessed candle on Christmas eve, and care is taken that part of it is left to light on Little Christmas night. On the night of the Big Wind candles were gleaming in every great house and in every humble cabin wherein dwelt a Catholic family.

The Gale Strikes. Soon after midnight, while the gaiety was still at its height, the gale struck MacGillivuddy's Reeks, or the "Heads of Kerry," and swept across Munster and Leinster. Dublin was in the path and much destruction was wrought.

Many persons attributed their good fortune in escaping death or injury to the candles that blazed the cabin windows. The custom of lighting the blessed candle is still observed and in every Catholic household in Ireland the story of the Big Wind will be retold tonight.

The Big Wind was an epoch in Irish history. Thousands of deaths, births, and marriages were reckoned from the date of that occurrence. Immigration of many Irish families to America was dated from that period of time and for more than half a century the Big Wind served as a handy calendar.

Story Is Handed Down.

The story of that night has been handed down from sire to son and from mother to daughter, so there will be shanachie galore in every one of the thirty-two counties on this centenary anniversary. "Shanachie" is the Irish word for story telling.

Here in Chicago, too, the story will be rehearsed in many homes where it has come down from grandparents who were born in Erin and vividly remembered the event.

In the early days of Chicago it was an annual custom with Irish families to recall the night of the Big Wind on its anniversary with anecdotal stories. One would tell of being wafted from this or that place to a market town and another would describe his air trip from Cork to Limerick and "never woke up out of his sleep."

A Great-Uncle's Story.

Here's one that my great-uncle used to tell. After lighting his pipe he would begin his narrative this way:

"We were livin' at Ballygran, in the County Limerick. We were landowners and we had grazin' for two or three cows. Yes, sir, we were gentlemen farmers. And we had goats and a jackass."

"There was a grand party at the house that night and everybody for miles around was there. They came from Ballygran and from New Castle West, and from Rathkeale, and from Kilmallock and Cappamore. We had potheen punch and there was dancin' and singin' and stin' and drinkin' galore."

"About w'en o'clock in the mornin' we heard an awful storm that nearly tumbled the house down on top of us. The fiddler and the piper stopped playin' and the dancers stopped jiggin'."

The First Air Mail.

"Well, sir, my hand to you, the wind lifted the roof off the house and carried it to Tipperary. Wan av my brothers had come out to America about a year before that and he was livin' in Boston or New York, I forget which. On the mornin' av the sixth av January he sat down and wrote a letter to my mother, tellin' her he wished he could be home on Little Christmas night for the fun and the frolic."

"He put the letter in his pants pocket and was goin' to send it to Ireland whin the first sailin' vessel wint out, but the woman where he was boardin' took the pants out av the room and hung them on the

BEAUTY SHOP OWNER GETS CONTINUANCE IN HIT-RUN INJURY CASE

A hearing on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident against Clarence Gunderson, proprietor of a beauty shop at 4028 Irving Park road, was continued yesterday to Jan. 31 by Judge Jay A. Schiller in Safety court. The continuance was requested by the state pending the recovery of Farnell Mooney, 5542 Jansen avenue, who was injured by an automobile near his home early Sunday morning.

Police reported that after Mooney was struck by the car Gunderson pretended to a crowd that gathered that he was a witness and that the driver of the car had fled, abandoning his car. Gunderson, according to police, offered to take the car to Town Hall station. Two witnesses took the number of the car and sent it to the station. When the accident was not reported and the car did not appear the police traced the number to Gunderson. Meanwhile Gunderson had reported his car stolen.

Police gave Gunderson a lie detector test and said the results would be made known at the trial. Meanwhile he is free on $100 bond.

clothesline. Pretty soon the wind came along and blew the pants across the Atlantic ocean. The next mornin' whin it got daylight we found the pants with the letter in wan av the pockets, on the front gate.

"Oh, the devil a word av a lie I'll tell you. There was my brother's moleskin pants, but the buttons were all off av it. I suppose the wind blew them off. Give me another jorum av that potheen and I'll tell ye about the cow that was blown from County Kerry to Clare."

STATE TO TEST SERVICE STATION GAS FOR QUALITY

The state today will start inspecting the quality of gasoline sold to motorists at Chicago filling stations. The announcement was made in Springfield last night by S. L. Nudelman, director of finance.

The investigation will be made with a mobile testing laboratory. The investigators will drive into filling stations and test their gasoline supplies on the spot.

Where fuel is found to be below minimum statute standards the station pumps will be conspicuously placarded "sub-standard." Heretofore the state has been testing bulk shipments of motor fuel.

DEPUTY WARDEN GOES ON TRIAL FOR OVEN DEATHS

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 5.—(P)—The commonwealth today contended that Frank A. Craven, on trial on a charge of murder in connection with the death of one of four convicts in "oven" punishment cells, was in charge of the Philadelphia county prison when the men perished last summer, but "stood callously by and let events take their tragic course."

Craven, one of ten suspended prison officers charged with the heat deaths, was deputy warden at the time twenty-five hunger striking prisoners were placed in "klondike" punishment cells.

Dr. Frederick S. Baldi, acting superintendent of prisons, testified deputy wardens have "exclusive charge" in discipline. Assistant District Attorney John A.

Boyle accused Craven of sending the men to the isolation building, ordering heat turned into a battery of seven radiators and "standing by callously." He said the commonwealth is not pressing for a first degree murder verdict, but expects conviction on a second degree charge.

Dr. Baldi testified he visited the "klondike" right after the four "baked" bodies were discovered.

A Statement of policy by American Can Company

CANCO SINGLE SERVICE PAPER MILK CONTAINERS will be available to all dairies

THIS statement of policy is addressed to all dairies in the Chicago area. It appears in newspapers because it is also important to every family.

Recently Canco paper milk containers were introduced into stores in the Chicago suburbs. Before this convenient, single service container was introduced, we made sure that its use was practical for both large and small dairies. American Can Company has not restricted and will not restrict its use to a few dairies. This economical container will be made available to all dairies in the Chicago area.

Every week in other cities millions of quarts of milk are being sold in this Canco paper milk container. It has already proved to have important advantages to dairies, storekeepers and to the public... and will continue to be sold for the most economical use of all.

APPROVED BY HEALTH AUTHORITIES

The Canco paper milk container has been approved by health authorities of many cities. Two advantages from the public health standpoint are:

1 Every step from raw material to finished container is under strict sanitary supervision of experts. Thus American Can Company exercises centralized control over the sanitation of each container.

2 The closure cap is integral with the top and cannot be detached. This permits closing the cap under sterile conditions in the factory; it remains closed against contamination until mechanically opened in the dairy immediately prior to filling. In the home, the cap is always available for reclosing the container.

TESTED BY UNIVERSITY SCIENTISTS

Exhaustive tests made on Canco paper milk containers under all sorts of extreme conditions, by scientists of different universities, show that the use of Canco paper milk containers is a distinct advance in the sanitary packaging, sale and distribution of milk.

ECONOMICAL FOR DAIRIES

Dairies adopting the Canco paper milk container do not need to buy expensive machinery. The only equipment necessary is a combination filler and sealer, which is leased to the dairy at a nominal rental.

Therefore, the Canco paper milk container will be made available to all dairies in the Chicago area.

Briton's Wiscrack.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke looked up from his after-the-theater supper as the orchestra in the Pump room struck up the Lambeth Walk and Don and Audrey LeMaire started counting eight for the benefit of the participating guests.

"I'm more ashamed of that than I am of the Munich pact," he said.

It's amazing that the Lambeth Walk should have caught on as it did, with dancers following the routine even to Cockney pointed thumb and resounding "Ol." The tune probably is the answer. It's such a gay, innocent, lilting tune. Hope it's perpetuated on merry-go-rounds.

Item Relayed From Harvard.

A young student of archaeology at Harvard decided to take Babylonian cylinder seals for the mid-year thesis. He selected a book on the subject in the Widener library. The librarian smiled as she stamped the date. The last withdrawal of the book had been April 4, 1894.

Spoonerism.

Dean Emeritus Wigmore of Northwestern university pulled a neat spoonerism the other day in class. He had been discussing the internment of enemy aliens.

"Holland put enemy aliens in the goose-house during the war," he said.

One of the famous remarks perpetrated by Prof. Spooner at Oxford concerned, you may recall, the lad who had "hissed all his mystery courses."

Query.

A mother brought her 4 year old daughter to a beauty shop for a permanent wave. The child did not favor the procedure and so she was taken into a room to talk with a middle aged woman who was having a permanent.

"How lovely you will look when you get your curls—just like Shirley Temple," said the woman encouragingly to the child.

"Who are you going to look like?" retorted the child.

Lipstone Alumni.

Movie critics and associates of Louis Lipstone, gathered to do him honor at Gibby's at luncheon yesterday, were recalling the celebrities who were once under the Lipstone aegis. For 21 years musical director and then general stage production manager for Balaban & Katz, Lipstone leaves next week for Hollywood to become musical director for Paramount.

Vincent Minelli, producer of the last Ziegfeld Follies; Leon Loidoff, and Adolph Deutch are Lipstone alumni.

His department also contributed

Dave Gould, dance director on the M-G-M lot and Val Rossett, dance director for RKO. Benny Goodman, long before swing, was a featured clarinetist and something of a boy wonder in Lipstone's orchestra at the Central Park theater.

Christopher Morley, author and literary critic, will open Northwestern university winter lecture series at Orchestra hall tonight. He will speak on "Literature and Companionship." Casino to Hold Rag Cotillion Friday, the 13th

BY JUDITH CASS.

FRIDAY, THE 13TH, holds no superstitious terrors for Casino club members, for already reservations are closed for a party the club is giving on Friday, Jan. 13. One might think that every one was fed up with parties after the gay holiday season, but this is not the case at all, judging by the responses to the invitations to a dinner the governors planned just last week.

The party is to be a dinner and cotillion, a rag cotillion in fact, which is something most of those who will go to the party have not enjoyed since their teen age days.

The chairman of the Casino's entertainment committee, Mrs. Huntington E. Henry, and those helping her arrange the party, are anxious that a favorite cotillion leader of a generation ago, who now is out of town, will lead the cotillion. His acceptance is all that is needed to insure the most successful and delightful party imaginable.

Have Lots of Favors at Rag Cotillion.

A rag cotillion calls for lots of favors: Silly hats, toys, noisemakers, balloons, etc. Most of those who will be entertaining at dinner that night probably will invite their adult sons and daughters so that the young people may see the sort of fun their elders had thirty years ago. Cotillion dances were unknown then, but there was plenty of exchange of partners, just the same.

Only members were invited to the party the Casino governors gave a month ago, but each dinner hostess of next Friday is permitted two non-member guests. Those who have reserved tables for from 12 to 20 are the Henrys, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, who is president of the club, and Mr. Hibbard; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers, the Bryan S. Reids, the Arthur Meekers, the Bowman Linges, the Allyn Warrens, the Walter R. Kirks, the Hampden Winstons, the Charles F. Freemans, the Paul Hamills, the Howard Farnons, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cumming, the Charles E. Browns, the Frederick A. Prestons, and the James Ward Thornes.

Polish Ambassador Arrives Tomorrow.

Count Jerzy Potocki, the Polish ambassador, is coming to Chicago tomorrow to attend "A Night in Poland" reception, dinner and ball to be given by the board of directors of the Kosciuszko foundation. He will be busy with official things from the time he arrives until he retires tomorrow night. But Sunday he will spend with his relative here, Count Anthony Potocki, and his wife, the former Gloria Griffiths.

Fairly early Sunday morning the Potockis will take their distinguished cousin out to the Exmoor Country club to shoot skeet and then they will bring him back to their apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive for an informal luncheon party. They are inviting just about a dozen of their close friends.

The ambassador leaves at 3:30 o'clock for Washington. Rafael Lemkowski, who used to be Polish vice consul here and now is secretary of the Polish embassy in Washington, is coming to Chicago with the ambassador.

Dr. Wacław Gwaronowski, consul general of Poland in Chicago, and Chauncey McCormick are honorary chairmen of the committee in charge of tomorrow night's affair, to be given in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Mrs. Lawrence A. Meeker and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf are among the associate chairmen and Julius F. Smietanka is president of the executive committee.

Series of Chamber Music Concerts.

Chamber music devotees are delighted with announcements received yesterday for a series of chamber orchestra concerts under the direction of Hans Lange, assisted by the Philharmonic String quartet. The concerts will be held on Monday afternoons at 4:30 o'clock on Jan. 30, Feb. 27, March 27, and April 24 in the ballroom of the Blackstone hotel.

Dance Dress at Modest Price

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]
This modestly priced but picturesque new dance dress of plaid taffeta increases its popularity with the beauty of the pattern and the wide swirl of the skirt. A tiny fitted bodice has a narrow halter strap. Accessories repeat any color of the gold, green, and white plaid. The background is black.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We've been hearing a great deal about the new short hair cut and we find it quite the most important hair-dressing news of the moment. Great things are being done in the shop which introduced it.

With this hairdress the hair is cut about four and a half inches in length all over the head. With a very soft permanent this makes it possible to dress the hair in a variety of fashions. If you are at all deft with a comb you yourself can switch your hair around in a couple of becoming ways. You can smooth it down to a soft, up-turned roll high at the back of the neck. You can have puffs or curls all over your head if you want them. Or you can have a flock of curls in front and on the top with perfect smoothness at the sides and in back. This has been especially successful in the case of fine thin hair. The good permanent is important, of course, to give that kind of hair the body it needs. But the uniformly short length makes it possible to fluff the hair out softly, concealing all the rather bare patches of scalp which show up so dreadfully when the hair is too thin.

The woman who likes a casual, easy-to-care-for hairdress will find the new short length a great comfort. Many of us, it seems to this department, are pretty weary of fussing with our hair. There's been entirely too much to do about it, and the hair-dresses have been too elaborate and too hard to maintain. Shorter hair begins to look like an answer. The high line is maintained without too much trouble and becomingness is just as easily attained.

Don't be afraid to try a short, curly cut. It has possibilities.

Patent Leather Leads Parade of New Shoes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Here's a preview of the early foot-wear shows! For the next six weeks patent leather footwear in every kind of a sandal, street oxford and pump will take the most money. Patent leather will break all records for popularity during the inbetween season; first, because it's especially neat and well groomed for any size foot; second, because it can be kept immaculate with the smallest amount of attention; third, because it is so high fashion.

You'll find models for every sort of costume you own, office, street, country and town as well as dress parade. All heights of heels are plentiful and all the newest heel ideas, including the layer cake or spool formations.

Seventy-five per cent of all the models will have open toes—BUT the openings are not as large as heretofore. Open backs are another feature that will appear when the weather tames down. Comfort is stressed. Even the large sizes are popular; so much ingenuity has been expended on slenderizing details and outline that no one could guess the real sizes.

The good looking reptile models are high fashion at its best. These are knockout finds, good for immediate wear as stunning contrast for oxford, navy, deep brown, green, and black cloths. The lizard skin is of a most effective light gray and white pattern, beautifully marked and matched.

Lizard skin, as supple and thin as the finest kidskin, has been used for smart pumps and walking oxfords, tie pumps or oxfords, and some cut-out sandals that are quite the smartest lot that have been unpacked in years. Fine workmanship, smooth lines, and this extra high fashion shade of gray make them fashion excitement.

Belts and extremely smart handbags in the expertly selected and matched lizard skins make additional costume accessories that cannot be equaled for sophisticated swank. Even the shoppers who have never liked reptile skin affairs before are falling for these beauties. Prices are amazingly low for such perfect finds.

Fashion photograph—the crisp rustling taffeta dance dress priced for the career girl uses a spectacular plaid taffeta in circular cut wide skirt. A mere thin strap, halter fashion, keeps the tiny bodice in place. Around the top of the fitted bodice are folds of the taffeta, achieving a decorative effect with the cross plaid design. The background is black, the plaids in vivid green, gold and white.

Bride of Herbert Bryant

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Margot Couzens Chewing, daughter of Mrs. James Couzens and the late United States senator, was married today to Herbert Bryant of Alexandria, Va. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's mother in suburban Bloomfield Hills. The marriage is the second for the bride, who eloped in 1930 with William Jeffries Chewing Jr. of Fredericksburg, Va. They were divorced a year ago.

Boy Borrowing from Girl Has Little Manhood

BY DORIS BLAKE.

(Copyright, 1939, By The Chicago Tribune. All Rights Reserved.)

"I have a friend who is very dear to me. I cannot talk to her about this. But maybe you can write something that will be of value to girls in a position similar to hers."

"She has a suitor who started to borrow money from her. He has a job. At times he will pay back small amounts on his loan. Then he turns around and borrows back twice as much. She believes that he intends to marry her soon and that will automatically wipe out the debts, she says. We think that he will just keep on borrowing from her and step off with some one else on the borrowed money. It is his lack of shame in borrowing from a girl that has us worried about the girl's future with him. Could a girl be happy with a husband with so little sense of responsibility?"

"INTERESTED."

We are with you in believing that the girl is letting herself in for an unhappy experience should she marry the man. However, it is more likely that he will not marry her. When a man borrows on terms such as are described, he indicates clearly a lack of feeling for the lender as well as a yellow streak in his makeup. Nevertheless, the girl is to blame. In the first place, she never should have loaned the first dollar. Or, if in a reasonable emergency the money was extended, she should have seen it all

Do You Wear Clothes or Do They Wear You Instead?

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

(Copyright, 1939, By The Chicago Tribune. All Rights Reserved.)

In our present beauty scheme there's no argument whatever about the influence of clothes. They're the frame in which to present the lovely one to her public. It goes without saying, of course, that she wouldn't be worth framing were she not groomed, manicured, coiffed to flatter the whole artful presentation.

So much is talked about clothes that flatter, highlight, complement, beauty. We talk about them as good, lines that flatter, and camouflage. And we talk about them as keeping women up to the minute.

But Mill Monti, exotic Italian singer, brings up a point on which, perhaps, not enough thought is given. She puts it in question form: "Do you wear clothes, or do your clothes wear you?"

American women, she concedes, are the world's best dressed, and this without argument. They dress to suit occasion. Their accessories are right. They look neat and lovely, yet there is about many of them a certain something that proclaims that their clothes dominate them. In this lies the difference between the continental women and ours. The continental woman no longer has a monopoly on being well turned out, but she does know how to relax in her clothes, to rise above them, so to speak. She worries about a gown when she is buying, but once it is on her back, she knows how to forget about it. So Mme. Monti says.

In the self-confidence and poise that is insured by forgetting clothes once they're donned, Mme. Monti sees the true basis of chic. The time for self-consciousness, she says, is when the gown is being selected. That's when one is justified in fussing.

The important thing in selecting a frock, according to our informant, is to be sure it is comfortable. Have it fit well—be snug where it should be snug and loose where it is necessary. If it pulls across the shoulders or at the waist, if it clings to the legs when you walk, or rides up when you sit down, discard it.

Never buy anything you aren't sure you love. Don't let the pressure influence you against your own better judgment.

er unaware of his borrowing peccadilloes. This problem of lending and borrowing is a vexing one, to put it mildly, and one that concerns a goodly number of our girls. There is no better advice we can offer than to advise girls to turn down the first request flat and cold and spare themselves an unhappy affiliation with a borrower.

returned before the second touch. Then, there should have been no second touch allowed. That's when the showdown begins and the lender has a particle of manhood, his reaction would be to dislike the girl in whose eyes he has reduced himself to the position of borrower. When he wants his ego inflated, it will not be to her he will look, but to some fair stranger.

great success with chamber concerts in New York when he was one of the conductors of the Philharmonic orchestra. Some of the Chicagoans who are assisting him in planning the Chicago series are Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., the John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, the John C. Murphys, and the Charles H. Swifts.

Mrs. Lila Hots Luce to Be Married Today.

Of interest to Chicagoans because the bride lived here as a girl is the wedding this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Gladstone, N. J., of Mrs. Lila Hots Luce and Sewell Tappan Tyng of New York. The Rev. Lauren Bennett of the Presbyterian church of Basking Ridge will read the service in the bride's home, Lu Shan, in the presence of the immediate families, including the bride's two sons, her mother, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, and her brother, Robert S. Hots and his wife.

Mr. Tyng is the son of Mrs. William Adams Klissam of New York. He is well known in legal and social circles and now is one of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's chief assistants. His first wife was Ruth Haggood, daughter of the late Norman Haggood, a native of Chicago. This marriage was ended by divorce, as was the bride's marriage to Henry R. Luce. Mr. and Mrs. Tyng will spend their honeymoon abroad.

Reveal Engagement of Miss Barbara Kimball.

Chicagoans will be interested in the announcement that Mr. and Mrs. William Rice Kimball, formerly of Oak Park, have made in Ogden, Utah, of the engagement of their daughter, Barbara, to Matt G. Browning of Ogden. The wedding is to take place on Jan. 14 in the First Presbyterian church in Ogden.

Miss Kimball's aunt, Mrs. Henry Coleman Crowell of Winnetka, and her grandmother, Mrs. S. Herbert Kimball of Pasadena, formerly of Oak Park, will go to Ogden for the wedding.

Miss Kimball is a graduate of Leland Stanford university. Her fiancé is a grandson of John Browning, inventor of the Browning machine gun. He and his bride will sail for Europe on Jan. 21 and will go directly to Liege, Belgium, where Mr. Browning will be associated with the Browning interests.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Malcolm Nicolson have cards out to meet Mr. and Mrs. Orson Welles from 5 to 6 o'clock on Monday at the Fortnightly. Mrs. Welles is the former Virginia Nicolson. Her husband is the well known actor-producer.

Franco's Agent to Speak Today.

Juan P. de Cardenas, American agent of Generalissimo Franco of Spain and former Spanish ambassador to the United States and to France, will be the speaker at a luncheon-meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at 12:30 o'clock today in the Palmer House. This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter are giving a reception for him at their home. Mr. de Cardenas is staying with the Carpenters. Tonight his hosts will entertain at dinner.

Laird Bell, president of the council, will preside at today's meeting. The Stewart Harveys are entertaining at tea this afternoon for some Kansas City friends, Baron and Baroness Kurtz Ferdinand de Pantez and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Keith. The Harveys moved back to Chicago this fall after spending a year or two in Kansas City.

Gives Dinner Tonight for Two Debutantes.

Mrs. Niles Trammell is entertaining at dinner at the Racquet club tonight for Subdebutantes Virginia Elwood and Nancy Cochran. Following dinner the group will go on to the first Fortnightly dance of the new year at the Fortnightly club.

Because Sasha A. Siemel's illustrated lecture on "Getting the Killers" will be as much, if not more, interest to men than to women, the Woman's Athletic club has arranged a dinner tonight instead of a luncheon in connection with Mr. Siemel's talk. Each member may invite three guests to hear the big game hunter speak at 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. William Sherman is to be the hostess today at the final program of the lecture-luncheon series the association of the Woman's Symphony orchestra have been sponsoring this winter. John Palmer and Mae Doelling Schmidt will give the program at 11 o'clock in the ballroom of the Woman's Athletic club. Luncheon will follow.

Talk on South Seas.

Karl P. Schmidt of the Field museum staff will give an illustrated lecture on his experiences in the South Seas at the Chicago Academy of Sciences, at 3 o'clock Sunday. Mr. Schmidt recently directed the Crane expedition to Borneo.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. George Yanochowicz of La Grange announce the engagement of their daughter, Isabel, to Marcus O. Shivers Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Marcus O. Shivers of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Miss Yanochowicz was graduated from the University School for Girls and Colorado college. Mr. Shivers took his pre-legal course at Colorado college and now is studying law at the University of Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. William N. Darling of 5315 Washington boulevard have announced the engagement of their daughter, Catherine Mary, to Fred Lee Barnes Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Barnes of Evanston.

Symphony Pays Annual Tribute to Its Founder

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Frederick Stock honored his old chief last night when he directed in Orchestra hall the first of the annual pair of concerts dedicated to the Chicago Symphony orchestra (to its founder and first conductor, Theodore Thomas. The second concert comes this afternoon, and the program will be the same. It consists of Debussy's "Berceuse Heroique," the Beethoven Fifth symphony, and Strauss' "Ein Heldenleben."

Thomas died on Jan. 4, 1905 (thirty-four years ago last Wednesday), after he had labored here for fourteen years and had seen his hope of a permanent home for the orchestra come to fruition. Orchestra hall had been completed and he had actually conducted therein. Then, with Theodore Thomas' work done and his life at an end, his baton passed to a man of 33 who had been a member of the violin section of the orchestra for several years.

The fact that that man was Frederick Stock, and that he is conducting these two memorial concerts, is far from being the only link between the present orchestra and the organization of 1905. Three other of the musicians have played under Thomas as well as Stock. There is Franz Esser, violinist, now in his 47th season with the orchestra. Hjalmar Rabe, bassoon, is this year celebrating his forty-fourth year as a member of the orchestra. Paul Handke, another Thomas man, doubles as trumpet player and librarian. He is the efficient fellow whom you see passing out parts to the orchestra.

The Debussy "Berceuse Heroique," a newcomer to the program books of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, turns out to be a suitable addition to the music traditionally used at these memorial concerts. Written after the war and dedicated to King Albert of Belgium and his soldiers, the Berceuse has a high seriousness of manner and immense dignity of content. In this work the composer paid his little tribute to the men who were actually bearing the brunt of the world catastrophe—in particular to the hopelessly outnumbered little Belgian army retreating mile by mile into its own tiny country. The Belgian anthem is quoted.

The Berceuse was followed by a Fifth symphony which was revived by the conductor's determination that no single phrase should be presented in a perfunctory, all in the day's work manner. "Ein Heldenleben" ("A Hero's Life") profited by the noble sonority which is one of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's most marked characteristics and by the tenderness with which its more lyrical passages were treated. The solo violin of John Weichelt dealt exquisitely with the love theme.

FAREWELL BY BALLET

BY GEORGE SMITH. With a quadruple bill of "L'Epreuve d'Amour," "Seventh Symphony," "The Afternoon of a Faun," and "Gaiety Parisienne" the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo last night took leave of its Auditorium theater following two months. The company will return for a three day weekend of five performances beginning March 3.

A capacity audience was on hand to applaud a brilliant program in which virtually all the company's leading luminaries appeared. In one cast or another were found the names of Alicia Markova, Alexandra Danilova, Maria Slavenska, Nini Theilade, Leonide Massine, Igor Youskevitch, Michel Panoff, Frederic Franklin, and many others of only slightly less prominence.

Alicia Markova's first appearance in "L'Epreuve d'Amour" gave the evening its only touch of novelty. As might be expected, her dancing was the quintessence of controlled grace and beauty of line.

Anatol Fistoulari and Franz Allers shared the conducting duties.

Reds Attempt Style Revolution in Shoes; Huge Waste Charged

MOSCOW, Jan. 5.—(P)—Extreme new designs in shoes for women have stirred a storm in the Soviet Russian shoe industry.

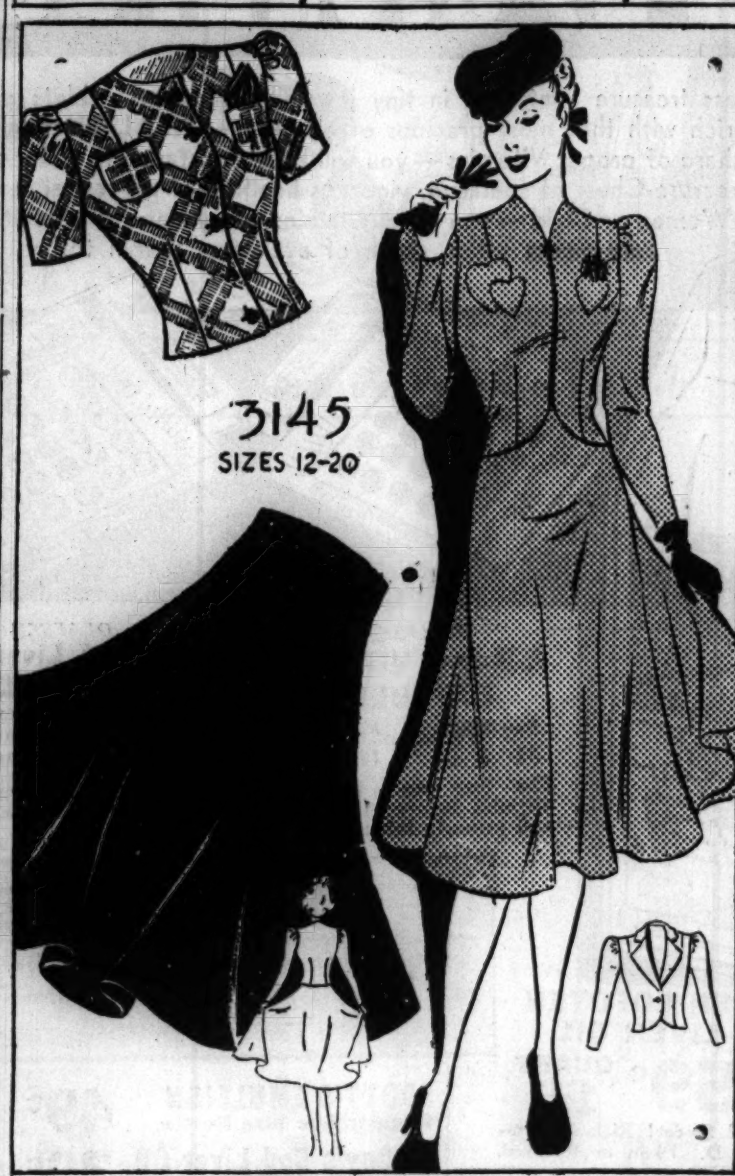

Pravda, communist party organ, attributed the following unusual models to a Comrade Pekar, whom it called a "young style maniac": "Soviet Music"—a shoe has an open toe and a treble clef design instead of a buckle.

"Park of Culture and Rest"—Which features a high heel representing a parachute tower and a parachute tower on the toe.

Other models are called "Collective Harvest" and "North Pole Flight from Moscow to America."

Pravda expressed indignation over the designs because the result was 33,000 rubles (nominally about $6,500) "squandered" in the central market in designing models which Pekar hoped "would revolutionize the shoe industry."

Essentially Youthful Style

MISS TWO PIECE DRESS. The skating skirt silhouette has captured fashion's fancy so much that it is being worn with great effectiveness for the street. It is an essentially youthful style, designed for slender silhouettes, so matronly figures had better avoid it. Here's a style for the young in heart and figure proportions! With the skirt we've teamed a brief, snugly fitted jacket with a high, heart shaped neckline and fetching heart pockets motifs. There is no collar, and the blouse has a zipper closing. The sleeves are puffed at the shoulders and gradually become slim toward the wrists.

If you like, make the blouse with a high, round, collarless neckline, short sleeves, two pockets, and buttons down the front. It might well be of plaid, to contrast to a plain skirt.

Style No. 3145 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39 inch material for the version with heart pockets and long sleeves.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By My Culbertson.] During the past year I have written several articles lambasting the practice of answering an opening two bid with an ace showing response. I have gone to great lengths to prove that this immediate ace showing is not nearly as good for partnership bidding as an immediate natural response (assuming that responder has the values for a positive bid). There are plenty of bidding conventions by means of which aces can be located after the trump suit is determined. Question 31 of the recent examination was deliberately devised to trap players who use the immediate ace showing convention. This question was:

With both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

North East South West
2 hearts Pass
You are South and hold:
A 6 7 8 ♠ Q 10 8 6 5 ♦ J 10 ♣
What call do you make?

I was considerably relieved to find that 96 per cent of the answers gave three diamonds as the proper response and that of the 4 per cent that had gone wrong, there were only a few scattered two spade bids. The 20 point demerit given for any response other than three diamonds was incurred almost invariably by a two no trump response. Apparently about 700 timid examiners felt that they needed a better hand for a positive response. For their sakes I hope they have better hands when their partners open with a two bid, but I doubt that they will have.

British Queen Puts Crinolines Back in Style

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] LONDON, Jan. 5.—Since Queen Elizabeth launched the new fashion in crinolines at a Buckingham palace dinner to King Carol of Rumania, every one has been talking about the way in which she has changed. From a woman who was almost dowdily dressed and who insisted on having bangs hanging over her forehead, she has become a leader of fashion.

And yet she has achieved this change in the course of a couple of years so that now what she wears does count in the world of fashion.

Her transformation comes from no lack of good advice and good dressmakers to begin with, of course. It comes also from the fact that while as duchess of York she could dress as smartly as the opposite as she pleased. As queen she has been obliged by the prestige of her position to play close attention to fashion so that she can play her part as the wife of the sovereign.

Besides that a new fashion set by the queen means hundreds of pounds in trade and industry for this country. In the case of the crinoline fashion, for instance, not only do dressmakers and designers get more business but the Lancashire textile mills take on more help. Each crinoline dress requires about three times more material than would an ordinary dress. It's one way of providing work for mill girls!

Dressmakers, furriers, milliners, and manufacturers look to the queen to provide something more than charm and taste in her style of dressing. They all want something which will set a definite lead. Here are some of the ways in which the queen has achieved her new smartness: More queenly gowns for evening and state occasions. Skirts and trains strewn with sparkling embroidery, sequins, paillettes; off-the-shoulder lines which give a dignified poise to the head.

Sacrifice of her favorite pastel shades for the smarter and more sophisticated black and white ensembles. Striking lines in millinery; higher crowns to increase her apparent height.

Emphasis on the good neckline; the queen made the heart-shaped neck, which is still smart, and she brought back the Bertha collar and the shoulder cape.

Squared shoulders, more compact silhouettes by day.

Abandoning the three-quarter and seven-eighths ensemble coat for one of exactly the same length as the dress beneath.

Shorter skirts.

Experts mark three definite steps in the queen's smarter fashions. The first step came with the coronation. Released from mourning, she wore her first really magnificent state gown.

The second development was the visit to France in July, when the queen chose a dazzling all-white wardrobe to appear before the most fashion-conscious nation in the world.

The third stage was her triumph in establishing the crinoline as the new court vogue to be welcomed by dress designers and worn by smart women all over the country.

All previous attempts at revival, based on the efforts of individual dressmakers, academy pictures, and period plays, have failed. Women said the crinoline was uncomfortable, unflattering, awkward to move in, difficult to keep in order, and expensive in material.

Now that the queen has given her patronage the same women are saying how becoming it is to plump and slender alike, how elegant for dancing, how completely right for evening wear as a foil to the short skirts and plain tailored lines of day clothes.

Physically the queen is hardly the ideal fashion leader; she is shortish and plump, and like the typical British woman, her attraction lies in coloring and expression more than in perfection of feature. Unlike the "elegant mannequin," she inspires women with confidence, not despair.

Smart yet practical women know that they can follow her lead without looking ridiculous. Fashionable women whose smartness does not spring from an artificial glamor say to themselves: "If she can wear that so can I," and they launch out into a new style.

Crochet Edging Is Easy Work for the Vacationist

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

For the summer or winter vacationist who takes along a bit of crochet or needlework, it is suggested that the crochet edging on this lovely luncheon set be made while she is sitting on the veranda or in the sun. The "Snowflake" edging is another one of those dainty, lacelike designs which simulate the fragile, crystallized moisture of the snow itself.

For crocheting instructions for the "Snowflake" edging on the luncheon set, No. X-170, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The Housewife

If you are the owner of one of those good looking white porcelain able-bodied kitchen-stoves you'll want to protect the snowy whiteness with a rubber mat made especially for this purpose. Rectangular in shape, it is perforated and protects dishes and glassware, as well as porcelain surfaces, from scratching, discoloring, and chipping.

This mat, being perforated, drains perfectly. It can be used in the sink or on the drain board of the sink. To clean it simply wash it with soap and water. Colors available are red, green, and blue.

Several Absent as Roosevelts Entertain for Supreme Court

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt held their reception honoring the justices of the Supreme court tonight.

Not all the justices attended, however.

Justice McReynolds' home said he had not been to the White House reception "for some time" and probably would not attend. Justice and Mrs. Brandeis almost never go out at night. Justice and Mrs. Butler did not arrange to go because Mrs. Butler was not feeling well.

The reception marked the first appearance in the "cabinet line" of Harry Hopkins, newly appointed secretary of commerce, and Frank Murphy, appointed to succeed Homer Cummings as attorney general.

The thirteenth annual luncheon meeting of the Service Council for Girls will be held next Tuesday in the College club, 196 East Delaware place. Mrs. Burnett D. Warner is president. The Rev. John B. Hubbard, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church of Park Ridge, will speak.

Remake School Into Stage for Teaching Tests

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

If you want to teach a youngster all about book binding, for instance, don't talk about book binding and don't have him read books about it.

Instead, tell the boy a story of an old book binder with a long beard who got his beard stuck in a binding press. And in order to get his beard out without cutting it off he had to do all sorts of things with the press. By the time the book binder frees himself, Johnnie will know all about the press, what it does, and how and why.

Moreover, the boy will be curious about the craft of bookbinding and be "conditioned" as the educators say, for learning the business.

This dramatic method of teaching by indirection has been studied for five years by a group of educators who announce that a children's laboratory theater, scientifically supervised, will be opened jointly on Feb. 1 by Pestalozzi Froebel Teachers college and the Columbia college of drama and radio.

The new laboratory, first of its kind, is the final step resulting from study of 3,000 children by Norman Alexandroff, director of Columbia college; Herman Hoffer Hoffer, of the Froebel school, and Dr. John De Boer, director of practice teaching at Chicago Normal college.

The Alexandroff studies came to national notice three years ago when findings showed that the appeal to children of blood and thunder radio strips did not lie in their violence but in the tempo or motion of the drama.

Tests were made on thousands of Chicago school children by respiratory, circulatory, and electrodermal instruments [this last instrument measures reactions causing hair raising and goose pimples]. These tests showed that stories of real life and educational subjects absorbed the attention of the children as completely whenever presented with the same dramatic tempo as blood curdling adventure.

The studies are held by the Froebel educators to prove that children learn almost exclusively through dramatic impulses. The educators predict that the future of all secondary education lies in presenting things to be learned in dramatic form.

Mr. Alexandroff said that the educators agreed that if children were guided in dramatic performances in their own theater, their dramatic impulses would develop their imaginations for grasping educational facts. "At the same time we will learn how children may retain basic dramatic impulses and exert them in a healthy manner, rather than in channels which today are producing so many erratic and nervous types of children," he said.

Shrine Circus Will Hold Chicago Night Program

Mayor Kelly and other high city officials are expected to attend the Chicago night performance at the Shrine Winter circus in the International Amphitheater tonight. Police units will drill, and the Police Legion post band and other bands will participate. Last night was Medical night. More than 1,000 doctors and nurses, the latter in white uniform, attended.

Four More High Schools to Hold Dances Tonight

Miss Ernestine Batt, director of the public school dance centers, announced yesterday that four more high schools would be added to those holding Friday night dances. The new schools are Tilden, Melvyn Park, Farragut, and Amundsen.

Remove Causes That Underlie Teasing Habit

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

After writing for several days on teasing it occurred to me that some of my readers might feel themselves left a little up in the air by Tuesday's article. That was the one which mentioned the fact that chronic teasing was sometimes more than just the surface passing phase of those obnoxious, rambunctious years around 9 and 10 and 11.

I listed some of the reasons why a child's personality might be disturbed in a way which would express itself in teasing, but I did not go into ways of removing those causes. Naturally, many parents could and would work that out for themselves, but for some others a few suggestions might clear the way.

Bullying and chronic (not casual) teasing are akin. Either may arise from a sense of inadequacy, of inferiority, of insecurity, of hurt, of being set aside. When on Tuesday I used the word jealousy [which I seldom do] I meant it in this sense. These feelings may exist in the schoolroom, on the playground, or at home.

When they do, it follows that that boy or girl must be built up in his own esteem, and he must be made to feel loved and wanted. And remember, that you may truly love and want your child, but he must be made to know it.

If a boy can't shine at lessons, and some other field in which he can shine, something he can do well: Play a drum in the school orchestra, tap dance, do swell carpentry, make radios, or raise rabbits.

If he can't get on with other children, sail in and help him. He can join clubs, Scouts, the "Y." You can have small parties or invite "the kids" to the house casually.

If a new or at least a younger brother or sister of calm, sunny, and engaging ways is in the scene, make a deliberate effort to give the older a place in the sun. Praise, real interest, pride and affection—what builder-uppers they are of self-esteem and security!

The Stage

The opening date of Cornelia Otis Skinner's production of Shaw's "Candida" at the Grand Opera house has been moved to Tuesday evening, Jan. 24.

The change has been made to avoid conflict with the premiere of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," which comes to the Selwyn theater Monday, Jan. 23.

"Shadow and Substance," the drama starring Sir Cedric Hardwicke at the Selwyn theater, has posted Saturday, Jan. 14, as its closing date. The theater will then remain dark for a week until the arrival of "Our Town."

HAWKS LOSE 1ST GAME UNDER NEW MANAGER

DEAN SIGNS FOR '39; COSTLY ARM IS SOUND AGAIN

Sets Season Goal at 20 Triumphs.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The loquacious Dizzy Dean, who was in good voice throughout last season but otherwise so feeble that he was able to win only seven games for the Cubs, now is physically O. K. At least, he is so close to that delightful state that he should be perfect by the time the present National League championship square off in defense of their title.

The opinion of Dizzy's condition and his possibilities for the future were passed on yesterday by Dr. Sumner L. Koch, who examined the latest set of X-ray negatives of the $185,000 arm and marveled at the improvement since the athlete began his rest cure a couple of months ago.

Immediately after this reassuring report had been given, Vice President Charles (Boss) Weber offered Dean a contract and the speed with which Dizzy, a notorious holdout when with the Cardinals, signed, indicated there hadn't been much reduction, if any from his 1938 pay of $20,500.

Rest Is the Order.

All Dean has to do now is to keep on resting the arm for which the club paid $185,000 last April, despite previous knowledge that it had collapsed from overwork. The inactivity, except for leg work, must continue until about the second week of March, when he will be permitted to throw some baseballs on the Catalina Island training lot. Then, if everything goes along as predicted by the physician, he can start bearing down by degrees and still later, possibly by the latter part of April, he may be strong enough to start a game.

After hearing the Dr. Koch talk, Dizzy felt the necessity of a few words from himself. He immediately raised his previous estimate of his own worth, which he set at eight victories. He decided he'd win twenty decisions, so he wouldn't have to apologize every two weeks for accepting what that fat pay check. But Dizzy's enthusiasm runs contrary to the record of pitchers who have experienced similar arm trouble.

He Had a Narrow Escape.

The surgeon's optimistic view of the X-ray shots saved Dizzy considerable inconvenience. He didn't know it, but if the muscle injury in the upper arm hadn't shown improvement he was to be put in a harness and ordered to stay there. The harness, or brace, was to be a device which would make it impossible for him to use the arm for anything more violent than lifting a fork full of potatoes. The harness was tried on Dean once before but it didn't suit him. He was strapped up last spring and was ordered to give the contraption at least a five week trial. Right after this he went to the Cardinals' training camp but was annoyed by the fact that he wasn't able to throw a ball. So he cut off the hobble, began using the arm and in no time definitely was back in the lineup, where he remained all season, despite the frantic efforts of the Chicago club to prove its $185,000 wasn't mispent.

Roy Riels (He Ran Wrong Way) Is Sued for Divorce

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Roy Riels of wrong way football fame, was named defendant in a divorce action filed today. The former University of California player whose 75 yard run toward his own goal resulted in a safety that spelled victory for Georgia Tech in the 1929 Rose Bowl game, was accused by his wife, Josephine, of being morose and critical. Mrs. Riels asks custody of two daughters, Alexa, 4, and Helen, 2, and $50 a month for their support.

THE GUMPS—MIN LACKS ANDY'S ENTHUSIASM

DEADLINE NEARS FOR 220 SILVER SKATES ENTRIES

Contestants Must File by Midnight Tomorrow.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Two days remain for contestants to enter the twenty-second Silver Skates Derby which will be held in Garfield park on Jan. 14 and 15. Even if the races cannot be conducted on those days, the list of contestants eligible to compete will include only those who file their entries by midnight tomorrow. All letters postmarked before that time will be accepted. It is evident now that the number of contestants will exceed 3,000, an average for the last several years. As usual, many of these do not belong to clubs, and they are entered in the four classes for skaters under 16 years of age. These contestants—boys' midget, boys' juvenile, boys' junior, and girls' junior—will compete in preliminary trials Jan. 14. All other preliminaries and the eight championships are scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 15.

Elgin Wins Midget Title.

Among the team entries received are those of the Elgin Skating association. Last year Walter Rust Jr., of the Elgin team won the boys' midget championship. "In spite of our comparatively small entry," Roland W. Walbaum, manager of the team, writes, "we have a much stronger team than last year and I believe we will do even better."

Cedar Rapids, Ia., again will be represented. The entry of thirty boys and girls was submitted by L. D. Dennis. In other years Cedar Rapids has succeeded in placing several contestants among the five who receive major awards in each Derby and in 1935 Robert Dennis won the boys' intermediate championship. His sister, Janet, is entered in the girls' intermediate Derby and a brother, Larry Dennis, will compete in the men's senior race.

Garfield Park Enters 137.

The largest entry, and this probably will be the record, is from Garfield park. One hundred eighteen boys and nineteen girls have registered for the Derbies. Since all live in the vicinity of the site of the Derbies it should mean that Garfield park skaters will win the trophy presented to the team which has the largest number of contestants in the preliminaries.

Nineteen boys from St. George High school also have entered the Derbies. All will compete in the intermediate and junior classes which range from 14 to 17 years of age, inclusive. There is no more ardent supporter of the Derbies than Henry Latko, who several years ago organized the Latko Skating club for boys. This year the club has entered 50 boys who will compete in all five of the age classes.

Sees Chance in Junior Derby.

"Twenty-two of the boys will compete in the Junior Derby," Mr. Latko said, "giving this club a particularly good chance to win Silver Skates in this division for boys 14 and 15 years of age. I have always admired the great enthusiasm that is evident every year. Boys and girls, many of

Stars of Northwest Skating Club

Shirley Jameson of the Northwest Skating club will seek the women's senior title in the Silver Skates Derbies Jan. 14 and 15 in Garfield park. She is a former junior champion.

Detroit Rally Ties American Sextet, 6 to 6

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—After trailing 4 to 0, the Detroit Red Wings came to life in their National Hockey league game with the New York Americans, scored six quick goals and ended the game in a 6 to 6 overtime tie tonight.

A crowd of 7,000 in Madison Square Garden, after watching the home team skate through the Wings' defense at will, worked itself into a frenzy as the Wings drew up to 5 to 5 and then took a 6 to 5 lead. With less than five minutes of regular play to go, Tommy Anderson of the Americans tied the score at 6 to 6.

BUDGE AND VINES DUE TODAY FOR DATE IN STADIUM

Pro Veteran Wins Third Match, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

J. Donald Budge and Ellsworth Vines, two young Californians whose respective hobbies are swing music and golf, will arrive this afternoon to rest for a little date they have in Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

That engagement, however, will involve neither music nor mashes, for it will be conducted with tennis rackets, tennis being a strictly business proposition with both Budge and Vines.

For Budge, making his debut as a professional after having swept through the amateur field last season, tennis means the current tour for which he will receive approximately $75,000. For Vines it means his sixth year as a professional and the first in which it appears he will receive downright, serious opposition.

Needs Only Three Sets.

Budge already has indicated the nature of that competition by taking the first two matches of the nationwide trip the two are making, and doing it up in three straight sets each time. His victory in the opener in Madison Square Garden, New York, Tuesday night was almost shockingly easy, as much as it was of Vines' tendency for glaring errors. Ellsworth got back on his game in the second match in the Boston Garden Wednesday evening, but still found himself a three set loser, although he extended Don to 8-6 in the second.

Last night in Philadelphia, before a crowd of 7,000, Vines regained some of his prestige by giving Budge the same kind of trimming he had suffered in the first two matches. The scores were 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Accompanying Vines and Budge will be Dick Sken of Los Angeles and Bruce Barnes of Austin, Tex., both top ranking professionals. They will open tomorrow night's program with a singles match, which will be followed by the fourth Budge-Vines singles battle of the trip. The program will be concluded with a doubles argument pitting Vines and Barnes against Budge and Sken.

M'INTYRE SEEKS NEW HONORS IN JOYCE REMATCH

Meet Tonight in White
City at Ten Rounds.

Bobby McIntyre, Detroit light-weight, who upset Billy Marquart in Park Casino Dec. 14, will seek new honors in a ten round return bout with Willie Joyce, former Chicago Golden Gloves featherweight champion, in White City, 634 street and South Park avenue, tonight.

The agreed weight is 131 pounds. Neither boxer should encounter difficulty making the poundage. Joyce carried 129 pounds and Bobby 130 when they boxed ten rounds to a draw Dec. 21. It was only the second time Joyce had been held even in nineteen professional appearances. Of his other fights Willie won all except one. He lost a split decision to Frankie (Kid) Covelli in White City Oct. 28 after having conquered Covelli in an earlier battle in Chicago. Covelli conquest was Willie's thirteenth in fourteen starts.

Despite his fine record Joyce has no soft touch in McIntyre, who is a troublemaker performer for the best in his division. Supporting matches:

Law Jenkins, Sweetwater, Tex., vs. Joe Ray (6), 135.
Stick Castiglione, Italo-American Youth organization, vs. Willie Ross (4), 135.
Orlando Trotter vs. Harvey Sterling (4), 135.
Jimmy McNall, Dallas, Tex., vs. Alex Papp (4), 145.

Eight clubs have entered teams in the Illinois Athletic club amateur boxing tournament in the L. A. C. gymnasium Jan. 17, 18 and 25. They include the Catholic Youth organization, Savoy Athletic club, Union park, Lingren's boxing school, Bendix club of South Bend, Ferman's club of Elkhart, Buckley's gymnasium of Peoria, Northwest gymnasium, and Monarch A. C. of Evanston. Wayne Fidler and Frank Bausone, 1938 featherweight and bantamweight champions of the C. Y. O., respectively, are among their organization's candidates for the defense of the team trophy. The Savoy's standard bearers include Johnny Pleasant, who will be defending his I. A. C. lightweight title. Anthony Kimbrough will compete in the heavyweight division for Lingren's gymnasium. Another heavyweight entrant is William B. Snell of the Monarch club. Northwest gym's color bearers are headed by Stanley Spencer, lightweight.

Boxers from Lafayette, Ind., and Chicago will meet in a series of amateur contests this evening in the Madison Athletic club at 4711 Madison street. Jimmy Dayton, Lafayette lightweight, meets Johnny Duncan of Chicago in a five round event. In a five round secondary feature Buddy Jones, Lafayette bantamweight, faces Ray Brown of Chicago. Floyd Robinson, Lafayette flyweight, and Bill Johnson, Chicago, are paired for three rounds. . . . Two bouts of eight rounds have been arranged for Marigold Gardens Monday. Verne Patterson is paired with Indian Billy Lee, and Dick Kist with Bobby Monte. Tony Motiel in match with George White for five rounds. In four rounds Marlon Mosley opposes Art Pavle, and Tony Sopko fights Johnny Rock.

After he wrestles Olaf Olson in White City Monday, Jim McMillen will meet Fritz Von Shacht in Rainbo auditorium Wednesday. . . . Mike Markoff and Pierre La Marr have been added to the mat card topped by Pat Murphy and Stanley Pinta in Cicero stadium Monday. . . . John Winter, Maywood amateur welterweight boxer, will meet Gene Platt of Englewood in Coulon's gymnasium Jan. 9. . . . Amateur fight programs will be resumed in 124th Field Artillery armory gymnasium next Wednesday. F. M.

O'ROURKE GETS NEW MIDGET CAR FOR ARMORY RACE

With a new racing car built especially for indoor competition, Cletus (Cowboy) O'Rourke of Los Angeles will make a bid for honors Sunday night in the 124th Field Artillery armory, where forty drivers will open the 1939 midwest championship season. The designer of the car believes it will be one of the fastest cars on the midget oval.

The entries for Sunday night include Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis, Art Hartford of Toledo, Jimmy Snyder of Chicago, Tony Willman of Milwaukee, Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles, Duke Nelson of Chicago, Ted Tetterton of Watsega, Johnny Ritter of Detroit, Ray Richards of Chicago, and Ted Duncan of Chicago.

Emil Andres, veteran of indoor and outdoor competition, who was seriously injured in the Indianapolis 500 mile race last Memorial day, is expected to make a comeback in the armory.

Mrs. Scott to Seek Second

GrandNational

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, England, Jan. 5.—For the second consecutive year, Mrs. Marion Dupont Scott of Montpelier, Va., will send a son of Man O'War to the starting line in the Grand National steeplechase, to be run over the Aintree course near Liverpool on March 24.

The American horsewoman will be seeking a consecutive double. Her Battiship, also a son of Man O'War, won the 1938 running of the difficult race. War Vessel, a 6 year old chestnut gelding by Man O'War-On Her Toes, is Mrs. Scott's candidate this year. He has done all of his racing in England and has an ordinary record, as did Battiship, first American owned and bred horse to capture the classic. Battiship was an outsider in the betting last year, being quoted at 40 to 1.

Sixty-eight other horses, three of them bred in the United States, were nominated for this year's running, the 101st. The three are J. B. Snow's Delachance, which finished fifth in 1938; F. Ambrose Clark's Flying Minutes, and La Touche. The last two were named for the 1938 race, but did not get to the post.

The advance favorite for this year's running appears to be Royal Daniel, owned by H. B. McNally of Ireland, which finished second last year, a head back of Battiship. The entry list, ten short of that of 1938, includes only one former winner, Royal Mail, which scored in 1937. When the weights for the race are allotted later this month, Royal Mail and Royal Daniel are expected to be given the heaviest imposts.

Apostoli Fights

in Garden Ring

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Although a chance to fight for the world middleweight championship seemed little more than a remote possibility today, Fred Apostoli, the California contender, has no intention of deserting the class for the light-heavyweight division.

Win, lose or draw with Billy Conn, the 170 pound Pittsburgh Irishman, tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden, Apostoli will continue to crowd Solly Krieger, the middleweight king. Apostoli is recognized as middleweight champion by the New York boxing commission, but Krieger has the approval of the National Boxing association as such.

Krieger, back in town after boxing a draw with Marty Simmons last Monday in Milwaukee, was unable to close his left hand and planned to have it examined for a possible fracture.

The champion's right hand hurt, too. Manager Hymie Caplin said that when and if Krieger fights Apostoli it will not be for equal percentage as decreed by the state athletic commission.

Must Have Been a Long Wait.

Caplin did not visit the Hippodrome, headquarters of the Twentieth Century Sporting club, yesterday, although Larry White, Apostoli's manager, spent the greater part of the afternoon waiting for him to appear.

"The commission recognized Apostoli as champion anyway," White commented. "The longer Krieger continues to barnstorm the less he's likely to draw fighting Fred. When Solly gets ready, Apostoli may not be interested."

J. M. LINNEHAN TO

BE MANAGER AT

WESTPORT TRACK

Boston, Mass., Jan. 5.—(P)—The appointment of James M. Linnehan, who recently resigned a similar position at Suffolk Downs, as general manager of the proposed Westport race track, was announced today by officials of Outdoor Amusement, Inc.

Linnehan conferred with Walter Reed, the builder selected to construct the track between Fall River and New Bedford. Pat Horgan, former racing secretary at Narragansett Park, who was engaged by the Westport interests yesterday, said he would leave for Miami tomorrow to book stables for the opening meeting, the dates of which, set by the state racing commission, may be altered shortly.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 5.—(P)—Street Arab, E. E. Chanock's bay colt, captured the six furlong feature for 3 year olds at the Fair Grounds in 1:44.5 today. A favorite among the seven allowance horses entered, Street Arab paid $4.20 for $2.

Given a careful ride by Jocky A. Richard, the Chanock colt took the lead at the start and had no trouble finishing two lengths in front of J. S. Archer's My Shadow with C. Lett's Papalina coming in third.

CRANE'S SENIOR QUINTET BEATS AUSTIN, 29 TO 25

and Manley Win.

Crane Tech, which defeated Austin for the championship of the holiday basketball tournament at the University of Chicago Monday, again whipped its west section rival in their opening Chicago Public High School league game yesterday, 29 to 25, in the senior division.

Austin led at the half, 13 to 11, but the teams were even at 19-all as the fourth quarter opened. Marshall paced the winners with five field goals and two free throws.

Crane made the day complete by also winning the junior contest, 37 to 14. Goldberg was the leading scorer with 16 points.

Twenty teams played to inaugurate their races in the four sections. The highest score was turned in by the Wells seniors, who sank Medill, 61 to 23. The attack was headed by Killian who scored 18 points.

In contrast to this walkway, Manley noised out Du Sable in the same division, 23 to 21. Senn beat Von Steuben, 40 to 16. Lineups:

MOON MULLINS—MOON'S NO CUPID

WESTERN GOLF ASSOCIATION TO MEET TONIGHT

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Western Golf association, second largest organization in the game in this country, will hold its fortieth annual meeting and election of officers in the University club tonight. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

Leslie L. Cooke of Chicago's Bob O'Link club, is the 1939 nominee for the presidency, succeeding Gorton Fauntleroy of Chicago Golf.

The other candidates on this year's ticket, all from the Chicago district, are T. C. Butz of Exmoor and James Gerard of Indian Hill, vice president; John G. Searle of Glen View, secretary; W. T. Woodson of Flossmoor, treasurer, and Carleton Blunt of Glen View, general counsel.

The 1939 directors to be elected include E. B. Babcock of the Los Angeles Country club, Los Angeles, Cal.; Ben Ames of the Oklahoma City Golf and Country club, Oklahoma City, Okla.; E. B. Roberts of the Canterbury Golf club, Cleveland, O.; J. Harvey Irwin of the Eastlake Country club, Atlanta, Ga., and T. P. Hefflinger of the Minkhads club, Minneapolis, Minn.

The nominating committee for next year will consist of John Whipple of the Farrington Hills Country club, Chicago; Howard Baer of the Westwood Country club, St. Louis, Mo.; R. A. Smith of the South Bend Country club, South Bend, Ind.; Dr. W. L. Crawford of the Rockford Country club, Rockford, Ill., and Dr. Richmond McKimney of the Memphis Country club, Memphis, Tenn.

Dates and sites for the three tournaments conducted by the association—the western open, amateur and junior—are expected to be announced during the meeting.

The Chicago Daily Fee Golf association held a luncheon meeting in the La Salle hotel yesterday to discuss plans for the 1939 season. The association this year will issue a membership card, selling for $2, which will enable golfers who play regularly to obtain reduced fees on its member courses.

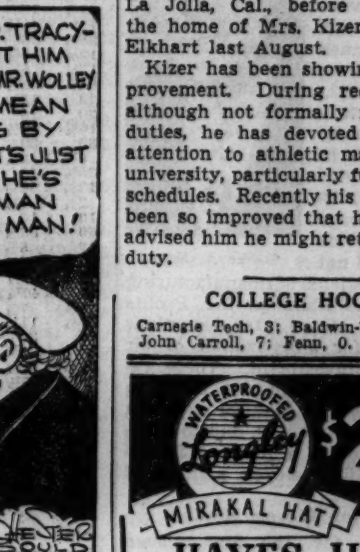

The C. D. F. A. also plans the establishment of a handicapping system which will give each player an authorized rating. No particular method of handicapping has been adopted yet, but it probably will be patterned after that now used by the Chicago District Golf association.

Proceeds of the membership cards will be turned over to golf promotion. Officers of the association are Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, president; Ralph Wymer of Glenageles, vice president; Dr. A. O. Young of Bunker Hill, secretary; Magnus Strand of Big Run, treasurer, and James H. Rook, executive secretary.

The present membership of nineteen clubs includes Arlington, Big Oaks, Big Run, Bunker Hill, Cherry Hill, Cog-Hill, Glendale, Glenageles, Mid-City, Mission Hills, Piskewich, Pipe of Peace, St. Andrews, Techy Fields, Silver Lake, Turkey Creek, Westgate Valley, White Pine, and Woodridge.

DICK TRACY—Keep Off

TRAYNOR WANTS TO FORGET 1938; PLANS FOR 1939

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 5.—(P)—Playing the 1938 season over and over again in his mind has brought a measure of solace to Pie Traynor, whose Pittsburgh Pirates lost a six and one half game lead and the National league pennant to the Chicago Cubs.

Traynor hasn't got over his disappointment, but in an unusual admission for a losing manager, he said today he had reached the conclusion his club was lucky, to finish where it did.

"We had all the breaks in the world last spring," he said. "Jewel Ens and I wondered if the luck could hold out. Well, as matters proved, it couldn't."

This is Another Year. But that is all in the past now for Traynor, whose winter of discontent rapidly is coming to an end with the approach of spring training.

Traynor is working with four of the five regulars from a great Villanova team of 1937-'38 and is experimenting with five sophomores who played as an undefeated freshman quintet last season. Last year Villanova was the only team to beat Temple in Philadelphia's neighbor.

As he contemplates the games with Drake tonight and Villanova Monday, Coach Sachs is confronted with a "Gaston-Alphonse" problem among three of the regulars. He regrets the generosity of Bill O'Brien, George Hogan, and George Wenzkus, who pass up shots under enemy baskets to give the scoring opportunities to Wilb Kautz and Mike Novak.

Wants Them to Take Shots. Sachs is certain that Kautz and Novak, who have carried the scoring burden, will be even more effective if Hogan, O'Brien, and Wenzkus take the more shots. Wenzkus scored in the closing minute of the Santa Clara game to clinch the contest for the Ramblers.

The second game on the double-header Monday will match the De Paul Blue Demons and undefeated Duquesne of Pittsburgh. Duquesne has won two of its three games against De Paul, five sophomores shock troops, who will start the game, and five juniors, who make up the varsity quintet.

Tom Haggerty, De Paul coach, will start the same team which acquitted itself well against Santa Clara. Ed Norris and Jim Szukala will be at the forwards, the lanky Elmer Gainer at center, and Capt. Bob Neu and Ted Skrodski will operate at guards.

Loyola Meets Drake Tonight on Road Trip

The undefeated Loyola university Ramblers will risk their eight game winning streak tonight, meeting the Drake university quintet in Des Moines, Ia. They then return to Chicago to prepare for their game Monday night in the 132d infantry armory with Villanova of Philadelphia.

Coach Lennie Sachs expressed satisfaction with the play of the Ramblers against Santa Clara Wednesday night, when Loyola won, 33 to 31. His greatest concern is the game with Villanova.

One of Fastest Teams in East. Villanova is rated as one of the fastest college fives in the east. Coach Al Severance is working with four of the five regulars from a great Villanova team of 1937-'38 and is experimenting with five sophomores who played as an undefeated freshman quintet last season.

STOCKS TUMBLE
ON ROOSEVELT'S BUDGET PLANSSelling Wave Occurs in Final Hour.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, Jan. 5.—Heavy selling in the last half hour of trading climaxed an early irregular trend on the stock market today. Prices buckled fractions to around 3 points. All sections of the list were affected, with pivotal industrial, rail and aviation issues hardest hit. The wave of late offerings—some 500,000 shares changed hands in the last hour—swelled total volume to 1,570,120 shares.

Observers considered it significant that the quick turnaround came on the heels of President Roosevelt's budget message. Coupled with more mature appraisal of his message yesterday on the state of the Union, today's development was regarded as having a more sobering influence on all sides of the market.

Court Appointment Is Factor.

Nomination of Felix Frankfurter to the Supreme court also dampened interest, it was said. It was pointed out that although in ordinary times such a move might have passed as political maneuvering, at a time like this it would be construed as an effort to prevent any retreat from the economic philosophy of the administration.

In the industrial sector steel and motor shares were subjected to severe pressure. United States Steel off 2 1/2; Republic off 1 1/2; Bethlehem off 2 1/2; Youngstown off 2 1/2. Chrysler off 1 1/2; General Motors off 1/2, led the procession.

Weakest spots in the aviation section were Douglas, off 2 1/2; United Aircraft off 2 1/2; Glenn Martin off 2 1/2; Wright Aero off 2 1/2; Sperry Corporation off 2 1/2. Losses exceeding one point were marked up against Boeing, Bendix, Consolidated Aircraft, and North American Aviation.

Railroad Shares Weaken.

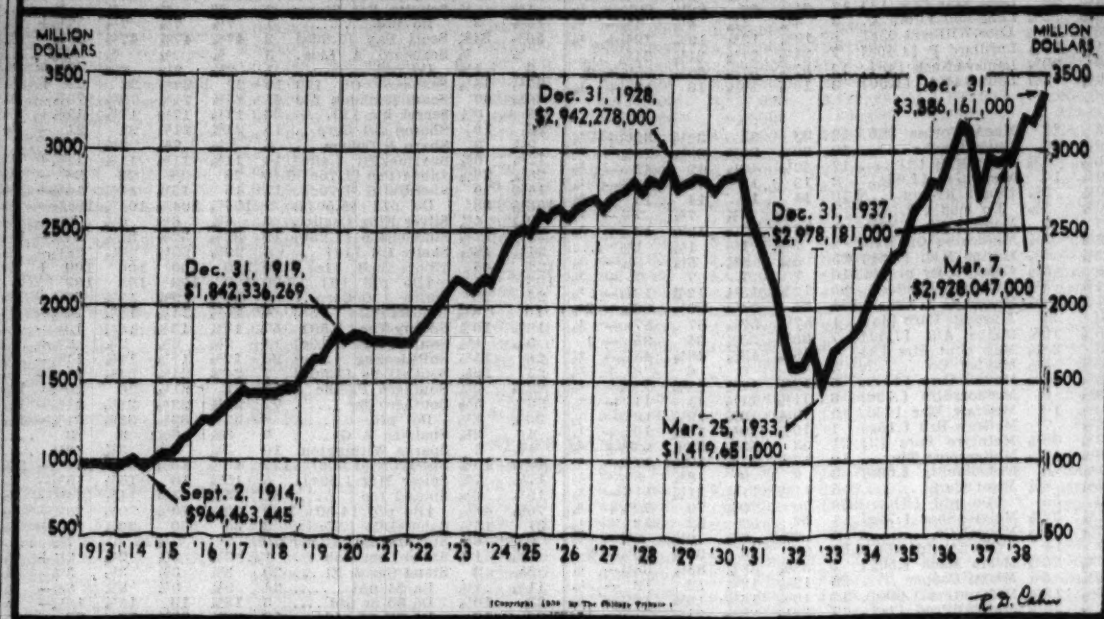

New York Central, off 1 1/2 points, paced the carriers. Santa Fe, Great Northern preferred, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, and Illinois Central also incurred declines, running to more than 1 point.

A few low price issues found good support throughout the day. Loft moved in the best volume to add a fraction. Richfield Oil also was active and higher. Other oils declined fractionally, as did rubber stocks. Among the latter Goodyear slumped 1 1/2 points, however.

Sears-Roebuck in the mail order group kept above water, but Montgomery Ward dropped 1 1/2 points.

Sisto's Membership Bonds were expelling from the exchange Dec. 29 on charges of improper conduct and violation of its rules, has been sold for $68,000, it was learned today. The name of the purchaser was not disclosed.

It was the first sale transaction recorded by the exchange for the new year and represented a decline of $2,000 from the price of the preceding sale. In 1938 the quotations for exchange memberships ranged from a low of $31,000 to a high of $85,000.

Total Deposits of All Chicago Banks
1913-1938England Asks
Aid in Ending
Fall of Pound

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(Special.)—Aid in halting speculation in the pound sterling was asked today by the British treasury of all banks and bullion firms. The treasury requested the financial organizations to stop making loans against gold when purely speculative operations were involved, and to cease direct speculation in gold or foreign currencies.

A similar request, it was understood, was made to banks in France and the United States which are members, together with Great Britain, of the tripartite monetary agreement designed to stabilize the currencies of the three nations. Banks in other nations adhering to the stabilization agreement were also urged to assist.

Under Pressure for Months.

The pound has been under speculative pressure for several months. On Tuesday it dropped to $4.62 1/2 in terms of the dollar the lowest point since it was quoted at $4.60 the day before the Munich peace agreement last September. The pound recovered slightly yesterday, but lost ground again today until traders learned that some restriction had been imposed. Then it gained sharply and in final dealings was quoted at $4.64 1/2, up 1/2 cent for the day.

Stopping of loans against gold would force speculators to sell gold which they had purchased and held for a higher price. This would increase the demand for British money and raise it in relation to other currencies. Observers said they had noticed an expansion in speculative operations recently, particularly from continental cities.

Strain on Stabilizing Fund.

Gold buying has forced the British exchange equalization fund to sell gold to protect the pound at a time when its resources were low. Some observers believe the new restrictions may reverse the trend and permit the fund to reabsorb more of the metal.

Traders said the British government feared that further weakening of the pound would disrupt opera-

LIVERMORE, FORMER
PLUNGER, SEEKS SEAT ON COMMODITY BOARD

New York, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Jesse L. Livermore, maker and loser of fortunes in stock and commodity speculation, seeks a seat on the commodity exchange.

His application was announced today by the exchange's board of governors. The former "plunger" is 60 years old. He was known in his twenties as the "boy wonder of Wall Street."

Friends said today that he was on his way to the west coast, on route to a vacation in the south seas. They said he expected to be back in the thick of Wall Street activity about April 1.

Livermore has made four fortunes of many million dollars each in the course of his career, and has lost four. He asserted at the time of his 1934 bankruptcy that he always had "paid off 100 cents on the dollar." In 1936 he went back into the market.

tion of the Anglo-American trade agreement. New declines in the currency, it was said, would increase the amount of sterling which British buyers must pay for American goods, thus cutting down the flow of United States goods to Great Britain.

Gains in New York.

New York, Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The British pound sterling gained in foreign exchange dealings here today, closing 1 cent higher at $4.64 1/2. The request of the British treasury that banks refuse to loan money against gold when speculative operations were involved was only one of a series of measures taken recently to strengthen the currency, bankers said. Reports from Washington said the treasury was cooperating with Britain's plan.

Stocks Sold by 'Insiders'
in November

Corporation "insiders" continued to unload large blocks of stock in their own companies during November, the Securities and Exchange commission revealed yesterday. Among insiders, the selling edge has held for thirteen months.

The commission's report was its first for the month on stock transactions by officers, directors, and principal stockholders of the nation's corporations. A subsequent report on November transactions, listing those not reported earlier, will be issued by the SEC in about two weeks.

McKesson-Robbins Officials Sell. Outstanding among the many sales reported yesterday were several transactions in stock of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., the big wholesale drug company which has been the center of probably the most daring swindle in modern times. F. Donald Coster, or Philip Musica, former president of the concern, killed himself recently when his masquerade and elaborate fraud was discovered.

Trade in McKesson & Robbins stock was suspended temporarily on Dec. 6 by the New York stock exchange. The Coster-Musica fraud was uncovered later. Yesterday's SEC report disclosed that various of the drug company's insiders disposed of sizable blocks of common stock shortly prior to the suspension.

President Sells All Shares.

Charles F. Michaels, who succeeded Coster-Musica as president of McKesson & Robbins, was shown to have sold 13,761 common shares, his entire holdings, between Nov. 2 and Nov. 12. He also owned 15,153 preferred shares. Henry Michaels, a corporation official, sold 400 common shares on Nov. 8, reducing his holdings to 375 common and 5,268 preferred shares. John H. McGiloon, another officer, sold 300 shares held jointly with his wife. This disposed of their entire joint holdings.

CHICAGO'S 'FED'
BANK IS CHOKED
WITH IDLE CASHLoans, Investments at Low Ebb.

The annual report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, released yesterday by President George J. Schaller, vividly illustrates the manner in which idle bank cash is being stored with the federal reserve system instead of being employed in loans and investments.

The condition of the Chicago reserve bank is typical of that of the other eleven reserve banks throughout the country. A reserve bank is a "bankers' bank." Its stock is owned by the commercial banks in its district which belong to the reserve system. Into it the member banks of the district deposit the reserves required by law and most of their additional idle cash, for which they are unable to find employment in loans and investments. In turn, the reserve bank stands ready to lend the commercial member banks funds when they need more money for their operations.

Member Banks Not Borrowing.

At present the member banks in the Chicago reserve district—which includes most of Illinois and Indiana, all of Iowa, southern and central Wisconsin and the lower Michigan peninsula—are not borrowing from the Chicago reserve bank. Instead, they have so much unemployed money that they are carrying as deposits with the Chicago reserve bank vast amounts of "excess" reserves in addition to the amounts they are required by law to carry with the reserve banks.

Yesterday's report by the Chicago reserve bank, covering operations for 1938, reflects this abnormal situation, having become little more than a vast storehouse for the idle funds of its members, the reserve bank is discounting only an exceedingly small amount of commercial bills, and is depending for income largely on its investments in the securities of the United States government and from sale of such securities at a profit.

Reserve Banks Earn Less.

The report shows that in 1938 the Chicago reserve bank earned only $1,090,752, compared with $1,687,605 in 1937. Of this $1,090,752 of net earnings last year, $932,906 came from profits on sales of United States government securities. The bank paid $791,007 in dividends during 1938 and transferred $270,031 to surplus.

Total resources of the Chicago reserve bank were $2,639,536,099 on Dec. 31, 1938, against $2,198,767,507 a year before. At the close of 1938 bills discounted amounted to only $128,957; industrial advances, $454,821; and bills bought in the open market, $68,299. These three items represent extension of credit in normal commercial and industrial channels. They contrast with the $276,389,000 which the bank had invested in United States government securities on the same date.

Illinois Central Road Plans

Streamliners to South

Chicago and New Orleans are to be connected by fast streamlined passenger trains, John L. Beven, new president of the Illinois Central system, disclosed in New Orleans yesterday. He said the new streamliners will replace the Panama Limited, the road's fast train between the two cities. Beven said the running time probably will be reduced several hours. The Panama now runs the 621 miles in 20 hours. The streamliners are still in the planning stage.

Roosevelt's Plans Prevent Business Gain, Says Armour

Business expansion will continue to be held back if the government proceeds along the lines outlined in the President's message to congress, Laurance Armour, president of the American National Bank and Trust company, asserted yesterday.

Armour said that no real demand for capital can develop without a change in federal administration policies. He made these statements in the bank's annual report of earnings.

Net profit after preferred dividends, Armour said, slipped in 1938 to $234,116, or $23.41 a common share, from $249,246, or $24.92 a share, in 1937. Total resources of the bank reached a new peak of $61,110,572, compared with $55,891,849 a year earlier.

Gain to Be Artificial.

Armour said he expected some improvement in business this year from the stimulus of government spending, but that this pickup would be artificial. "The stimulant which is needed to lead to a vigorous upsurge in private industry still seems to be lacking," he said. "The issue is clear that as long as the administration's plans are for the continuance of high taxes and further increases in public debt we are curtailing the source from which we can hope to permanently and soundly build national income and create new wealth. As long as these policies prevail we cannot expect genuine business progress and banks cannot expect any great increase in demand for loans from private industry."

Policies Retard Expansion.

"The President's message to congress on Tuesday indicates the desire of his administration to continue policies which in themselves will have the effect of substantially curtailing the desire on the part of business concerns and individuals to venture into new and extended fields. And it is this type of activity which creates the real demand for money. We must all be heartily in accord with the desire to increase the national income to 30 billion dollars, but it is in the method of bringing this about that business must disagree. For continued government spending and increasing the public debt can only be an artificial and temporary stimulant, which takes us around an ever-enlarging circle with doubtful results."

BANK CLEARINGS

EXPAND SHARPLY

ON SETTLEMENTS

New York, Jan. 5.—(Special.)—Bank clearings for the twenty-two leading cities of the United States for the week ended last Wednesday, reflecting the inclusion of the usual heavy first-of-the-month settlements, rose sharply above those for the preceding week and also above the aggregate for the corresponding five-day week of last year. Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Total clearings for the twenty-two cities amounted to $6,371,547,000, compared with $5,810,958,000 last year, an increase of 9.6 per cent. Clearings in New York amounted to $4,135,310,000, a rise of 13.2 per cent from the $3,642,254,000 a year ago. Chicago reported a decrease of 6.6 per cent to $322,700,000 from $345,600,000 a year ago.

Compared with the preceding week, clearings increased $1,549,856,000. Between the two similar weeks of last year the gain was $818,824,000.

ILLINOIS WAGES

AMONG STATES

Illinois pay rolls for one week in November, 1938, were the third largest of any state in the Union, a study made by the Illinois Manufacturers' association discloses. Only New York and Pennsylvania exceeded Illinois in pay roll disbursements.

The Illinois pay roll amounted to $15,017,708, representing compensation for 883,851 employees in 6,847 manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries. In New York the pay roll totaled $19,314,575 and in Pennsylvania, $15,232,321. Illinois' weekly pay roll, the association found, nearly equaled the pay rolls of all the New England states.

CHICAGO BANKS'
DEPOSITS RISE
TO NEW RECORDTotal $3,386,161,000;
Due to U.S. Spending.

Total deposits of Chicago's banks on Dec. 31, 1938, were the highest in the city's banking history. The aggregate was $3,386,161,000. This was disclosed yesterday in quarterly statements of condition made in response to bank calls issued by the national controller of the currency and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett.

The total was about $183,000,000 more than that on Sept. 28, 1938, the date of the preceding bank call. Then it was $3,193,136,000. The total on Dec. 31, 1937, was $2,978,181,000.

Caused by "Pump Priming."

The large amount of money now in the banks is attributed largely to the federal government's "pump priming." In this operation the government borrows money from the banks then deposits it, thus automatically swelling the volume of deposits.

Chicago banks' holdings of government loans on Dec. 31 totaled $1,208,118,000, an increase of about $69,000,000 over the $1,140,428,000 reported on Sept. 28, 1938.

While deposits have been soaring, bank loans and discounts have been making little progress. And it is through loans and discounts that the banks normally derive a large part of their profits. The total of loans and discounts on Dec. 31 was only $619,730,000. This was a gain of only $14,000,000 over the total of $605,970,000 on Sept. 28. On Dec. 31, 1937, the total was $729,313,000.

Not since March 30, 1932, have loans and discounts of the Chicago banks totaled as much as one billion dollars. On that date they aggregated $1,086,000,000.

Savings deposits in the banks totaled $374,754,000 on Dec. 31, compared with $362,127,000 on Sept. 28, and $459,980,000 on Dec. 31, 1937. Cash

New York Bonds

New York Jan. 5. (P)—United States government securities offered a bit when President Roosevelt's budget message calling for $900,000,000 of new spending was released today, but finished on a relatively even keel. Treasury issues were 3-32 of a point higher to 3-32 lower.

Corporate bonds received a budget announcement placidly, then bogged down somewhat in a selling flurry in the final hour. However, the corporates at the close were about evenly mixed as to gains and losses.

Chicago Stocks

Chicago stocks tumbled further for more than two points in a last hour slump yesterday. Earlier in the session modest gains were general. The Tribune average of 20 stocks at one time reaching 118.3, closed at 117.6 Wednesday. At the close the average stood at 116.0, off 0.16. A total of 53,000 shares changed hands.

Most volume leaders participated in the slump. Bess Aviation was off 2 at 26 1/2. Pressed Steel Car lost to close at 33 1/2. Stewart-Warner slipped 3/4 to 11 1/2.

Bank Stocks

The sagging stock market was reflected yesterday in prices of leading Chicago bank stocks, dealers said. Shares of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company declined 80 cents to 11 1/2. Harris Trust and Savings bank, $1, and Northern Trust company, $2. The only advance was made by stock of the Chicago Title and Trust company, which moved up 1/4. Shares of other banks were unchanged.
